Body Of Slain Woman Is Found In Caddo Parish

SHREVEPORT (Special) — The body of a Vivian mother of three, Mrs. Kathleen Ward, 40, was found beside a small dirt road off U. S. Highway 71 about two miles north of Hossten Saturday morning.

The attractive red-head died Friday night or early Saturday morning from a blow on the head inflicted by some blunt instrument such as a ball pean hammer, Caddo Parish Coroner Dr. Norman Mauroner said yesterday.

Chemical tests were being made to determine whether the woman had been sexually assaulted. Her stockings and undergarments were found in her purse about 15 feet from the body. Her woolen skirt was pulled up to her waist, and her coat and other clothing was disarranged.

"GOOD EVIDENCE"

Caddo Parish Sheriff J. Howell Flournoy said yesterday, "we have some very good evidence and we are seeking a suspect for questioning."

The woman's body was found by P. C. Wimbish and his wife, of Texarkana, Tex. who had stopped at the little used road to let his dogs exercise around 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

The body was found on the old road, which leads to an abandoned farmsite, about 195 feet from the main highway. Authorities said there was an imprint of Mrs. Ward's heel at the scene, indicating signs of a struggle.

Caddo officials believe she was killed at the scene although her car was found at a grocery and bar between Vivian and Hossten. Time of death was placed somewhere between 9 p.m. and 12 midnight Friday.

Mrs. Ward, who lives eight miles north of Vivian on the McLeod Road had left the house to go visiting around 8 p.m. Friday. Her husband and 16-year-old son left the house at 7 p.m. enroute to a ballgame at the North Caddo High School.

Sources said that Mrs. Ward left home after asking her 18-year-old daughter Jean, and son

JFK Lauds N.O. Racial Mix Backers

Praises Citizens Trying To Abide By Court Orders

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy strongly endorsed Saturday efforts of educators, parents and other citizens who are trying to carry out court-ordered integration of New Orleans public schools in the face of violent opposition.

He praised them for "quiet intelligence and true courage" and firmly declared: "This is no time for schools to close for any reason, and certainly no time for schools to be closed in the name of racial discrimination."

WIRES STATEMENT

Kennedy's wired statement to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission's third annual conference on schools in transition at Williamsburg, Va., was an obvious follow-up to his recent pledge to "use the moral authority" of the presidency in school desegregation disputes.

It also came on the heels of the Justice Department filing a civil contempt action to compel the state of Louisiana to release $350,000 in federal funds withheld from the New Orleans school board since September.

The civil contempt action was filed against Shelby M. Jackson, state superintendent of public education, on orders by the president's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The President said Saturday of those in New Orleans who have tried to carry out the desegregation order: "The whole country is

Dyer Apparent Revote Winner At Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Jack Dyer, Baton Rouge attorney, apparently entered a second primary for House of Representatives after grabbing a big lead in a revote Saturday.

Dyer received 223 votes for the local House seat. City-parish councilman A. R. (Cotton) Harris, who finished fourth parishwide last week, received 60 ballots in the rerun.

The second vote, called in one city precinct only because a voting machine failed to register last week, left Harris trailing 100 votes behind Dyer in fifth instead of fourth place.

About 307 of the 348 voters eligible to vote in the second election balloted this time.

Harris declined any comment on the outcome. He did not indicate whether he would file a suit contesting the change in the election's outcome.

The parish Democratic executive committee, which ordered the second vote, will meet Monday to make the returns official.

Dyer requested the revote because of the faulty machine, and Harris said he had no objection.

Other candidates in the second primary March 18 are Richard C. Cadwallader, a former city-parish councilman; W. L. (Bill) Bernhard, another former member of the council, and Walter Travis, local insurance executive and former candidate for mayor-president.

U.S. Solon, 70, Dies Of Stroke

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Walter M. Mumma, R-Pa., died Saturday at the Bethesda Naval Medical Center. He was 70.

Mumma suffered a stroke Thursday and his condition had been critical. He had represented the 16th district since 1951. He was a native of Steelton, Pa., but had lived in Harrisburg.

A hospital spokesman said Mumma died at 3:30 p.m. EST. At his bedside were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mumma, the congressman's son and daughter-in-law.

Legislators To Discuss Pay Tonight

Both Chambers To Return For 7 P.M. Session

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The Louisiana Legislature, under increasing pressure, will try again Sunday night to pay the New Orleans school teachers in a way that all sides in the complicated dispute can accept.

Both chambers return at 7 p.m., and the 12-day fifth straight special session called by Gov. Jimmie H. Davis in the school integration fight will be brought to an end.

RESOLUTIONS

Most indications were that there would not be a sixth special session immediately.

The Senate has four key resolutions and other legislation that tie into the overall picture, Whether some of it will help or hurt is yet to be decided.

Of prime concern to the legislators, a top strategist indicated, was the federal court hearing scheduled Friday in New Orleans for three top state officials on contempt charges.

Lt. Gov. C. C. Aycock, House Speaker Thomas Jewell and Supt. Shelby M. Jackson are accused of being in contempt of the federal court for failing to pay teachers in integrated McDonogh No. 19 and William Frantz schools in New Orleans.

Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy earlier said federal court orders will continue to be carried out in Louisiana civil rights cases. He expressed disappointment the teachers were not paid Thursday night and said he "had been hopeful the matter could be settled in a

'Jimmy' Sought By Police For Slaying Of Girl

CHESTER, Pa. (UPI)—Police Saturday questioned nine boys whose first names were written in a small black notebook carried by blonde 15-year-old Patricia Nickals, who was fatally shot in the head Friday night while walking home from a teenage dance.

Her plea, "Don't do it Jimmy," heard by residents just before a shot was fired focused police attention on the book which listed a number of "Jimmys." Six boys with that name were questioned.

Patricia, a student at Eddystone High School, was shot at close range only a few feet from her home in nearby Trainer after walking the few blocks between her home and the Trainer elementary school, where the dance was held.

Investigators said Patricia walked part way home with Edward Pettit, 14, and the two talked for a while on a street corner. Then the boy went to his home in a nearby trailer park and Patricia resumed her walk home.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel F. Edge, neighbors, told police they were sitting in their automobile after returning from a visit to friends and watched Patricia until she was only half a block away.

As the Edges walked into their house, they heard Patricia calling, "Oh, Mrs. Edge, come help me." Mrs. Edge said she ignored the call because Patricia was "a little kidder." But then they heard a shot and ran to the girl. Another neighbor heard the girl shout, "Don't do it Jimmy."

Generally Fair Skies Expected

Monroe and area residents can take a breather, sit back and enjoy the fair weather that moved into the state yesterday.

According to the weatherman, skies will be generally fair through Sunday night with the temperatures in the 60's and expected to get warmer Sunday night.

Mostly western winds will be variable between five to 10 miles an hour today.

Southern Mississippi will also enjoy mostly fair skies today, with the high expected to rise between 58 to 66 degrees.

Yesterday's high in Monroe was 64, according to Selman Field with the low at 36.

PEDESTRIANS and automobiles found it hard to navigate in downtown Indianapolis during a heavy snow storm Saturday. The heavy snow, driven by high winds, has disrupted electric power in much of central Indiana. With six inches already on the ground, the weather bureau was predicting nearly that much more. Kennedy Aide To Consult Chief Allies

WASHINGTON (AP) — In his first direct move to tighten NATO unity, President Kennedy Saturday assigned roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman to tour Western Europe at once and confer with the chief Allied leaders.

The action comes at a time of steadily increasing tensions in the relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union. It also coincides with some irritations between this country and Britain, particularly over the Kennedy administration's new approach to African problems.

LEAVES TODAY

The Congo crisis and African problems generally — as well as U.S.-Allied differences over Laos — are sure to figure extensively in Harriman's talks. He will leave Sunday to see British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, French President Charles de Gaulle, German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and Premier Amintore Fanfani of Italy.

The Congo crisis took an ominous turn Saturday, in the view of U.S. officials, when it was disclosed that Soviet Premier Khrushchev has strongly committed his personal prestige to the support of the pro-Communist rebel government.

Khrushchev made this clear in a letter to India's Prime Minister Nehru, sent Wednesday and released Saturday in Moscow.

Khrushchev told Nehru that the "legitimate government" is the Lumumbist regime of Antoine Gizenga at Stanleyville. This puts the Soviet leader in direct personal opposition to President Kennedy who last week proclaimed full support for the administration of President Joseph Kasavubu at Leopoldville.

Khrushchev's latest move was read here as ruling out any compromise Congo solution any time soon.

As one authority summed it up against the background of recent Communist declarations of intent to take over in the underdeveloped countries: "It now seems safe to say that the battle for Africa is joined."

Under such circumstances Kennedy, it was understood, intends to pursue as well as he is able his declared purpose of trying to improve relations with the Soviet

AFTER MOB ATTACKS

Belgium Breaks Off Nasser Ties

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Belgium broke off diplomatic relations with the United Arab Republic Saturday because of mob attacks on the Belgian Embassy in Cairo two weeks ago.

Jean van Denbossche, Foreign Ministry secretary-general, said the U.A.R. had rejected all Belgian protests against the attacks by rioters seeking vengeance for the slaying of Congolese ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba.

Van Denbossche said the U.A.R. on Feb. 14, two days after the first attack on the embassy, gave Belgium assurances the building would be protected. But the next day a huge mob battered its way into the embassy, threw files and papers into the street and set the building on fire.

POLICE LEAVE

A Belgian Foreign Ministry communique said that on that day "the police forces controlling the streets leading to the embassy and protecting the embassy were withdrawn, while TV trucks and reporters took position in front of the embassy."

"Firemen and police appeared

Senate Starts Action Tuesday On New GI Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate starts action Tuesday on a new GI bill similar to one that enabled hundreds of thousands of World War II veterans to get a college degree.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., chief sponsor of the bill, announced his veterans affairs subcommittee will begin hearings on the measure.

Known as the cold war veterans GI education bill, it calls for the government to pay for college educations for those with military service since the Korean War. Yarborough estimated there were 4.5 million such veterans.

The measure also would provide on-the-job vocational training benefits.

The bill calls for payments of $110 per month for single veterans in college. The payments range up to $165 a month for students with dependents. On-the-job trainees would receive between $95 and $130 a month, depending on the number of dependents they had. But their total earnings, with the pay for work, could not exceed $310 a month.

Yarborough said previous veterans education bills gave the nation 450,000 engineers, 180,000 doctors, nurses, and medical technicians, 230,000 teachers and almost 150,000 scientists.

Over 7,000 Homeless In Mississippi

By United Press International

Major floods in the Storm-ravaged South Saturday forced more than 7,000 persons from their homes, and a surprise snow-storm battered the Midwest and Ohio Valley, creating scores of emergencies in Indiana.

Hundreds of motorists were stranded on snow and drift-clogged Indiana highways. Travelers were advised to abandon their autos and seek shelter.

DISRUPTS POWER

The storm dumped up to 6 inches of snow over most of Indiana. Several cities declared states of emergency as power and communications were disrupted. Air fields were closed by the snow and drifts. Numerous sporting events, including sectional basketball tourney finals, were cancelled or postponed.

Mayor Charles Boswell of Indianapolis was one of several mayors who declared snow emergencies. Boswell ordered car owners to get their vehicles off main highways and streets, and appealed to motorists to stay at home and give snow removal crews a free hand in clearing the heavy snowfall.

The Indiana storm hit as several other sections of the nation battled floods, rain, tornadoes, dust and winds.

Wind gusts of up to 60 miles per hour slammed across the Rockies into the plains, reducing visibilities over Colorado, western Nebraska and northwest Kansas. The winds forced the Colorado Highway Patrol to ban movement of house trailers on highways.

At Portland, Maine, the U.S. Weather Bureau issued preliminary flash flood warnings when heavy rain and a warming trend

Castro Pickets March In Front Of White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 600 pro-Castro pickets staged a mass demonstration in a downpour in front of the White House Saturday, protesting this country's Cuba policy.

About 60 Washington policemen reinforced by Secret Service agents and extra White House police, kept the sign-carrying, flag waving marchers moving briskly three or four abreast.

Extra precautions against violence were taken because a group of around 30 anti-Castro Cubans showed up to picket the picketers.

Deputy Police Chief George R. Wallrodt forbade the anti-Castro group coming closer than a block from the White House. They carried their signs on the sidewalk near the U.S. Treasury.

Wallrodt ordered pedestrian traffic detoured away from the White House side of Pennsylvania Avenue where the major body of demonstrators paraded in the rain.

The pro-Castro marchers were organized by the Fair Play for Cuba Committee. With headquarters in New York. This group is now being looked into by the Senate Internal Security subcommittee.

Many of the demonstrators arrived by bus and auto from New York, Philadelphia, Newark and Hoboken, N.J.

Several carried signs identifying themselves with Castro's "July 26 Movement" and "Avance" a youth group sympathetic to the Castro cause.

Body Of Slain Woman Is Found In Caddo Parish

SHREVEPORT (Special) — The body of a Vivian mother of three, Mrs. Kathleen Ward, 40, was found beside a small dirt road off U. S. Highway 71 about two miles north of Hossten Saturday morning.

The attractive red-head died Friday night or early Saturday morning from a blow on the head inflicted by some blunt instrument such as a ball pean hammer, Caddo Parish Coroner Dr. Norman Mauroner said yesterday.

Chemical tests were being made to determine whether the woman had been sexually assaulted. Her stockings and undergarments were found in her purse about 15 feet from the body. Her woolen skirt was pulled up to her waist, and her coat and other clothing was disarranged.

"GOOD EVIDENCE"

Caddo Parish Sheriff J. Howell Flournoy said yesterday, "we have some very good evidence and we are seeking a suspect for questioning."

The woman's body was found by P. C. Wimbish and his wife, of Texarkana, Tex. who had stopped at the little used road to let his dogs exercise around 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

The body was found on the old road, which leads to an abandoned farmsite, about 195 feet from the main highway. Authorities said there was an imprint of Mrs. Ward's heel at the scene, indicating signs of a struggle.

Caddo officials believe she was killed at the scene although her car was found at a grocery and bar between Vivian and Hossten. Time of death was placed somewhere between 9 p.m. and 12 midnight Friday.

Mrs. Ward, who lives eight miles north of Vivian on the McLeod Road had left the house to go visiting around 8 p.m. Friday. Her husband and 16-year-old son left the house at 7 p.m. enroute to a ballgame at the North Caddo High School.

Sources said that Mrs. Ward left home after asking her 18-year-old daughter Jean, and son

JFK Lauds N.O. Racial Mix Backers

Praises Citizens Trying To Abide By Court Orders

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy strongly endorsed Saturday efforts of educators, parents and other citizens who are trying to carry out court-ordered integration of New Orleans public schools in the face of violent opposition.

He praised them for "quiet intelligence and true courage" and firmly declared: "This is no time for schools to close for any reason, and certainly no time for schools to be closed in the name of racial discrimination."

WIRES STATEMENT

Kennedy's wired statement to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission's third annual conference on schools in transition at Williamsburg, Va., was an obvious follow-up to his recent pledge to "use the moral authority" of the presidency in school desegregation disputes.

It also came on the heels of the Justice Department filing a civil contempt action to compel the state of Louisiana to release $350,000 in federal funds withheld from the New Orleans school board since September.

The civil contempt action was filed against Shelby M. Jackson, state superintendent of public education, on orders by the president's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The President said Saturday of those in New Orleans who have tried to carry out the desegregation order: "The whole country is

Dyer Apparent Revote Winner At Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Jack Dyer, Baton Rouge attorney, apparently entered a second primary for House of Representatives after grabbing a big lead in a revote Saturday.

Dyer received 223 votes for the local House seat. City-parish councilman A. R. (Cotton) Harris, who finished fourth parishwide last week, received 60 ballots in the rerun.

The second vote, called in one city precinct only because a voting machine failed to register last week, left Harris trailing 100 votes behind Dyer in fifth instead of fourth place.

About 307 of the 348 voters eligible to vote in the second election balloted this time.

Harris declined any comment on the outcome. He did not indicate whether he would file a suit contesting the change in the election's outcome.

The parish Democratic executive committee, which ordered the second vote, will meet Monday to make the returns official.

Dyer requested the revote because of the faulty machine, and Harris said he had no objection.

Other candidates in the second primary March 18 are Richard C. Cadwallader, a former city-parish councilman; W. L. (Bill) Bernhard, another former member of the council, and Walter Travis, local insurance executive and former candidate for mayor-president.

Lincoln's Inaugural To Be Re-Enacted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The reenactment next Saturday of Abraham Lincoln's inauguration will be highlighted by a luncheon featuring the same dish served to the president 100 years ago—corned beef and cabbage.

The luncheon will take place at the Willard Hotel, where Lincoln and the inaugural party stopped off on their way to the White House from the ceremonies at the Capitol.

Plans for the centennial celebration of the event were worked out Saturday by a joint committee of Congress and other interested groups.

John C. Collison, of Richmond, Va., will play the part of Honest Abe. The committee said he was selected because "he looks more like Lincoln than Lincoln did."

A platform resembling the one Lincoln stood on to take the oath of office March 4, 1861 will be built in front of the East Portico of the Capitol—where President Kennedy was sworn in last Jan. 20.

After the events at the Capitol there will be a procession down Pennsylvania Avenue with the carriage used by Ulysses S. Grant in his inaugural parade in 1869 serving as Lincoln's carriage. The committee was unable to come up with the one actually used by Lincoln.

Descendents of Union soldiers who fought in the Battle of Antietam during the Civil War will serve as an honor guard in the procession. They will be clad in Civil War uniforms.

Free tickets to ceremonies at the Capitol may be obtained from members of Congress or from the Civil War Centennial Commission in Washington, D. C.

According to the weatherman, skies will be generally fair through Sunday night with the temperatures in the 60's and expected to get warmer Sunday night.

Mostly western winds will be variable between five to 10 miles an hour today.

Southern Mississippi will also enjoy mostly fair skies today, with the high expected to rise between 58 to 66 degrees.

Yesterday's high in Monroe was 64, according to Selman Field with the low at 36.

PEDESTRIANS and automobiles found it hard to navigate in downtown Indianapolis during a heavy snow storm Saturday. The heavy snow, driven by high winds, has disrupted electric power in much of central Indiana. With six inches already on the ground, the weather bureau was predicting nearly that much more. Kennedy Aide To Consult Chief Allies

WASHINGTON (AP) — In his first direct move to tighten NATO unity, President Kennedy Saturday assigned roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman to tour Western Europe at once and confer with the chief Allied leaders.

The action comes at a time of steadily increasing tensions in the relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union. It also coincides with some irritations between this country and Britain, particularly over the Kennedy administration's new approach to African problems.

LEAVES TODAY

The Congo crisis and African problems generally — as well as U.S.-Allied differences over Laos — are sure to figure extensively in Harriman's talks. He will leave Sunday to see British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, French President Charles de Gaulle, German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and Premier Amintore Fanfani of Italy.

The Congo crisis took an ominous turn Saturday, in the view of U.S. officials, when it was disclosed that Soviet Premier Khrushchev has strongly committed his personal prestige to the support of the pro-Communist rebel government.

Khrushchev made this clear in a letter to India's Prime Minister Nehru, sent Wednesday and released Saturday in Moscow.

Khrushchev told Nehru that the "legitimate government" is the Lumumbist regime of Antoine Gizenga at Stanleyville. This puts the Soviet leader in direct personal opposition to President Kennedy who last week proclaimed full support for the administration of President Joseph Kasavubu at Leopoldville.

Khrushchev's latest move was read here as ruling out any compromise Congo solution any time soon.

As one authority summed it up against the background of recent Communist declarations of intent to take over in the underdeveloped countries: "It now seems safe to say that the battle for Africa is joined."

Under such circumstances Kennedy, it was understood, intends to pursue as well as he is able his declared purpose of trying to improve relations with the Soviet

Kennedy Fills AEC Position

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dr. Leland J. Haworth, director of the Brookhaven National Laboratory on Long Island, was appointed to the Atomic Energy Commission by President Kennedy Saturday.

Haworth's selection completes the five-man commission. Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, who won a Nobel Prize in chemistry, is slated to be chairman. Other members are Dr. Robert E. Wilson and two lawyers, John S. Graham and Loren K. Olson.

AFTER MOB ATTACKS

Belgium Breaks Off Nasser Ties

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Belgium broke off diplomatic relations with the United Arab Republic Saturday because of mob attacks on the Belgian Embassy in Cairo two weeks ago.

Jean van Denbossche, Foreign Ministry secretary-general, said the U.A.R. had rejected all Belgian protests against the attacks by rioters seeking vengeance for the slaying of Congolese ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba.

Van Denbossche said the U.A.R. on Feb. 14, two days after the first attack on the embassy, gave Belgium assurances the building would be protected. But the next day a huge mob battered its way into the embassy, threw files and papers into the street and set the building on fire.

POLICE LEAVE

A Belgian Foreign Ministry communique said that on that day "the police forces controlling the streets leading to the embassy and protecting the embassy were withdrawn, while TV trucks and reporters took position in front of the embassy."

"Firemen and police appeared

Senate Starts Action Tuesday On New GI Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate starts action Tuesday on a new GI bill similar to one that enabled hundreds of thousands of World War II veterans to get a college degree.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., chief sponsor of the bill, announced his veterans affairs subcommittee will begin hearings on the measure.

Known as the cold war veterans GI education bill, it calls for the government to pay for college educations for those with military service since the Korean War. Yarborough estimated there were 4.5 million such veterans.

The measure also would provide on-the-job vocational training benefits.

The bill calls for payments of $110 per month for single veterans in college. The payments range up to $165 a month for students with dependents. On-the-job trainees would receive between $95 and $130 a month, depending on the number of dependents they had. But their total earnings, with the pay for work, could not exceed $310 a month.

Yarborough said previous veterans education bills gave the nation 450,000 engineers, 180,000 doctors, nurses, and medical technicians, 230,000 teachers and almost 150,000 scientists.

Over 7,000 Homeless In Mississippi

By United Press International

Major floods in the Storm-ravaged South Saturday forced more than 7,000 persons from their homes, and a surprise snow-storm battered the Midwest and Ohio Valley, creating scores of emergencies in Indiana.

Hundreds of motorists were stranded on snow and drift-clogged Indiana highways. Travelers were advised to abandon their autos and seek shelter.

DISRUPTS POWER

The storm dumped up to 6 inches of snow over most of Indiana. Several cities declared states of emergency as power and communications were disrupted. Air fields were closed by the snow and drifts. Numerous sporting events, including sectional basketball tourney finals, were cancelled or postponed.

Mayor Charles Boswell of Indianapolis was one of several mayors who declared snow emergencies. Boswell ordered car owners to get their vehicles off main highways and streets, and appealed to motorists to stay at home and give snow removal crews a free hand in clearing the heavy snowfall.

The Indiana storm hit as several other sections of the nation battled floods, rain, tornadoes, dust and winds.

Wind gusts of up to 60 miles per hour slammed across the Rockies into the plains, reducing visibilities over Colorado, western Nebraska and northwest Kansas. The winds forced the Colorado Highway Patrol to ban movement of house trailers on highways.

At Portland, Maine, the U.S. Weather Bureau issued preliminary flash flood warnings when heavy rain and a warming trend

Castro Pickets March In Front Of White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 600 pro-Castro pickets staged a mass demonstration in a downpour in front of the White House Saturday, protesting this country's Cuba policy.

About 60 Washington policemen, reinforced by Secret Service agents and extra White House police, kept the sign-carrying, flag-waving marchers moving briskly, three or four abreast.

Extra precautions against violence were taken because a group of around 30 anti-Castro Cubans showed up to picket the picketers.

Deputy Police Chief George R. Wallrodt forbade the anti-Castro group coming closer than a block from the White House. They carried their signs on the sidewalk near the U.S. Treasury.

Wallrodt ordered pedestrian traffic detoured away from the White House side of Pennsylvania Avenue where the major body of demonstrators paraded in the rain.

The pro-Castro marchers were organized by the Fair Play for Cuba Committee. With headquarters in New York. This group is now being looked into by the Senate Internal Security subcommittee.

Many of the demonstrators arrived by bus and auto from New York, Philadelphia, Newark and Hoboken, N.J.

Several carried signs identifying themselves with Castro's "July 26 Movement" and "Avance" a youth group sympathetic to the Castro cause.

RUSTON — Retarded children who cannot adjust to regular public school classrooms or their local schools for the retarded are getting personal - interest education at a state institution near here.

The Children's House for Retarded Children, established a year and a half ago by the Louisiana legislature, and a branch of the state department of hospitals institution, is housed in the old TB hospital near Ruston.

It has been remodeled and redecorated to care for the 88 students who are enrolled there at this time. It is a new and refreshing use for the ramshackle old buildings that were originally built as a prisoner of war camp in the early '40s.

The 88 youngsters enrolled are a little over half the projected enrollment. An average of two new students are being added each week at the school.

SIMILAR TO OTHERS

The boarding school for retarded children is similar in many respects to the various retarded children classes in cities and parishes all over Louisiana, but it is designed to help the retarded child who does not respond to these classes through utilization of a controlled environment.

"As a result of their retardation and inability to keep up with their fellow youngsters, these children develop emotional manifestations that are difficult to overcome. By keeping the child here in a boarding school and by showing the child his cooperation is desired and appreciated, we are able to get through to him much better," says John R. Campbell, who has been superintendent of the Children's House since the fall of 1959.

Their work has been hampered by a lack of funds, and a skeleton staff that had to feel its way in a new field.

After a year and a half, Campbell said, teachers are finding it easier to deal with and understand the children because they have worked out a program which they understand themselves.

"This time last year we were pretty well going by the book, but had not had much experience with a large school of this type," Campbell said.

OBVIOUS CHANGE

The change over the past year is obvious at first glance. A year ago, many of the children appeared rebellious and did not seem to respond or to care about classes. Now the classes function about like the normal school classroom. There is still the rebellious new student occasionally, but he or she seems to adjust more quickly to the routine of Children's House.

Ever since Children's House opened, a small waiting list has existed. Campbell estimates that 120 children will be enrolled by the end of the present 10 - month term. The upper level retarded students are referred to Children's House from parents, teachers, physicians, social agencies such as welfare, Louisiana Evaluation Center and clinics.

After the retarded student reaches 16 at Children's House, the plan is to return him to his home community to be enrolled in vocational studies, Campbell said.

At the end of each year's session, the majority of the youngsters go home for two months vacation, but a number, who have environmental problems, remain at Children's House during vacation.

Classes were first held in the old chapel of the ramshackle hospital, but this past year, after the Legislature appropriated funds to them, one of the many wards was converted into 10 classrooms with modern facilities.

The teaching staff includes Mrs. Odessa Neely, principal; Mrs. Kathleen K. Rockhold, Mrs. Marie P. Meade, Mrs. Pearl B. Everist and Dr. Wharton Brown; Richard S. Meecham, part - time psychologist; Mrs. Louise Brooks, part time speech therapist; Dr. Edward G. Long, Monroe, psychiatrist under contract, and Dr. S. R. Jenkins, Winnfield, dentist. The teacher - assistant is Mrs. Erline Bryan.

A recent addition to the courses at Children's House is home economics, which is being taught to both boys and girls. Campbell said he was making plans now to put in a shop at the school to provide vocational training.

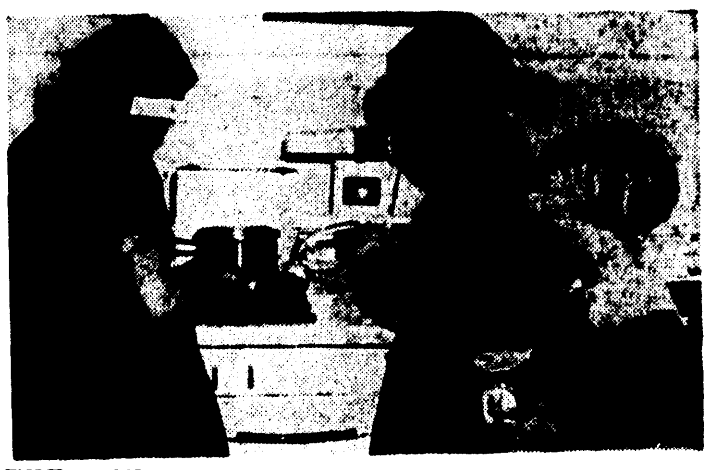
The children live 20 to a cottage, under constant supervision of an attendant. Each youngster is expected to carry his share of the work load involved with his personal care and the care of the cottage. Sweeping, bed - making, kitchen duty in the dining hall and outside yard work are assigned to the youngsters.

After school, the children take part in physical education activities for an hour and a half. Field trips, movies, television, and games occupy free time after hours and on weekends, Campbell related.

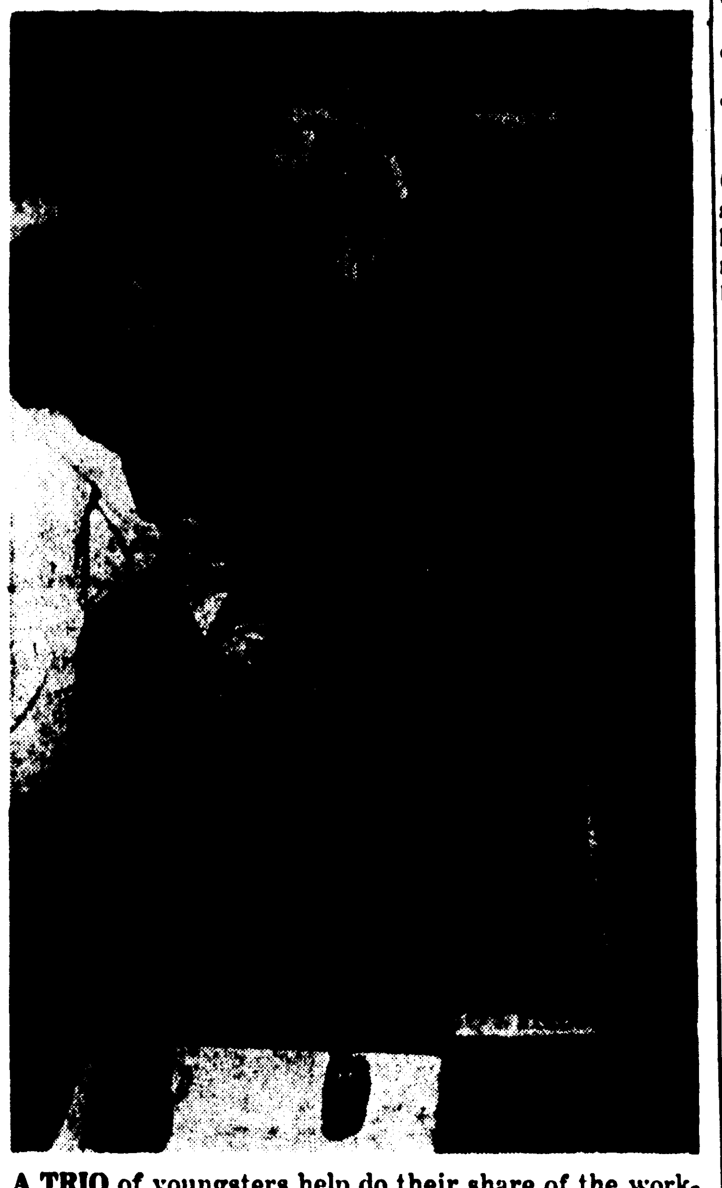
"Our goal is to bring every child up to his full potential," Campbell declared. "This can be done only if we provide a very wholesome student environment here at Children's House."

"Above all, the worker with the retarded child must have understanding tolerance and patience," he concluded.

A QUARTET of youngsters at Children's House draw KP duty as part of their outside-the-classroom activities.



THESE THREE youngsters are busy making French Toast in the recently added Home Economics course at Children's Home for Mentally Retarded.



A TRIO of youngsters help do their share of the workload at Children's House. One polishes his shoes, another makes his bed and a third sweeps the floors.

U.N. Shrugs Off Demands By Congolese

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — The United Nations shrugged off Saturday a Congolese government ultimatum demanding action against Lumumbist troops who traveled halfway across the Congo to take over the town of Luluabourg.

The coup brought Lumumbist forces to within 500 miles of Leopoldville and sent a sharp throb of alarm through officials in the regime of President Joseph Kasavubu. Capture of the Kasai Province capital gave Antoine Gizenga's leftist Stanleyville regime control of three of the Congo's six provincial capitals.

Deputy Premier Joseph Bolikango gave notice that unless the United Nations took steps within six hours to clear the intruders out of Luluabourg, the Leopoldville government would take "dispositions which the situation demands."

The United Nations said: "We don't know what action they want us to take or what action they want to do themselves."

A United Nations spokesman said the 2,000-man government garrison in the city, Luluabourg, welcomed with open arms the 300 rebels who journeyed 800 miles south from Gizenga's Oriental Province stronghold for their bloodless conquest.

Luluabourg is just 110 miles northeast of the Congo-Portuguese Angola border and if the rebels left behind them firm lines of supply and communications they have nearly cut the Congo in half.

Apparent defection of supposedly loyal troops to Gizenga, political heir to the slain ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba, sent a jolt of alarm through the Leopoldville government.

About 1,000 U.N. Ghanaian soldiers stationed in and around Luluabourg were under strict orders to prevent clashes between government and rebel troops. But the U.N. spokesman said, the Ghanaians had no grounds to prevent a peaceful "merger" of the two forces.

The government commander in the city, a Col. Mjoko, was given U.N. protection after the invasion, the spokesman said, and now is a "house guest" of a civilian U.N. administrator. Government and rebel troops took up joint duties at the airport and in the city.

Stevenson Says Soviets Trying To Destroy U.N.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U. S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson accused Russia Saturday of trying to "destroy" United Nations peace effort in the Congo as an opening wedge for "Soviet penetration of Central Africa."

He gave his views after a conference on the powderkeg Congo situation with Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

Stevenson, who heads the United States U. N. delegation, said the effectiveness of the U. N. is "obstacle" to a Red drive to win domination in the turbulent ... area.

The Stevenson-Rusk discussion was not confined entirely to the Congo. Stevenson said they also had a general review of other matters. The assistant secretary of state for Far East affairs, J. Graham Parsons, joined them briefly to talk about troublesome Laos.

U.S. SUPREME COURT

Birth Control Law Arguments Slated

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A triple attack on Connecticut's 1879 birth control law by a married couple, a doctor and a wife comes up for argument Monday in the Supreme Court.

The law makes it a crime for anyone to use "any drug, medicinal article or instrument for the purpose of preventing conception." A doctor who prescribes a contraceptive may be prosecuted as if he himself were the offender.

Persons found to have violated that law are subject to a jail term of at least 60 days to a year and a fine of not less than $50, or both.

The court has set aside three hours to hear complaints that Connecticut is offending the Constitution by depriving the doctor and his patients of their "life, liberty or property" without the "due process of law" guaranteed in the 14th Amendment.

The physician is Dr. C. Lee Buxton, a gynecologist and chairman of the department of obstetrics at Yale University school of medicine. Buxton told the high court that the "best and safest treatment" for his two women patients is a device to prevent future pregnancies. If he gives such advice however, he will be prosecuted.

The wife, referred to as "Mrs. Jane Doe," survived a pregnancy with a heart condition paralysis of kidney damage, marked impairment of speech, and serious emotional instability. Buxton said her life would be endangered by another pregnancy.

The couple, "Paul and Pauline Poe," have had three children with congenital abnormalities. All died. Another pregnancy would be "extremely disturbing to the physical and mental health of both parents," it was said.

Buxton said he, himself, has a "property right" in his profession.

"When the state unreasonably deprives him of any valuable attribute of his property, it does so without due process of law," the doctor's brief said.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Raymond J. Cannon of Harford will argue that the law is a proper exercise of the state's police power. Cannon told the court in his brief that the Connecticut Supreme Court of Errors had upheld the law twice before on this ground.

"Since marriage so affects the morals and civilization of a people," the brief said, "its control and regulation is a matter of domestic concern within each state. The rights and obligations of marriage are over and above the parties thmeselves and are fixed by society in accordance with the natural law."

Vets And Widows May Lose Some Pension Checks

Unless some Ouachita Parish war veterans and widows act quickly, they stand to lose out on their pension checks next week.

H. B. McClendon, veterans affairs service officer, has revealed that more than 2,000 Louisiana residents who receive pension checks from the Veterans Administration have not filled out Income Questionnaire cards for this year.

"Those who failed to return the card will not receive a check for February or later months unless they furnish their income reports to the VA," McClendon said.

Area residents may contact him at Room 204, Ouachita courthouse, to take steps to keep their checks coming.

"All VA pensioners must furnish income reports to the VA during January each year," he continues.

The service officer "urges all veterans and widows who have not returned their income questionnaires to contact his office for assistance in making an income report to the VA."

42 Stations Set To Sell Shell Oil

A new face in this area will be seen March 1 with the opening in Monroe - West Monroe trading area of 42 service stations handling Shell Oil Company products.

Many Twin City residents remember Shell as an old friend, as the products were available in northeast Louisiana from 1920 until shortly before World War II; but, if the brand is new to some, the company certainly is no stranger to most of the State. Shell is the second largest producer of oil in Louisiana and ranks first in the production of crude in the coastal waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

Shell opened a district production office in Monroe during 1944 and drilled wells in the Vixen Field, Caldwell Parish, and the Chatham Field of Jackson Parish. In 1947, Shell discovered the Ora Field in Union Parish near Farmerville. Company headquarters were moved to the Henican Building on South Grand Street and 30 families were transferred into Monroe.

Shell came to Louisiana in 1916 when a portion of the Good Hope Plantation at Sellers, Louisiana, 24 miles up the Mississippi River from New Orleans, was bought as a depot for products being shipped to allied forces in Europe fighting the First World War. In 1920, that site became the New Orleans Refining Company, and later the Sellers community adopted the initials of the refinery to call itself Norco. The Norco Refinery now handles in excess of 100,000 barrels of oil daily. The Refinery was presented the National Security Award in 1944 for having developed cumene which was responsible for an increase of 22 per cent in the production of 100-octane gasoline during the crucial war years of 1942-43.

Shell's operations in Louisiana include every major division of the oil business: exploration and production, refining, pipelining, marketing chemicals and petrochemicals. Of the 39,000 employes there are 4216 in Louisiana. The approximate payroll is $35,000,000.

Although the first oil in Louisiana was discovered September 21, 1901, at the Evangeline community near Jennings, it was not until 1916 that the Homer Field in Claiborne Parish brought major production to the State. Shell established its first production in Louisiana during 1921-22 in the Haynesville Field of Claiborne Parish, but not until 1929 did the company bring in major fields at Black Bayou in Cameron Parish and White Castle in Iberville Parish. The company now has interest in 116 La. fields and produced a total of 43,625,000 barrels of oil in 1960.

Shell service stations appeared on Louisiana highways in 1929 when the Southern Marketing Division was established in New Orleans to handle the sale of Shell products in the Deep South. The division was discontinued in 1940 and marketing headquarters moved to Atlanta, Ga., but was re-established in New Orleans in 1953. There are now more than 480 Shell stations throughout Louisiana operated by independent businessmen.

In 1931, operations began at the Iowa Field in Calcasieu - Jefferson Davis Parishes where in late 1932 the Schlumberger well logging method first was used in the United States. Results were so successful that the method has been adopted by all oil companies.

Along with its southern activity, Shell maintained an active interest in north Louisiana and southern Arkansas beginning with the El Dorado Field in 1920 and Smackover in 1922.

Exploration work in north Louisiana also gave the company interest in the Spider and Logansport Fields, DeSoto Parish; Bernice Field, Union Parish; Carterville Field, Webster Parish; Enterprise Field, Catahoula Parish, and the Unionville Field, Lincoln Parish.

Weeks Island Field in Iberia Parish, discovered by Shell in 1945, for many years held the world's depth record for producing oil wells. Many of the wells in the field flow from below 14,000 feet. The company's third cycling and processing plant in the nation for natural gasoline now operates in the field.

Shell took the plunge offshore in 1948 at Main Pass Block 69, and in 1950 brought in South Pass Block 24, the biggest oil field in the State. Last year the field, which is embraced by the arms of land forming South and Southwest passes of the Mississippi River, produced 8,910,000 barrels of oil and 11,435,934,000 cubic feet of natural gas.

Shell's major offshore fields now extend from West Cameron on the Texas - Louisiana border to South Pass Block 6 on the eastern edge of the Mississippi's mouth. Eugene Island off St. Mary Parish, and Ship Shoal off Terrebonne Parish hold rich promise for future development.

Shell's most recent north Louisiana success was the Westwood Field in Tensas Parish discovered in 1958. Shell now has four wells in the field.

Plans are underway to drill 30 wells on an undeveloped flank of the Sligo Field in Caddo Parish. The field borders Barksdale Air Force Base and the new acreage lies within the base reserve. Shell acquired two tracts in the field at a lease sale held by the Federal Government late in 1960.

Distribution of Shell products in the Monroe - West Monroe area is the direct concern of the Kellogg Oil Company, Monroe, and its president and general manager, J. W. Moore. Their stations are being painted the familiar red and yellow Shell colors and will be supplying Shell products on March 1.

Shell Pipe Line Corporation operates the newly constructed 120-mile Delta Pipe Line which extends from the mouth of the Mississippi River to Shell's Norco Refinery. Shell Pipe Line also operates a Products Pipe Line from the Refinery to Baton Rouge.

Shell Chemical Corporation's newest plant, the Norco Plant, is now undergoing its third expansion program. Major products consist of allyl chloride, chlorohydrins, hydrogen peroxide, secondary butyl alcohol, and other by-products.

KELLOGG OIL Company's new officers discuss plans for the corporation's coming year as they take over the distributorship of Shell Oil Company in this area. Left to right, the officers are Thomas W. Leigh, secretary and attorney; James W. Moore, president and general manager; and Walter W. Kellogg, vice president.

IN NORTH LOUISIANA

Kellogg Oil To Assume Shell Distributorship

Kellogg Oil Co. here, one of the largest petroleum distributors in north Louisiana, takes over the distribution of Shell Oil products effective March 1.

The Kellogg company has moved from its West Monroe locaion to new quarters at 18th and Breard streets in Monroe, where a bulk plant is also located.

Another bulk plant is in operaion at Mangham, with Wilbur Thames as commission agent. This plant serves southern Richland Parish and Franklin Parish.

At Delhi, a bulk plant is going up for Shell distribution east of Monroe, and officials have just signed for a Shell Service Station to be built in conjunction with the Holiday Motel at Tallulah.

James Moore, president and general manager of Kellogg Oil, pointed out that there was a gap in this area not serviced by Shell. He explained that under this new set-up, which closely follows Highway 80 and I-20 routes, Shell products will be available across the state.

Shell gasoline is pumped through the Texas Eastern pipeline out of Houston, Tex., and taken from the pipeline terminal in Arcadia for this area.

Motor oils and other lubricants come from the Shell refinery in New Orleans.

Moore noted that Shell is the largest international oil company in the world, with 76 operating companies.

"Shell is very civic-minded," he continued. "Their budget calls for $1,578,000 to go this year for educational and welfare purposes."

Continuing, Moore said that Monroe Spaght, president of Shell, believes industry has a duty to assist society.

Last month, Shell unfolded plans to send top - level high school teachers back to college for a year to learn the modern curricula in mathematics and science.

"Shell hopes to form a nucleus of teachers to improve high school studies," Moore added.

This is the first corporation in the world with this approach, he said.

Shell also has the largest offshore drilling operations of any major company in Louisiana, Moore said.

Production fields include Ora field in Union Parish; Vixen field in Caldwell Parish, and Chatham field in Jackson Parish.

In Louisiana, Shell has one of the largest refineries operating in the country. This is Norco, near New Orleans, where over 100,000 barrels of oil are handled daily.

Kellogg Oil Co. officials, in addition to Moore, include Walter Kellogg, vice president and Thomas Leigh, secretary.

WITH PROPER VIEWS

GOP Chairman Seeks Successor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican National Chairman Thruston B. Morton is beating the bushes in search of a successor acceptable to three different points of view in his party.

Morton said Saturday he isn't having much luck in finding a new chairman who would be looked upon favorably by former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

The three, all potential 1964 presidential aspirants, don't always agree on the course their party should follow.

Morton, who promised the national committee in January that he would stay on as chairman during the present session of congress, has told friends in the Kentucky racing jargon he often uses that he is getting "track sore" in his job.

As national chairman he traveled almost countless miles and made almost countless speeches in the preliminaries and during the presidential campaign last year.

Since then he has been on the go constantly trying to pump new life into a party organization that was pretty generally discouraged by Nixon's defeat at the hands of President Kennedy.

Thus far most of the speculation about a possible successor for Morton has centered on the names of Ohio State Chairman Ray Bliss and Rep. William E. Miller of New York, who heads the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee.

Bliss is currently engaged in efforts by the national committee to find out why Nixon lost most of the big cities in last year's presidential race. While he probably would be acceptable to all factions, Bliss has indicated some reluctance about taking on the national chairmanship.

Miller is being boomed by such Republicans as Sen Styles Bridges, R-N.H., who say he did a good job helping party members with election to the House last year.

Burglars Strike Monroe Home; Property Stolen

Burglars struck a home on the northside of Monroe Friday night, netting a haul of approximately $1,000 worth of property.

Monroe police said yesterday that the home of Ralph C. Brice, well - known businessman, was robbed of some clothing and jewelery. The house, on 1313 Forsythe Avenue, was said to have been entered through a window on the rear side.

A screen was removed from the window, which is operated by a winding device, then the latches were broken. The burglar or burglars then climed through.

Sit-In Protests Staged In Vain

By United Press International

Negro demonstrators staged unsuccessful segregation protests at theatres, restaurants and drug stores in Nashville, Tenn., and Tallahassee, Fla., Saturday.

Five chain stores were picketed in Tallahassee, but police were summoned to one of the stores and the Negroes quietly ended the demonstration.

At each store picketed, lunch counters were closed without serving the Negroes.

Motor oils and other lubricants come from the Shell refinery in New Orleans.

Moore noted that Shell is the largest international oil company in the world, with 76 operating companies.

"Shell is very civic-minded," he continued. "Their budget calls for $1,578,000 to go this year for educational and welfare purposes."

Continuing, Moore said that Monroe Spaght, president of Shell, believes industry has a duty to assist society.

Last month, Shell unfolded plans to send top - level high school teachers back to college for a year to learn the modern curricula in mathematics and science.

"Shell hopes to form a nucleus of teachers to improve high school studies," Moore added.

This is the first corporation in the world with this approach, he said.

Shell also has the largest offshore drilling operations of any major company in Louisiana, Moore said.

Production fields include Ora field in Union Parish; Vixen field in Caldwell Parish, and Chatham field in Jackson Parish.

In Louisiana, Shell has one of the largest refineries operating in the country. This is Norco, near New Orleans, where over 100,000 barrels of oil are handled daily.

Kellogg Oil Co. officials, in addition to Moore, include Walter Kellogg, vice president and Thomas Leigh, secretary.

Burglars Strike Monroe Home; Property Stolen

Burglars struck a home on the northside of Monroe Friday night, netting a haul of approximately $1,000 worth of property.

Monroe police said yesterday that the home of Ralph C. Brice, well - known businessman, was robbed of some clothing and jewelery. The house, on 1313 Forsythe Avenue, was said to have been entered through a window on the rear side.

A screen was removed from the window, which is operated by a winding device, then the latches were broken. The burglar or burglars then climed through.

Sit-In Protests Staged In Vain

By United Press International

Negro demonstrators staged unsuccessful segregation protests at theatres, restaurants and drug stores in Nashville, Tenn., and Tallahassee, Fla., Saturday.

Five chain stores were picketed in Tallahassee, but police were summoned to one of the stores and the Negroes quietly ended the demonstration.

At each store picketed, lunch counters were closed without serving the Negroes.

WITH PROPER VIEWS

GOP Chairman Seeks Successor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican National Chairman Thruston B. Morton is beating the bushes in search of a successor acceptable to three different points of view in his party.

Morton said Saturday he isn't having much luck in finding a new chairman who would be looked upon favorably by former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

The three, all potential 1964 presidential aspirants, don't always agree on the course their party should follow.

Morton, who promised the national committee in January that he would stay on as chairman during the present session of congress, has told friends in the Kentucky racing jargon he often uses that he is getting "track sore" in his job.

As national chairman he traveled almost countless miles and made almost countless speeches in the preliminaries and during the presidential campaign last year.

Since then he has been on the go constantly trying to pump new life into a party organization that was pretty generally discouraged by Nixon's defeat at the hands of President Kennedy.

Thus far most of the speculation about a possible successor for Morton has centered on the names of Ohio State Chairman Ray Bliss and Rep. William E. Miller of New York, who heads the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee.

Bliss is currently engaged in efforts by the national committee to find out why Nixon lost most of the big cities in last year's presidential race. While he probably would be acceptable to all factions, Bliss has indicated some reluctance about taking on the national chairmanship.

Miller is being boomed by such Republicans as Sen Styles Bridges, R-N.H., who say he did a good job helping party members with election to the House last year.

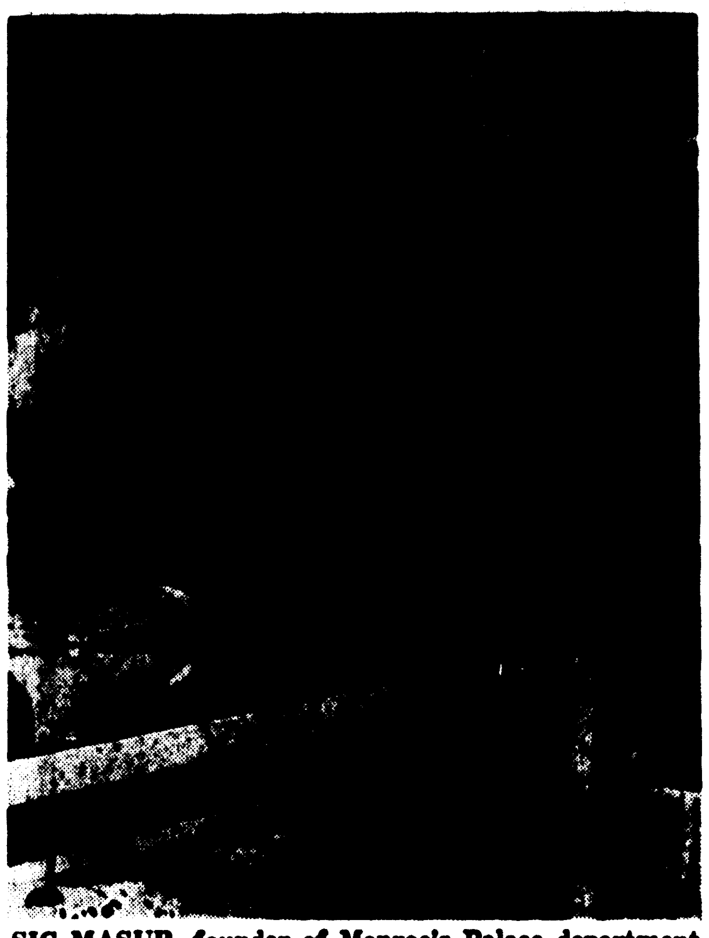
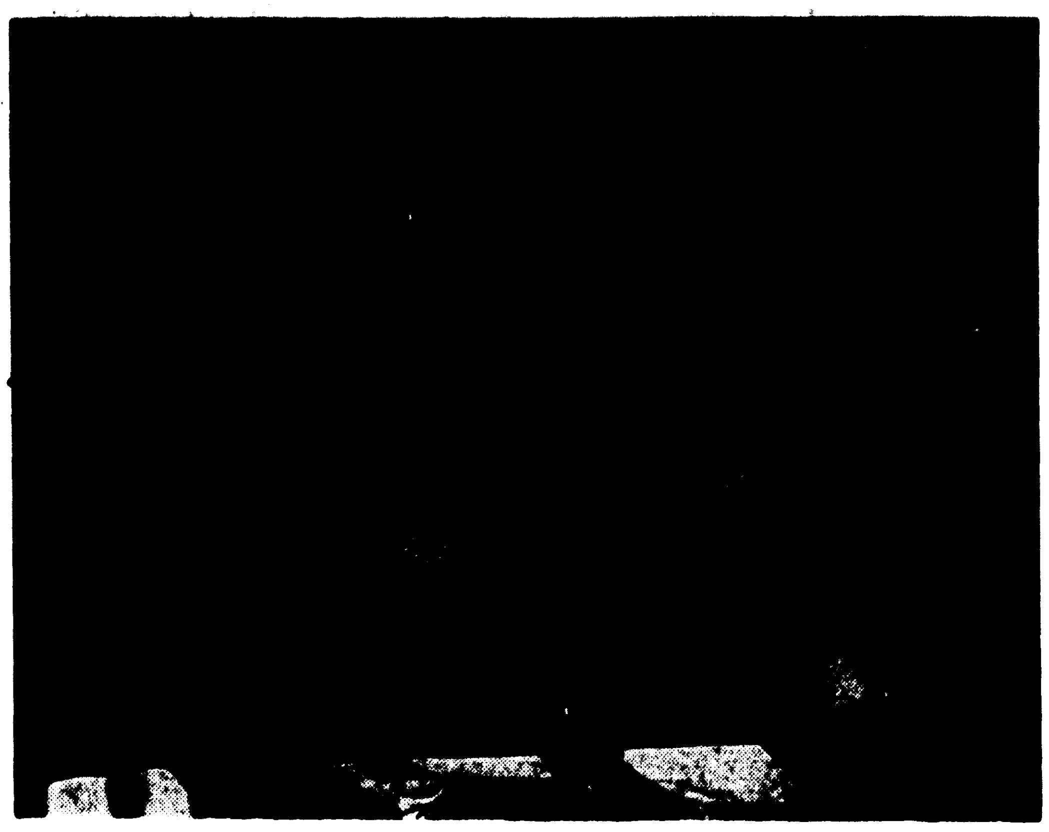
LOOKING OVER final plans for the huge 58th anniversary sale of the Palace in downtown Monroe are officials of the store, Grady Merriman, advertising manager, Sylvin Masur, vice president, Jack Masur, president, and Milton Gorn, secretary-treasurer. The three-day sale, which started Saturday and runs Monday and Tuesday, has been in planning since last November, Merriman said, and will feature specially selected merchandise from around the world. (Staff Photo by John Fogleman)



SIG MASUR, founder of Monroe's Palace department store is shown above at one stage in the firm's history. Opened in 1903, as a simple one-story structure, the Palace is celebrating its 58th birthday with a three-day sale. The store now operates out of six-story quarters with double the front footage it began with.



PALACE BUYERS, enjoying a brief respite prior to the grand opening Saturday of the store's gigantic 58th anniversary sale, spend the time to look over the final program for the event. These ladies, representing various departments at the Palace at major wholesale marketing centers about the country, have been planning and stocking for the sale since November of last year. The buyers and their areas of specialty are, sitting, Miss Mary O'Kelly, gifts; Mrs. Faye Heard, home furnishings; Mrs. Kathryn Wyatt, better ready-to-wear; Mrs. Ada Edelmann, fabrics; and, standing, Miss Beatrice Kornmann, linens and hosiery; Mrs. Emma Rosebaum, children's wear; and, Mrs. Vallye Willis, cosmetics. VISION OF THE FUTURE

Department Store Grew From Dream Of Founder

The young man was short on money and long on ideas. He stood in front of the narrow DeSiard Street building on a wintry day, latched onto one of his ideas, and began to expand it.

Thinking of the future, when the mud and brick of DeSiard Street would change to smooth pavement and the 7,000 population of this river town would grow to many more thousands, Sig Masur appraised the building and decided he would build the finest store in Ouachita Parish.

Although a man of vision, it is doubtful if he could then accurately measure the potentialities of his venture.

If he had taken enough time for more daydreaming, he might have envisioned the six floors of merchandise and the staff of dozens off sales persons his store was to later become.

KEEPING PACE

Now, 58 years later, Sig Masur's Palace continues as it has for years to maintain his idea of keeping pace with the nation's clothing fashions.

But it took hard work.

The 22 - year - old Sig, in 1903, knew that apparel shops, even those catering to the well - to-do, didn't boast a wide variety of merchandise, and that women wore skirts and shirt waists, and that the phrase "ready - to - wear" hadn't been coined.

He knew, too, that a man could buy a pair of W. L. Douglas shoes, the market's finest, for $5, and that women's best shoes cost about $3.50 a pair — and that money to buy them was scarce.

The young "drummer" also knew his plan and went to work.

Monroe had apparel shops, built by merchants with many years experience who knew the business. They didn't see much future for the young man who came to America from Germany when he was seven, and knew nothing of the trade except what little he had picked up from shop - to-shop "drumming."

What he lacked in knowledge of merchandising, though, he made up with an inborn genius for merchandising and the obsesion with an ambition to be a leader among his competitors.

MODEST START

The Palace's beginning was modest. It was a one - story building, with only three sales persons, including Sig. His first clerks were Misses Minnie Starts and Mary Flewellen, to whom Sig Masur gave credit for his store's early success.

Louis Msur, Sr., Sig's brother who died in 1940, later joined the Palace and established a shoe department offering customers the smartest lines available and, according to Sig, became the largest and best of its kind in the area.

Louis, too, was a natural merchandiser, devoted to the business, and his efforts also added greatly to the store's success.

Sig Masur's Palace featured women's hats in a day when $20 to $25 would buy the best on the market, and so popular were his brands that one season his stock was entirely depleted, and Mary O'Kelly said, "My sister Jeannie and I had to 'trim's some at the last minute in order to have some to show at all."

Long hours and hard work characterized the early efforts of Sig Masur. He was busy in his store by daybreak and labored until the late night hours. He stayed with his business constantly, except one exception: when a trip to market was made, Sig made it.

Usually he bought his merchandise in St. Louis and the limit of his capital forced him to select carefully.

The advent of the women's suit revolutionized the apparel market around 1908 and Sig Masur promptly established a ready -to-wear department in his determination to keep apace with fashion trends.

An even greater event occurred to Sig that year, when he married Beatrice Son, the custom shirt maker's daughter whom he met in New Orleans on a shopping tour.

And by this time Sig was shopping the New York market for fashions with which he began to set the pace for stylish apparel in the Twin Cities.

Sig Masur owned about the second car or "horseless carriage" in Monroe, at a time when a nag named "Charlie" familiarly pulled a carriage up to his store, bringing the newest in ready -to-wear styles.

The Masur's first child, a boy they named Sylvian, was born in 1909. And by this time the store was beginning to expand in stride, and a balcony had been added for the new ready - to - wear department.

PAYING OFF

High quality merchandise and courteous service now were paying off in bigger dividends. In 1914, Sig Masur erected his own building, although well meaning friends warned him he was trying to expand to rapidly.

A second son, Jack, was born in 1913, and a daughter, Bertha Marie and later Mrs. Milton A. Gorn, was born in 1916.

The Palace was firmly established by this time as a leading fashion center of the state, although its growth actually had just begun.

In 1916, only two years after constructing his first building, Sig Masur was compelled to construct a second two - story building joining with the other.

He had been in business only 15 years and was 37 years old, but was already regarded with esteem and as an astute businessman by New York marketeers.

In 1924, the 7,000 city population had doubled to 14,500 and the area was feverish with developments in the natural gas fields, with Sig Masur still determined to keep ahead of the local trends.

He found demands on his business were more than it could satisfy in the space it had. So, he built a handsome six - story building that year and the business continued to flourish until in 1940, it demanded that he build an annex building and store room, which he erected on Harrison St.

Today, the first dreams Sig Masur had of the Palace in 1903 are far outmoded and his "finest store" is said to be "unique in a town the size of Monroe."

Palace Sale Centers On Store Buyers

Monroe's Palace department store is in the midst of a gigantic 58th anniversary celebration, Jack Masur, president, said yesterday, and he urged the public to come in and take advantage of outstanding values to be found throughout the store.

Set into motion yesterday, the firm's three-day birthday sale is scheduled to run through Tuesday, he said, and "features a fantastic array of merchandise from around the world, especially selected for the event, selling at ridiculously low prices."

Masur explained that the values have been made possible through special volume purchases and the close cooperation of long-time suppliers of the Palace.

"Because of our long and satisfactory business relationship with these volume dealers," he said, "they are helping us to celebrate our birthday in Monroe by allowing us to give presents to our customers, in the form of substantial savings on their purchases, as much as 25 to 30 per cent on some items."

However, he stressed the sale would include on Tuesday, with merchandise reverting to regular prices Wednesday morning.

Discussing aspects of the sale, Masur centered praise on the store's buyers, its representatives in the major wholesale marketing centers of the country, who, he pointed out, have been preparing and stocking for the anniversary since November of last year.

"Perhaps second in importance only to an enthusiastic and satisfied clientele," he said, "the backbone of any retail mrechandising outlet, such as the Palace, is a discriminating staff of buyers.

"Alert and sensitive to the needs, wishes, shadings of taste and preferences of a clientele, and responsive for their fulfillment within a sound cost-price structure, the buyer, literally, can make or break the success of an establishment. His or her selections must be made thoughtfully and prudently, as they are final. We provide them with a specified amount of money to spend and they are on their own.

"In themselves, the selections they make must mirror the demand in the particular market of their consumption, and in the prices on them, they must accurately reflect the buying habits of the consumers they service."

If they fail to do these things, he indicated, any company will experience a financial pinch in short order, due to mounting inventories and stock left to gather dust on its shelves.

Masur identified the Palace buyers and the departments they represent as: Mary O'Kelly, gifts and silver; Vallye Willis, cosmetics; Geraldine Hand, jewelry, handkerchiefs and scarves; Anita Causey, handbags and umbrellas; Christine Economos, gloves; Eugene Cahn, stationery; Bea Kornman, hosiery and linens; Katherine Wyatt, ladies better ready to wear and lingerie; Allene Hornbeak, sportswear; Kate Elliott, corsets; Ada M. Edelman, piece goods and notions; Ruby Wood, ladies budget ready to wear and lingerie; Emma Rosenbaum, girls' and boys' clothing; Faye Heard, draperies and home furnishings; Evelyn Medaries, housewares; and Allan Kutner, men's wear.

Principal market centers visited by Palace buyers are at New York and Dallas. Normally, buyers make from two to four trips to these areas annually.

These buyers have assembled on every floor, Masur asserted, one of the finest displays of specials ever exhibited at the Palace.

On the first floor, Mrs. Vallye Willis, of cosmetics, yesterday was recommending handsomely decorated lotion dispensers, and several varieties of imported natural bristle brushes, for men or women, while nearby Miss Mary O'Kelly, in gifts and silver, was showing open lot groups of Noritake china and fine bone china cups and saucers. Elsewhere on the first floor, Beatrice Kornman was featuring bathroom ensemble and pure linen table cloths and napkins in a choice of six colors.

In ladies' better ready to wear and lingerie on the second floor, Mrs. Katherine Wyatt said that popular item so far in the sale have been a special group of marked-down Fall dresses, and greatly - reduced sleep coats and slips.

Mrs. Ada M. Edelman reported good demand for a sale - priced fine Krefeld imported damask weave cotton and drip dry fabric, in piece goods and notions on the third floor. She pointed out that its availability in both solids and prints has contributed to its popularity. Also selling well, she said, was a yarn-dyed imported silk organza material and Tonkin rayon and silk fabrics.

Highlighting the fourth floor display in ladies budget ready to wear and lingerie, are nylon, dacron and cotton batiste slips and special groups of sleepwear, according to Mrs. Ruby Wood.

Mrs. Emma Rosenbaum, in charge of girls' and boys' clothing on the fifth and sixth floors, respectivley, emphasized especially good buys in boys short sleeve knit polo shirts and stretch socks, and, for the girls, selected groups of cotton skirts and various sportswear.

In the Palace Annex, Mrs. Faye Heard, of the draperies and home furnishings department, was recommending outstanding values to her customers in the form of white European goose-down pillows, treated with chlorophyll and guaranteed odorless. In addition, she emphasized special lots of cotton fabrics, ideal for use in slip covers or draw drapes, and available in stripes, provincial prints or contemporary patterns.

He knew, too, that a man could buy a pair of W. L. Douglas shoes, the market's finest, for $5, and that women's best shoes cost about $3.50 a pair — and that money to buy them was scarce.

The young "drummer" also knew his plan and went to work.

Monroe had apparel shops, built by merchants with many years experience who knew the business. They didn't see much future for the young man who came to America from Germany when he was seven, and knew nothing of the trade except what little he had picked up from shop - to-shop "drumming."

What he lacked in knowledge of merchandising, though, he made up with an inborn genius for merchandising and the obsesion with an ambition to be a leader among his competitors.

MODEST START

The Palace's beginning was modest. It was a one - story building, with only three sales persons, including Sig. His first clerks were Misses Minnie Starts and Mary Flewellen, to whom Sig Masur gave credit for his store's early success.

Louis Msur, Sr., Sig's brother who died in 1940, later joined the Palace and established a shoe department offering customers the smartest lines available and, according to Sig, became the largest and best of its kind in the area.

Louis, too, was a natural merchandiser, devoted to the business, and his efforts also added greatly to the store's success.

Sig Masur's Palace featured women's hats in a day when $20 to $25 would buy the best on the market, and so popular were his brands that one season his stock was entirely depleted, and Mary O'Kelly said, "My sister Jeannie and I had to 'trim's some at the last minute in order to have some to show at all."

Long hours and hard work characterized the early efforts of Sig Masur. He was busy in his store by daybreak and labored until the late night hours. He stayed with his business constantly, except one exception: when a trip to market was made, Sig made it.

Usually he bought his merchandise in St. Louis and the limit of his capital forced him to select carefully.

The advent of the women's suit revolutionized the apparel market around 1908 and Sig Masur promptly established a ready -to-wear department in his determination to keep apace with fashion trends.

An even greater event occurred to Sig that year, when he married Beatrice Son, the custom shirt maker's daughter whom he met in New Orleans on a shopping tour.

And by this time Sig was shopping the New York market for fashions with which he began to set the pace for stylish apparel in the Twin Cities.

Sig Masur owned about the second car or "horseless carriage" in Monroe, at a time when a nag named "Charlie" familiarly pulled a carriage up to his store, bringing the newest in ready -to-wear styles.

The Masur's first child, a boy they named Sylvian, was born in 1909. And by this time the store was beginning to expand in stride, and a balcony had been added for the new ready - to - wear department.

PAYING OFF

High quality merchandise and courteous service now were paying off in bigger dividends. In 1914, Sig Masur erected his own building, although well meaning friends warned him he was trying to expand to rapidly.

A second son, Jack, was born in 1913, and a daughter, Bertha Marie and later Mrs. Milton A. Gorn, was born in 1916.

The Palace was firmly established by this time as a leading fashion center of the state, although its growth actually had just begun.

In 1916, only two years after constructing his first building, Sig Masur was compelled to construct a second two - story building joining with the other.

He had been in business only 15 years and was 37 years old, but was already regarded with esteem and as an astute businessman by New York marketeers.

In 1924, the 7,000 city population had doubled to 14,500 and the area was feverish with developments in the natural gas fields, with Sig Masur still determined to keep ahead of the local trends.

He found demands on his business were more than it could satisfy in the space it had. So, he built a handsome six - story building that year and the business continued to flourish until in 1940, it demanded that he build an annex building and store room, which he erected on Harrison St.

Today, the first dreams Sig Masur had of the Palace in 1903 are far outmoded and his "finest store" is said to be "unique in a town the size of Monroe."

Palace Sale Centers On Store Buyers

Monroe's Palace department store is in the midst of a gigantic 58th anniversary celebration, Jack Masur, president, said yesterday, and he urged the public to come in and take advantage of outstanding values to be found throughout the store.

Set into motion yesterday, the firm's three-day birthday sale is scheduled to run through Tuesday, he said, and "features a fantastic array of merchandise from around the world, especially selected for the event, selling at ridiculously low prices."

Masur explained that the values have been made possible through special volume purchases and the close cooperation of long-time suppliers of the Palace.

"Because of our long and satisfactory business relationship with these volume dealers," he said, "they are helping us to celebrate our birthday in Monroe by allowing us to give presents to our customers, in the form of substantial savings on their purchases, as much as 25 to 30 per cent on some items."

However, he stressed the sale would include on Tuesday, with merchandise reverting to regular prices Wednesday morning.

Discussing aspects of the sale, Masur centered praise on the store's buyers, its representatives in the major wholesale marketing centers of the country, who, he pointed out, have been preparing and stocking for the anniversary since November of last year.

"Perhaps second in importance only to an enthusiastic and satisfied clientele," he said, "the backbone of any retail mrechandising outlet, such as the Palace, is a discriminating staff of buyers.

"Alert and sensitive to the needs, wishes, shadings of taste and preferences of a clientele, and responsive for their fulfillment within a sound cost-price structure, the buyer, literally, can make or break the success of an establishment. His or her selections must be made thoughtfully and prudently, as they are final. We provide them with a specified amount of money to spend and they are on their own.

"In themselves, the selections they make must mirror the demand in the particular market of their consumption, and in the prices on them, they must accurately reflect the buying habits of the consumers they service."

If they fail to do these things, he indicated, any company will experience a financial pinch in short order, due to mounting inventories and stock left to gather dust on its shelves.

Masur identified the Palace buyers and the departments they represent as: Mary O'Kelly, gifts and silver; Vallye Willis, cosmetics; Geraldine Hand, jewelry, handkerchiefs and scarves; Anita Causey, handbags and umbrellas; Christine Economos, gloves; Eugene Cahn, stationery; Bea Kornman, hosiery and linens; Katherine Wyatt, ladies better ready to wear and lingerie; Allene Hornbeak, sportswear; Kate Elliott, corsets; Ada M. Edelman, piece goods and notions; Ruby Wood, ladies budget ready to wear and lingerie; Emma Rosenbaum, girls' and boys' clothing; Faye Heard, draperies and home furnishings: Evelyn Medaries, housewares; and Allan Kutner, men's wear.

Principal market centers visited by Palace buyers are at New York and Dallas. Normally, buyers make from two to four trips to these areas annually.

These buyers have assembled on every floor, Masur asserted, one of the finest displays of specials ever exhibited at the Palace.

On the first floor, Mrs. Vallye Willis, of cosmetics, yesterday was recommending handsomely decorated lotion dispensers, and several varieties of imported natural bristle brushes, for men or women, while nearby Miss Mary O'Kelly, in gifts and silver, was showing open lot groups of Noritake china and fine bone china cups and saucers. Elsewhere on the first floor, Beatrice Kornman was featuring bathroom ensemble and pure linen table cloths and napkins in a choice of six colors.

In ladies' better ready to wear and lingerie on the second floor, Mrs. Katherine Wyatt said that popular item so far in the sale have been a special group of marked-down Fall dresses, and greatly - reduced sleep coats and slips.

Mrs. Ada M. Edelman reported good demand for a sale - priced fine Krefeld imported damask weave cotton and drip dry fabric, in piece goods and notions on the third floor. She pointed out that its availability in both solids and prints has contributed to its popularity. Also selling well, she said, was a yarn-dyed imported silk organza material and Tonkin rayon and silk fabrics.

Highlighting the fourth floor display in ladies budget ready to wear and lingerie, are nylon, dacron and cotton batiste slips and special groups of sleepwear, according to Mrs. Ruby Wood.

Mrs. Emma Rosenbaum, in charge of girls' and boys' clothing on the fifth and sixth floors, respectivley, emphasized especially good buys in boys short sleeve knit polo shirts and stretch socks, and, for the girls, selected groups of cotton skirts and various sportswear.

In the Palace Annex, Mrs. Faye Heard, of the draperies and home furnishings department, was recommending outstanding values to her customers in the form of white European goosedown pillows, treated with chlorophyll and guaranteed odorless. In addition, she emphasized special lots of cotton fabrics, ideal for use in slip covers or draw drapes, and available in stripes, provincial prints or contemporary patterns.

Research In Fallout Is LSU Project

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Research that may save the lives of countless families in southern Louisiana — and other coastal regions — from deadly fallout in the event of a nuclear attack is now in progress in the Louisiana State University architecture department.

The department has been commissioned by the national Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization to design and construct a fallout shelter suited to the climate and soil conditions of the Gulf Coast region.

Supported by a $15,000 grant, the project calls for a single-family fallout shelter to be constructed above ground. In charge of the preliminary research, planning and construction of the shelter is Professor O. J. Baker, head of the LSU architecture department.

Baker and a team of architecture faculty members will seek to design a shelter which not only gives protection from nuclear fallout but fulfills useful everyday functions when not needed as a refuge. The project is scheduled for completion in September.

LSU is one of four educational institutions in the country assigned to research on various types of fallout shelters, Baker reported. "The government has great interest in this project," he said.

Considerable general research has been done on fallout shelters, Baker said, but never for the specific conditions which prevail in the Gulf Coast region — humidity, high temperatures, heavy rainfall, and unique soil conditions.

The LSU researchers will begin their project with a study of other types of fallout shelters which have been perfected and built, then get down to the grim business of adapting such shelters to "home use."

Farmers Attend Carroll Meet

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — The unplanted acreage in Louisiana in 1961 will lose cotton allotments in the future," according to A. C. Smith, cotton program specialist of the Louisiana State University Agricultural Extension Service.

Smith made the remark at the "King Cotton Day" here last week, attended by farmers and other area leaders.

Urging farmers to plant all of their cotton allotments this year, or release them so others can use the acreage, Smith said the most important unplanted acres in Louisiana to the East Carroll farmer are those cotton acres unplanted in this parish.

Others on the program included Perrin H. Grissom, agronomist, Stoneville, Miss.; Dr. Wayne Bingham, agronomist, LSU; Charles Loftin, of the Warren Petroleum Co., Tulsa, Okla.; Charles Severance, LSU agricultural engineer; Jack Riley, U. S. Weather Bureau, Stoneville, Miss.; G. L. Smith, USDA, Tallulah; and Sam L. House.

PINEVILLE (Special) — Charlotte Anne Salley, Monroe freshman, gained another blossom in her garland of first year honors at Louisiana College when she was chosen this week to portray Joan of Arc in the forthcoming spring production, "The Lark." She will head a cast of 19 student actors.

"The Lark," a two-act biography of Joan of Arc, will be presented in the new Weathersby Fine Arts building on April 10, 11, 13, and 14. It will be a debut for the dramatics department in the new half-million dollar building.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Fred Salley, 2309 Gordon St., the brown haired frosh is no newcomer to L.C.'s stage. She played a major role in three performances of "Land of Heart's Desire" in November.

Charlotte's first freshman honor came when she won the novice talent contest early in the fall semester. She came to Louisiana College after graduating from Ouachita Parish High, in 1960.

A voice major and piano minor, she was selected Feb. 1 as a pledge for Delta Omicron, women's professional music fraternity. She is also a chorister in the A Capella choir and L.C. singers.

Charlotte is a member of the First Baptist Church of Pineville.

Pipe Penetrates Motorist's Body

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)—A section of metal pipe was driven through a motorist's body in a car crash Saturday.

He died only after firemen hacksawed through the pipe on both sides and took him to a hospital with a piece still in his body.

Police said the victim, Edward Jones Harrell, 39, of San Bruno, Calif., apparently fell asleep at the wheel.

The car swerved into the fence along U. S. 101. The pipe crashed through the windshield and penetrated Harrell's chest.

Highway patrolmen said his ability, despite penetration by the pipe, to stop his car after it careened 500 feet probably saved the lives of his passengers, his son, Mark, 10, and a friend, Ted Johnson, of Salt Lake City.

Citizens Group Lauds Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Georgia attorney Roy V. Harris Saturday was re-elected president of the Citizens' Councils of America.

The Citizens Council of America is a nationwide coordinating body of the segregation movement.

The group unanimously adopted two resolutions at the close of the two-day session.

The first pledged "eternal resistance to racial integration" and the other lauded the Louisiana Legislature for its battle to maintain segregation. The group urged other southern states to follow Louisiana's example.

Heavy Snow Storm Hits In Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Heavy snow plunged Indiana into the depths of winter Saturday and while thousands of basketball fans floundered toward 64 basketball tournaments, state police urged that all but emergency vehicles stay off roads.

The storm canceled out some of the high school tournament games. State High School Athletic commissioner L. V. Phillips said he believed it was the first time that had happened since the tournaments began 51 years ago. And in Indiana — where basketball is next to a religion — that's a bad storm.

Police said emergency crews trying to repair widespread power failures in central Indiana were blocked by traffic jams. Eight inches or more of snow fell and drifts up to five feet deep were reported.

"Even our snow plows are getting stuck," a sergeant said.

He said all main roads radiating from Indianapolis — almost dead center in the state — were closed or closing, and secondary roads were already mostly closed.

Despite the storm, temperatures remained relatively mild—mostly around the freezing mark.

Lightning knocked Indianapolis radio and television station WISH off the air.

At Evansville, in southwestern Indiana, after four inches of snow Mayor Frank McDonald ordered all traffic off the streets effective at midnight to give cleanning crews a chance to work.

Research In Fallout Is LSU Project

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Research that may save the lives of countless families in southern Louisiana — and other coastal regions — from deadly fallout in the event of a nuclear attack is now in progress in the Louisiana State University architecture department.

The department has been commissioned by the national Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization to design and construct a fallout shelter suited to the climate and soil conditions of the Gulf Coast region.

Supported by a $15,000 grant, the project calls for a single-family fallout shelter to be constructed above ground. In charge of the preliminary research, planning and construction of the shelter is Professor O. J. Baker, head of the LSU architecture department.

Baker and a team of architecture faculty members will seek to design a shelter which not only gives protection from nuclear fallout but fulfills useful everyday functions when not needed as a refuge. The project is scheduled for completion in September.

LSU is one of four educational institutions in the country assigned to research on various types of fallout shelters, Baker reported. "The government has great interest in this project," he said.

Considerable general research has been done on fallout shelters, Baker said, but never for the specific conditions which prevail in the Gulf Coast region — humidity, high temperatures, heavy rainfall, and unique soil conditions.

The LSU researchers will begin their project with a study of other types of fallout shelters which have been perfected and built, then get down to the grim business of adapting such shelters to "home use."

Farmers Attend Carroll Meet

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — The unplanted acreage in Louisiana in 1961 will lose cotton allotments in the future," according to A. C. Smith, cotton program specialist of the Louisiana State University Agricultural Extension Service.

Smith made the remark at the "King Cotton Day" here last week, attended by farmers and other area leaders.

Urging farmers to plant all of their cotton allotments this year, or release them so others can use the acreage, Smith said the most important unplanted acres in Louisiana to the East Carroll farmer are those cotton acres unplanted in this parish.

Mart Operator Gets Majority Vote For House

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Supermarket operator John G. Schwegmann Jr. claimed victory Saturday night after piling up a clear majority in near-complete returns from the Democratic primary election in Jefferson Parish for two new seats in the state House.

With 96 of 116 precincts reporting at 10:15 p.m., Schwegmann showed 15,675 votes, 50 more than needed for a majority of the votes counted.

His running mate, former parish councilman Jules Mollere, was a strong second with 14,550 but lacked the majority to avoid an apparent runoff.

John A. Mmahat was third with 7,396. Should Mollere fail to get a majority, they would go into a runoff on March 18.

After the last tabulation, Schwegmann issued a statement contending "it is apparent the people of Jefferson Parish have given overwhelming vote of confidence to the program of civic improvement" his ticket advocated. Schwegmann and Mollere ran with the backing of Jefferson Parish president M. Dan Hogan.

In the seven-man race for councilman at large, Harold Molaison of the Schwegmann-Mollere ticket was the top man with 4,696 on returns from 36 of 38 precincts. Robert J. Duplantis was second with 4,526 and another runoff was likely for this post.

Slot Machines, Liquor Seized In Knox County

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Knox County and state alcohol unit agents scored again Saturday when they confiscated eight slot machines and 472 bottles of whisky.

This was the latest in a series of raids that started two weeks ago when state, county and city officers confiscated whisky and slots at eight country and social clubs. The clubs were warned not to sell any more liquor.

The eight slots were found in a warehouse on property owned by the Deane Hill Country Club, officials said. The whisky was found in an unoccupied house next to a bootlegger's home.

Knoxville businessmen fear the raids to dry up legally dry Knox County will drive conventions away.

The manager of the Andrew Johnson Hotel, Jim Bradley, said he received two telephone calls Saturday from persons expressing regret they had selected Knoxville as their convention site.

Bradley said one person threatened to cancel the convention when he had to tell her no cocktail parties could be held in the hotel.

The other person, Bradley said, told him his group was sorry it did not schedule the convention elsewhere.

Floods Disastrous For Many Families

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (UPI)—"We ain't never had too much, but we've never been this bad off."

J. W. Creel Jr., 47, a mechanic who has been struggling since befor Christmas to stretch $30 weekly unemployment compensation checks over the needs of himself, his pregnant wife and nine children, sadly surveyed his chattering brood at the Red Cross shelter in the Hattiesburg Community Center.

The Creels, and thousands like them are the victims of disastrous floods ("worse than 1900," one old gentleman commented) that are sweeping broad areas of Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi.

The Creels lost everything but the clothes they wore.

Creel said he left his rented home briefly Wednesday to see the flood waters and returned to hear "the kids hollering at me, 'Daddy, water's coming in the house.'

"It was up to my knees," he said. "They were trying to sweep it out but I told them it wasn't no use to sweep and to grab the young 'uns and get out of there.

"You know how kids are. They were jumping around and screaming. But we finally got them all together and left.

"The next morning I got a fellow to take me down to the house in a boat to try to get some of our stuff. But the water was almost to the ceiling and everything was floating around. There was nothing I could do. We lost everything.

"We didn't have a penny when we left the house. We're just going to have to start all over somehow, but danged if I know how," Creel said.

The flood which boiled into Hattiesburg, spoiling and contaminating everything it touched, began a slow retreat Saturday—an inch an hour—as the waters moved swirling and broadening toward the Gulf.

More than 6,000 persons were homeless in Mississippi, 5,500 of them near Hattiesburg. More than 1,000 left their homes in Alabama. Several hundred more were made homeless in Georgia, and North Carolinians braced for threatened floods.

Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett met Saturday with regional civil defense officials at Jackson to prepare a disaster report to be submitted to President Kennedy. Barnett said he would request federal disaster funds.

The governor called charity hospitals through the state and asked them to be prepared to accept ill and diseased patients from the flood areas.

Hattiesburg civil defense director Leslie Newcomb said federal health workers were being rushed into the city to help combat the pollution problem. Mass inoculation for typhoid was begun Friday and doctors and nurses rushed from Jackson to help weary medical workers.

Refugees who weren't assisting disaster unit workers, huddled in small groups and compared their losses.

"I feel so helpless," said one woman.

"The next few months will be pretty tough for us," said a Hattiesburg disaster workman. "But we ain't out by a long shot. We'll have this city looking like new in no time."

Slot Machines, Liquor Seized In Knox County

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Knox County and state alcohol unit agents scored again Saturday when they confiscated eight slot machines and 472 bottles of whisky.

This was the latest in a series of raids that started two weeks ago when state, county and city officers confiscated whisky and slots at eight country and social clubs. The clubs were warned not to sell any more liquor.

The eight slots were found in a warehouse on property owned by the Deane Hill Country Club, officials said. The whisky was found in an unoccupied house next to a bootlegger's home.

The manager of the Andrew Johnson Hotel, Jim Bradley, said he received two telephone calls Saturday from persons expressing regret they had selected Knoxville as their convention site.

Bradley said one person threatened to cancel the convention when he had to tell her no cocktail parties could be held in the hotel.

The other person, Bradley said, told him his group was sorry it did not schedule the convention elsewhere.

Satellite May Help To Spot Hurricanes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This country hopes to put up a third Tiros weather satellite next summer in time to help spot tropical storms during the 1961 hurricane season.

In early January Tiros II, launched Nov. 23, photographed from more than 400 miles in space a cloud pattern in the Coral Sea which enabled the hurricane warning center at Brisbane, Australia, to give ships an accurate report on the direction the storm was moving.

"We hope to get Tiros III up next summer in time to help us spot hurricanes in our own neighborhood," said Dr. Harry Wexler, chief scientist of the U. S. Weather Bureau.

Tiros III, it is expected, will be an improvement over both Tiros I, launched April 1, and Tiros II.

Only with Tiros II have weather scientists attempted to make prompt use of cloud pictures for help in daily forecasting. This has necessitated an effort to distribute Tiros II infomation as quickly and widely as possible.

Because no facilities exist for getting actual photographs to Australia in a few hours after they are taken, U. S. weather experts have been sending "word codes" containing cloud descriptions to Australia.

On the basis of these codes, the Australians have been able to construct weather maps which, as in the case of the Coral Sea hurricane, have been helpful in making forecasts.

The Tiros satellites are mainly experimental. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) expects to launch a more "sophisticated" weather eye, Nimbus, in 1962.

Weather Bureau enthusiasts believe an operational satellite system could be put to work some time next year if they could get the necessary approval and money for the project.

Such a system, Wexler said, could have prevented the foulup in forecasting which preceded the "Inaugural Blizzard" of Jan. 19.

Khrushchev Blasts Dag As Assassin

MOSCOW (UPI) — Nikita S. Khrushchev bombarded world with letters Saturday denouncing Dag Hammarskjold as the "chief assassin" of ex-Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba and raising again Soviet demands on the Congo which were defeated in the U.N. Security Council this week.

The apparently identical 12-page letters from the Soviet premier accused the West of trying to revive Theodore Roosevelt's "big stick" policy and insisted that U.N. forces in the Congo be pulled out.

Khrushchev called again for support for the pro-Lumumba government of Antoine Gizenga in Oriental Province. He bitterly attacked Hammarskjold on grounds the U.N. secretary general "pursued a policy of base treachery" toward the Congolese people.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry reported the letter had been sent to leaders in Africa, Asia, Latin America and Europe.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain was reported to have received one, but there was no mention of any letter to President Kennedy.

Khrushchev again called for Hammarskjold's diplomatic scalp, demanding his ouster as U.N. chief.

"To put it bluntly, it was in essenge Hammarskjold who murdered Lumumba," Khrushchev wrote. "Whoever held the knife or revolver is after all not the sole murderer. The chief assassin is the one who handed him the weapon.

"Such an individual has no right to hold a leading post in the United Nations. We cannot reconcile ourselves to the fact that the secretary general has sullied himself by a foul murder."

The entire U.N. operation in the Congo, he charged ,"is an attempt to implement in our time a well known principle . . . by Theodore Roosevelt who coined the phrase about talking softly but with a big stick in his hand."

Khrushchev defined the modern-day big stick as "subjugation of weaker nations by force of arms."

Cuba and Panama were victimes of big stick colonial policies, the Soviet leader said in an indirect attack on the United States.

Russia he said, "also has a big stick," but "relies on its policy or reason" instead.

". . . The interests of the Congo's independence as well as those of the United Nations require the immediate termination of the so-called Congo operation and the withdrawal of all foreign troops," he said.

Body Of Slain Woman Is Found In Caddo Parish

Donny, 11, if they wanted to go to a movie. They told her no, and she left.

A check on her activities after leaving home revealed that she was seen about 8:30 p.m. at the intersection of U. S. Highway One and the U. S. Gas road. The dead woman stopped at a cross-road store there, McCuray Store, where she purchased 2 candy bars and left.

Her car was discovered at 8 a.m. Saturday parked at the Emmon's store and Bar between Hossten and Vivian, locked. According to sources, it had been there all night.

The purse, found approximately 15 feet from her body, contained her car keys, the candy bars, her stockings and panties.

Mrs. Ward's husband, when he arrived home at 10 p.m. Friday was told she was off visiting. He reported her missing at 7 a.m. Saturday and she was found at 9:30 a.m.

Her body was carried to the Hanner Funeral Home in Vivian where funeral arrangements were incomplete last night.

She is survived by her husband, O. A. Ward, who has lived in Vivian for the past 25 years and is employed by the Gulf Natural Gas Co. near Belcher; one daughter, Jean Ward, and two sons, John and Donny; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Holt, who lived near her on the McLeod Road and operate a small grocery store; one sister, Mrs. Alva Nell McClure, Shreveport; three brothers, Ferrel Holt, who is a member of the Shreveport police department; M. in their debt, for our public school system must be preserved and improved."

"Let me also pay tribute to the school children and their parents, of both races, who have been on the frontlines of this problem," Kennedy said. "In accepting the command of the constitution with dignity, they, too, are contributing to the education of all Americans."

His comments in a telegram clashed with those of a Virginia school official from Prince Edward County where public schools have been closed for two years to avoid integration.

W. Edward Smith, Prince Edward School Board chairman, said his people are unwilling to support an integrated school.

He said they are determined their children will not attend integrated schools. The people have, Smith said, "no confidence either in the conditions that might be maintained in an integrated school or in the educational advantages that might be given in such a school."

The commission heard the remarks at its third annual conference on school segregation problems, held in this restored colonial capital of Virginia. About 25 persons from eight states participated. A dozen more from four states attended as observers.

Another Virginia school official told the commission that bitterness still lingers despite the passage of three years since the desegregation row closed Warren County schools.

Warren Supt. Q. D. Gasque said some of the bitterness has hardened into a "resolution to fight (integration) to the bitter end." The schools have reopened since on an integrated basis.

The public schools in Prince Edward have been closed for two years. County officials have declined to appropriate funds for their operation. White pupils attend a system of private segregated schools. There has been no provision made for Negroes.

Smith said the people of Prince Edward "have gone to great sacrifices to arrange educational advantages under conditions that they consider decent and proper.

"They have established those (educational) advantages for the white children and are well pleased with them. They are distressed (that) because of outside pressures, the Negro citizens so far have not been willing to assist in the establishments of schools for the Negro children.

"The white citizenry of Prince Edward County was determined upon two things: they would not permit their children to attend an integrated school and despite the tension built up by the Supreme Court decision, by the NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People), and other such influences from outside the county, they would not permit the long history of peace and quiet which had existed in Prince Edward to be marred by an incident of violence."

Smith said that since the Supreme Court decision, the people "had come to realize that a particular system of public schools was not essential to the education of the children" and decided they would drop support of the public schools for the private ones for white children.

Kennedy Aide To Consult Chief Allies

Union, to cooperate where possible and to avoid name-calling in public statements.

Nevertheless, the hopeful atmosphere which dominated Kennedy's first days in office a month ago is giving way to a return of grimness and foreboding.

The White House announced the Harriman mission but did not go into detail in disclosing what he would talk about or what prompted the President to send him at this particular time.

Harriman holds the position of ambassador - at - large. He was available for a special trip to Moscow to talk with Khrushchev, but Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk thought it better to entrust that task at this stage to the regular envoy, Llewellyn Thompson.

Thompson is en route back to his Moscow post after two weeks of consultation with Kennedy here and is expected to see Khrushchev early this week.

Khrushchev's new Congo blast, and a related attack on Kennedy's declared policy of walking softly but carrying a big stick, struck a gloomy note in connection with Thompson's return to his post.

Somewhat the same sense of urgency surrounded a meeting between Rusk and U.N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson. They met in early afternoon at the State Department, lunching together and discussing U.S. policies for the forthcoming General Assembly meeting.

The support of United Nations peacemaking efforts in the Congo against Soviet attack is one of Stevenson's major tasks at present.

The United States, he has disclosed, is trying to find some way to strengthen the United Nations resolution authorizing U.N. forces in the Congo to use force to establish order.

Increasing tension over the Congo and U.N. handling of that situation has pretty well killed speculation that Khrushchev might show up at the United Nations in New York next month, and that he and Kennedy might meet informally in connection with such a trip.

Over 7,000 Homeless In Mississippi

brought sharp rises on all of Maine's rivers and streams.

No relief was in sight for Dixie, where maverick streams and rivers forced more than 8,000 persons from their homes and derailed a train in Alabama. New trouble spots popped up almost hourly throughout the Southland, which counted at least eight deaths since the floods began a week ago.

In the twin city area of Phenix City, Ala., and Columbus, Ga., the National Guard aided in evacuation of more than 1,000 persons. Police described the flood as the worst in the history of the Chattahoochie River.

The midwest snowstorm penetrated as far south as Tennessee, and swung through Ohio, dumping 1 to 3 inches of snow in the early hours. Heavy fog swept across the buckeye state in advance of the snow.

In Indiana, the weight of heavy ice and snow and utility lines cut power to thousands of homes and business establishments. Large areas were without electricity, and central Indiana hospitals prepared to use emergency generators if the power failures continued to spread.

Officials provided shelters and food for the homeless in the Dixie floods.

The hardest-hit area appeared to be Mississippi, where more than 7,000 persons were homeless.

Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett met with regional civil defense officials at Jackson to prepare a disaster report for presentation to President John F. Kennedy.

The storm, associated with a cold front, also triggered high winds and heavy showers over North Carolina. Minor to moderate flooding was reported on swollen rivers and streams, and a four-inch downpour near Highlands, N.C., loosed landslides on mountain roads.

Rain also forced rivers to rise in the Pittsburgh area, pushing the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers to a depth of 20.2 feet where they form the Ohio River.

At Louisville, Ky., where a record temperature of 70 degrees was set Friday, a sleet storm iced streets. It was followed by wind-driven snow that accumulated six inches and closed Standiford Field.

Indiana streets and highways became treacherous ribbons of ice and slush and bogged down traffic in Indianapolis and other metropolitan areas.

High winds accompanied the snow in Tennessee. Gusts felled trees and blew windows out in Knoxville and Chattanooga.

At Milstead, Ala., two engines and a mail car of the Atlanta and West Point Railroad's New Orleans-bound Piemont Limited toppled 50 feet from a washed-out embankment into a murky tributary of the Tallapoosa River. Highway patrolmen walked two miles through mud and water to snatch engineer John Smith, 70, to safety minutes before the engine sank in the flood waters.

At least six tornadoes hit Georgia Friday. Columbus and West Point, Ga., were faced with "their worst flood in history" by early Sunday on the Chattahoochee River.

on the spot only more than four hours after the start of the demonstration," the communique added.

The Belgian ambassador in Cairo immediately protested, the communique said, and when his note went unanswered he was recalled to Brussels.

In subsequent communications with the U.A.R. government, the communique said, the U.A.R. rejected responsibility for the events and rejected a request for an apology.

Belgian embassies throughout the world were stoned and picketed last week by demonstrators who blamed Belgium for Lumumba's death. The Cairo demonstrations were the most violent.

Belgium and the U.A.R. have long been at odds over the Congo.

On Dec. 1, 1960, U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser seized all Belgian commercial properties in Egypt, including the Belgian Bank and the Cairo Street Railways. Nasser's seizure order was considered retaliation for Congolese President Joseph Kasavubu's decision to break diplomatic relations with the U.A.R. Nasser regards the Belgians as the behind-the-scene manipulators of Congolese politics.

Nasser, in turn, has been accused of secretly supplying the leftist rebel regime in Stanleyville in its fight against the Leopoldville government.

Legislators To Discuss Pay Tonight

sensible and honorable fashion."

An attempt at some moderation among legislators was evident, but this was struck a harsh blow when Rep. Wellborn Jack, Caddo Parish, an ardent segregationist, decried all talk of a federal-state compromise in a House speech.

Jack accused the Kennedy administration of "trying to trap Louisiana into a two-year truce." The U.S. attorney general's statement was made the next day.

Jack shouted to the House that the Kennedy administration and the federal courts didn't have the guts to put Louisiana officials in jail.

Whether this is true may be determined after a three-judge federal panel entertains the contempt charges against Jewell, Aycock and Jackson Friday.

Neither President Kennedy nor Gov. Davis has closed the door to negotiations.

A top administration leader told The Associated Press how the legislature hopes a middle ground can be found.

The key is two resolutions approved by the House and sent to the Senate for action Sunday night.

One would place all state school funds due the New Orleans school system for the rest of the fiscal year into a legislative bank account.

The other, technical in nature, would clear up difficulties in handling New Orleans school funds in such matters as teacher pay deductions for bond purchases and other bookkeeping items.

Also figuring in the solution plan is a third resolution to declare that the legislature itself, and not Lt. Gov. Aycock and Speaker Jewell, is directly responsible for actions under segregation policy and for withholding pay to McDonogh 19 and Frantz teachers and employes.

The resolution brands the federal contempt citations as unwarranted, illegal and unAmerican.

The Orleans district attorney, under a fourth resolution up for Senate action, is urged to prosecute ousted school superintendent James F. Redmond and possibly the elected school board, also ousted, as usurpers.

Redmond and the school board have remained under federal court order.

The administration leader, who asked that his name be withheld, said this all points to setting up two different payees for teachers—one for those in the parish system generally and another for those in Frantz and McDonogh 19.

The elected school board apparently would be the paymaster for teachers and employes in the integrated schools. The lawmaker said only $16,000 actually is involved in paying these teachers to satisfy a suit by the justice department.

"If the November payroll can be paid, no matter by whom," he said, "that would automatically make the suit against the official moot. It is just a matter that needs to be correlated among different groups."

But many persons and officials are involved in the correlation job. They include state treasurer A. P. Tugwell, the board of liquidation of city debt in New Orleans, the elected school board board and the legislature.

Contempt citations against Speaker Jewell, Lt. Gov. Aycock and Supt. Jackson are based on the November payroll for teachers and employes. That's where the $16,000 figure comes in. The elected school board has to its account about $800,000.

Here is how the financial picture pulls together:

Four million remains in the state's per educable and equalization funds due to the Orleans Parish school system this year. About $2.5 million is due for March, and the legislature still has to worry about meeting Orleans payrolls and obligations in April, May and June.

Orleans' school system has about $2 million coming, to the elected board, from a parish property tax.

in their debt, for our public school system must be preserved and improved."

"Let me also pay tribute to the school children and their parents, of both races, who have been on the frontlines of this problem." Kennedy said. "In accepting the command of the constitution with dignity, they, too, are contributing to the education of all Americans."

His comments in a telegram clashed with those of a Virginia school official from Prince Edward County where public schools have been closed for two years to avoid integration.

W. Edward Smith, Prince Edward School Board chairman, said his people are unwilling to support an integrated school.

He said they are determined their children will not attend integrated schools. "The people have, Smith said, "no confidence either in the conditions that might be maintained in an integrated school or in the educational advantages that might be given in such a school."

The commission heard the remarks at its third annual conference on school segregation problems, held in this restored colonial capital of Virginia. About 25 persons from eight states participated. A dozen more from four states attended as observers.

Another Virginia school official told the commission that bitterness still lingers despite the passage of three years since the desegregation row closed Warren County schools.

Warren Supt. Q. D. Gasque said some of the bitterness has hardened into a "resolution to fight (integration) to the bitter end." The schools have reopened since on an integrated basis.

The public schools in Prince Edward have been closed for two years. County officials have declined to appropriate funds for their operation. White pupils attend a system of private segregated schools. There has been no provision made for Negroes.

Smith said the people of Prince Edward "have gone to great sacrifices to arrange educational advantages under conditions that they consider decent and proper.

"They have established those (educational) advantages for the white children and are well pleased with them. They are distressed (that) because of outside pressures, the Negro citizens so far have not been willing to assist in the establishments of schools for the Negro children.

"The white citizenry of Prince Edward County was determined upon two things: they would not permit their children to attend an integrated school and despite the tension built up by the Supreme Court decision, by the NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People), and other such influences from outside the county, they would not permit the long history of peace and quiet which had existed in Prince Edward to be marred by an incident of violence."

Smith said that since the Supreme Court decision, the people "had come to realize that a particular system of public schools was not essential to the education of the children" and decided they would drop support of the public schools for the private ones for white children.

Kennedy Aide To Consult Chief Allies

Union, to cooperate where possible and to avoid name-calling in public statements.

Nevertheless, the hopeful atmosphere which dominated Kennedy's first days in office a month ago is giving way to a return of grimness and foreboding.

The White House announced the Harriman mission but did not go into detail in disclosing what he would talk about or what prompted the President to send him at this particular time.

Harriman holds the position of ambassador - at - large. He was available for a special trip to Moscow to talk with Khrushchev, but Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk thought it better to entrust that task at this stage to the regular envoy, Llewellyn Thompson.

Thompson is en route back to his Moscow post after two weeks of consultation with Kennedy here and is expected to see Khrushchev early this week.

Khrushchev's new Congo blast, and a related attack on Kennedy's declared policy of walking softly but carrying a big stick, struck a gloomy note in connection with Thompson's return to his post.

Somewhat the same sense of urgency surrounded a meeting between Rusk and U.N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson. They met in early afternoon at the State Department, lunching together and discussing U.S. policies for the forthcoming General Assembly meeting.

The support of United Nations peacemaking efforts in the Congo against Soviet attack is one of Stevenson's major tasks at present.

The United States, he has disclosed, is trying to find some way to strengthen the United Nations resolution authorizing U.N. forces in the Congo to use force to establish order.

Increasing tension over the Congo and U.N. handling of that situation has pretty well killed speculation that Khrushchev might show up at the United Nations in New York next month, and that he and Kennedy might meet informally in connection with such a trip.

Lafayette Man Killed In Crash

OPELOUSAS, La. (AP)—James Ralph Norwood, 41, Lafayette auto salesman, was killed Saturday night when two cars collided on U. S. 167 about three miles north of Opelousas.

Injured were his wife, 42; his daughter, Florence, and two other Norwood children, Evelyn, 6, and Noel, 5.

Marcelin Pitre, 52, of Washington, La., driver of the other car, was injured seriously.

MRS. MARJORIE Steele Hartford who won a divorce and a $2,385,000 settlement from Huntington Hartford 2nd, the A. and P. chain store heir. She also gets an added $60,000 a year, presumably until she remarries. Miss Steele and Hartford, 48, were married 12 years ago when she was a 19-year-old Hollywood cigaret girl. She was given custody of the couple's two children. (AP Wirephoto)

Over 7,000 Homeless In Mississippi

brought sharp rises on all of Maine's rivers and streams.

No relief was in sight for Dixie, where maverick streams and rivers forced more than 8,000 persons from their homes and derailed a train in Alabama. New trouble spots popped up almost hourly throughout the Southland, which counted at least eight dead since the floods began a week ago.

In the twin city area of Phenix City, Ala., and Columbus, Ga., the National Guard aided in evacuation of more than 1,000 persons. Police described the flood as the worst in the history of the Chattahoochie River.

The midwest snowstorm penetrated as far south as Tennessee, and swung through Ohio, dumping 1 to 3 inches of snow in the early hours. Heavy fog swept across the buckeye state in advance of the snow.

In Indiana, the weight of heavy ice and snow and utility lines cut power to thousands of homes and business establishments. Large areas were without electricity, and central Indiana hospitals prepared to use emergency generators if the power failures continued to spread.

Officials provided shelters and food for the homeless in the Dixie floods.

The hardest-hit area appeared to be Mississippi, where more than 7,000 persons were homeless.

Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett met with regional civil defense officials at Jackson to prepare a disaster report for presentation to President John F. Kennedy.

The storm, associated with a cold front, also triggered high winds and heavy showers over North Carolina. Minor to moderate flooding was reported on swollen rivers and streams, and a four-inch downpour near Highlands, N.C., loosed landslides on mountain roads.

Rain also forced rivers to rise in the Pittsburgh area, pushing the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers to a depth of 20.2 feet where they form the Ohio River.

At Louisville, Ky., where a record temperature of 70 degrees was set Friday, a sleet storm iced streets. It was followed by wind-driven snow that accumulated six inches and closed Standiford Field.

Indiana streets and highways became treacherous ribbons of ice and slush and bogged down traffic in Indianapolis and other metropolitan areas.

High winds accompanied the snow in Tennessee. Gusts felled trees and blew windows out in Knoxville and Chattanooga.

At Milstead, Ala., two engines and a mail car of the Atlanta and West Point Railroad's New Orleans-bound Piemont Limited toppled 50 feet from a washed-out embankment into a murky tributary of the Tallapoosa River. Highway patrolmen walked two miles through mud and water to snatch engineer John Smith, 70, to safety minutes before the engine sank in the flood waters.

At least six tornadoes hit Georgia Friday. Columbus and West Point, Ga., were faced with "their worst flood in history" by early Sunday on the Chattahoochee River.

Belgium Breaks Off Nasser Ties

on the spot only more than four hours after the start of the demonstration," the communique added.

The Belgian ambassador in Cairo immediately protested, the communique said, and when his note went unanswered he was recalled to Brussels.

In subsequent communications with the U.A.R. government, the communique said, the U.A.R. rejected responsibility for the events and rejected a request for an apology.

Belgian embassies throughout the world were stoned and picketed last week by demonstrators who blamed Belgium for Lumumba's death. The Cairo demonstrations were the most violent.

Belgium and the U.A.R. have long been at odds over the Congo.

On Dec. 1, 1960, U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser seized all Belgian commercial properties in Egypt, including the Belgian Bank and the Cairo Street Railways. Nasser's seizure order was considered retaliation for Congolese President Joseph Kasavubu's decision to break diplomatic relations with the U.A.R. Nasser regards the Belgians as the behind-the-scene manipulators of Congolese politics.

Nasser, in turn, has been accused of secretly supplying the leftist rebel regime in Stanleyville in its fight against the Leopoldville government.

Legislators To Discuss Pay Tonight

sensible and honorable fashion."

An attempt at some moderation among legislators was evident, but this was struck a harsh blow when Rep. Wellborn Jack, Caddo Parish, an ardent segregationist, decried all talk of a federal-state compromise in a House speech.

Jack accused the Kennedy administration of "trying to trap Louisiana into a two-year truce." The U.S. attorney general's statement was made the next day.

Jack shouted to the House that the Kennedy administration and the federal courts didn't have the guts to put Louisiana officials in jail.

Whether this is true may be determined after a three-judge federal panel entertains the contempt charges against Jewell, Aycock and Jackson Friday.

Neither President Kennedy nor Gov. Davis has closed the door to negotiations.

A top administration leader told The Associated Press how the legislature hopes a middle ground can be found.

The key is two resolutions approved by the House and sent to the Senate for action Sunday night.

One would place all state school funds due the New Orleans school system for the rest of the fiscal year into a legislative bank account.

The other, technical in nature, would clear up difficulties in handling New Orleans school funds in such matters as teacher pay deductions for bond purchases and other bookkeeping items.

Also figuring in the solution plan is a third resolution to declare that the legislature itself, and not Lt. Gov. Aycock and Speaker Jewell, is directly responsible for actions under segregation policy and for withholding pay to McDonogh 19 and Frantz teachers and employes.

The resolution brands the federal contempt citations as unwarranted, illegal and unAmerican.

The Orleans district attorney, under a fourth resolution up for Senate action, is urged to prosecute ousted school superintendent James F. Redmond and possibly the elected school board, also ousted, as usurpers.

Redmond and the school board have remained under federal court order.

The administration leader, who asked that his name be withheld, said this all points to setting up two different payees for teachers—one for those in the parish system generally and another for those in Frantz and McDonogh 19.

The elected school board apparently would be the paymaster for teachers and employes in the integrated schools. The lawmaker said only $16,000 actually is involved in paying these teachers to satisfy a suit by the justice department.

"If the November payroll can be paid, no matter by whom," he said, "that would automatically make the suit against the official moot. It is just a matter that needs to be correlated among different groups."

But many persons and officials are involved in the correlation job. They include state treasurer A. P. Tugwell, the board of liquidation of city debt in New Orleans, the elected school board and the legislature.

Contempt citations against Speaker Jewell, Lt. Gov. Aycock and Supt. Jackson are based on the November payroll for teachers and employes. That's where the $16,000 figure comes in. The elected school board has to its account about $300,000.

Here is how the financial picture pulls together:

Four million remains in the state's per educable and equalization funds due to the Orleans Parish school system this year. About $2.5 million is due for March, and the legislature still has to worry about meeting Orleans payrolls and obligations in April, May and June.

Orleans' school system has about $2 million coming, to the elected board, from a parish property tax.

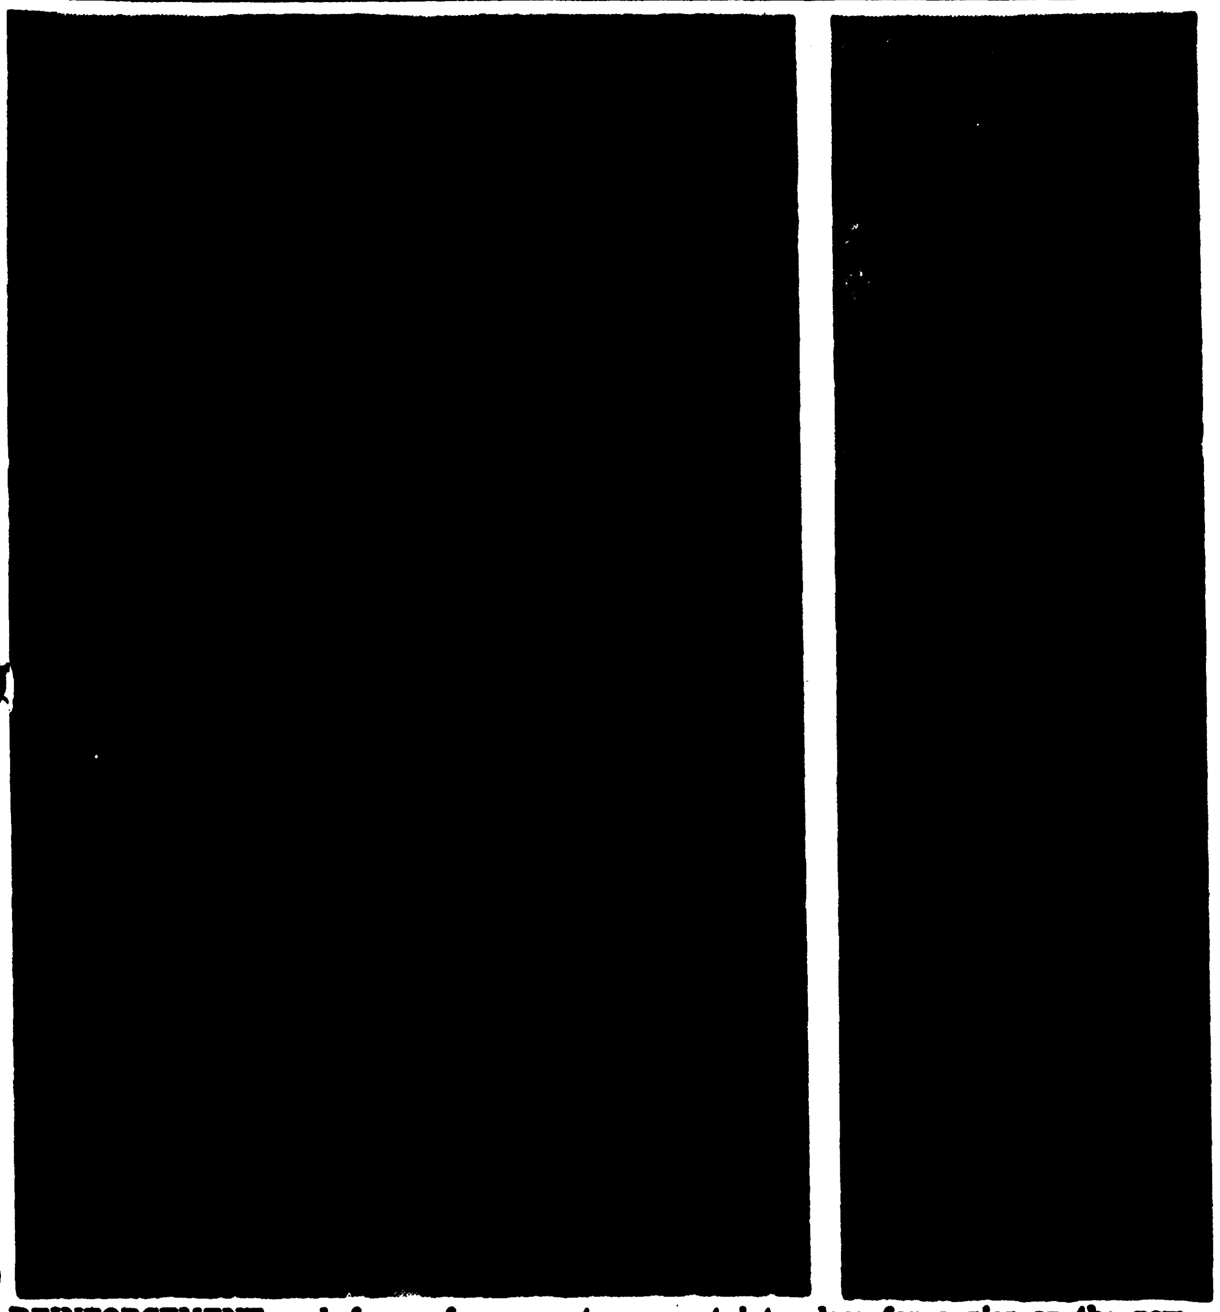
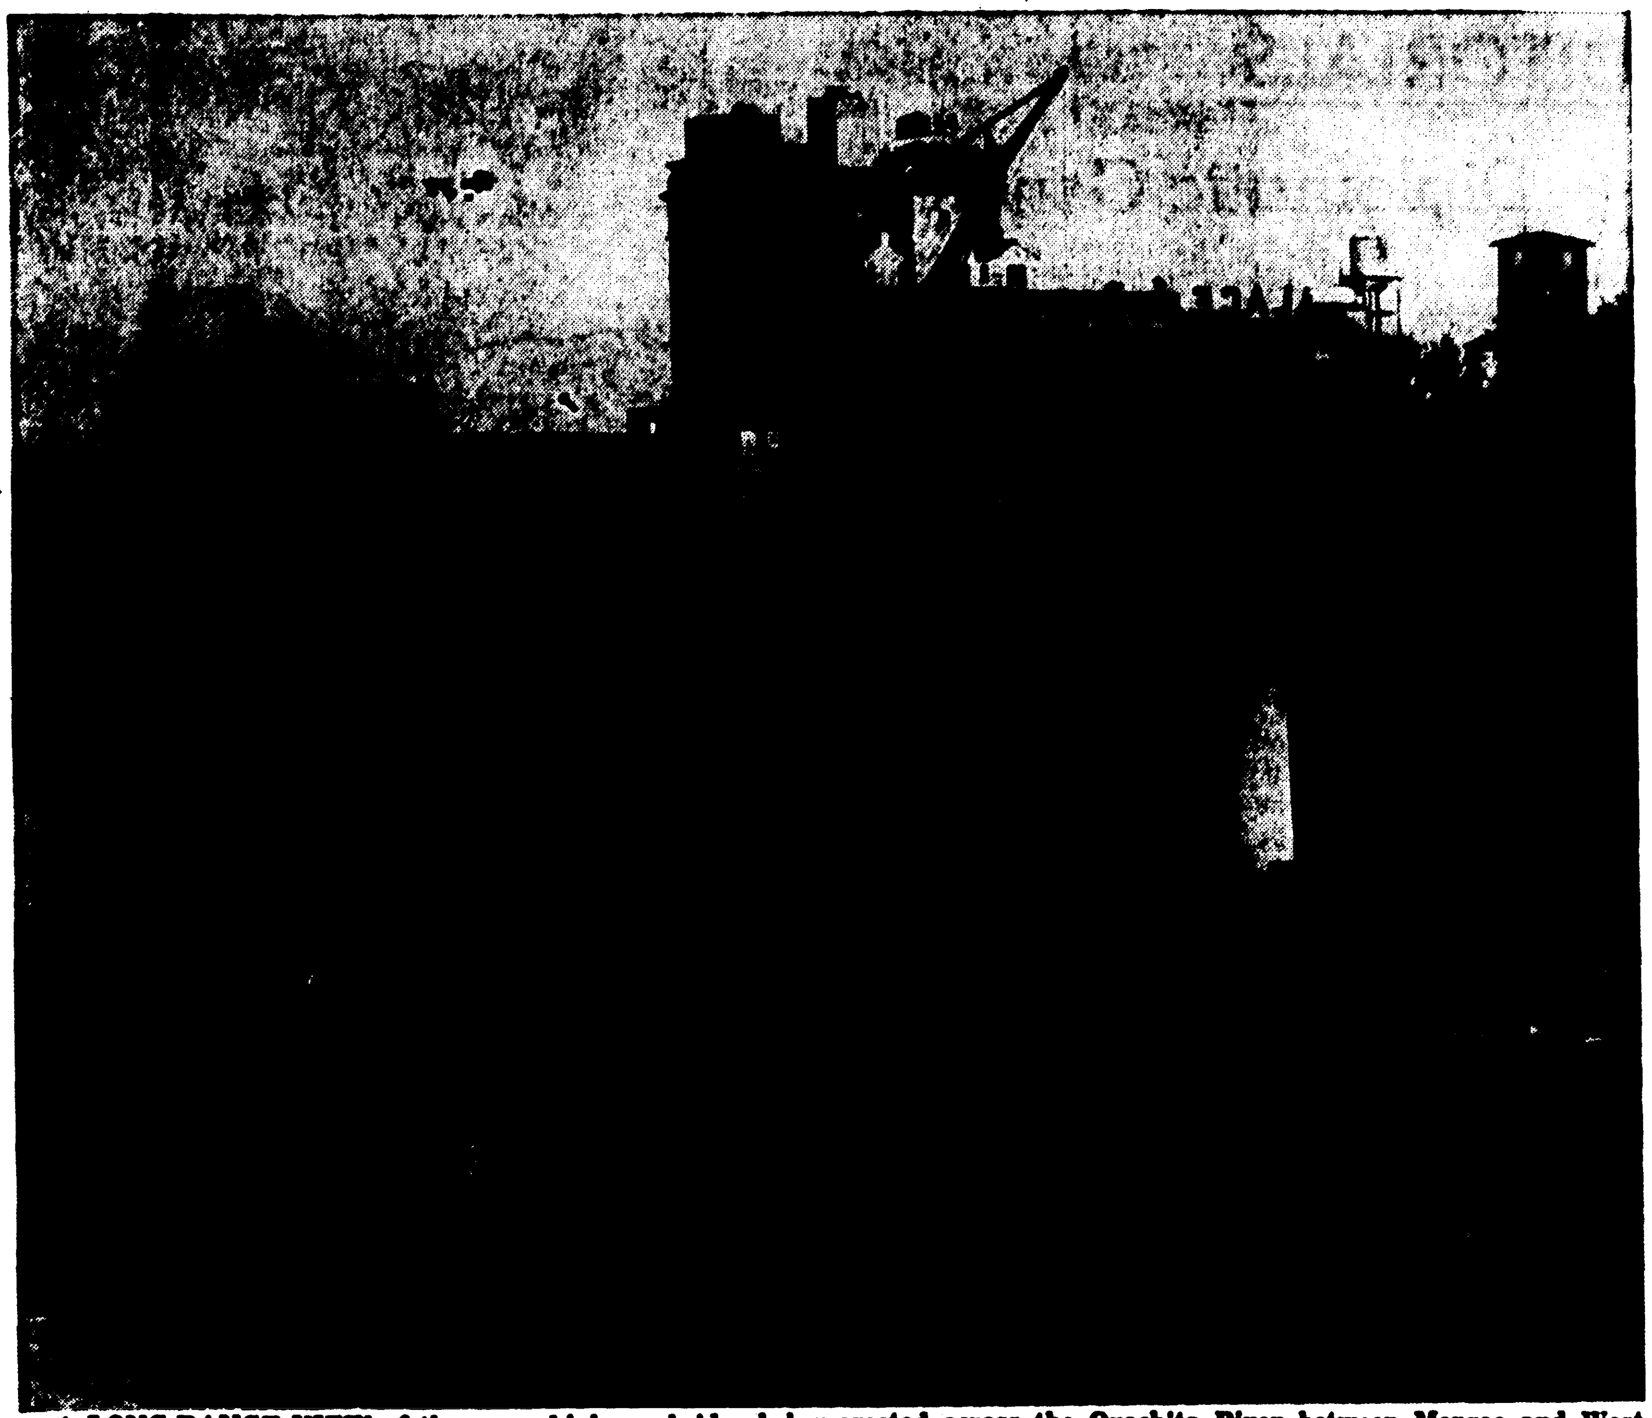
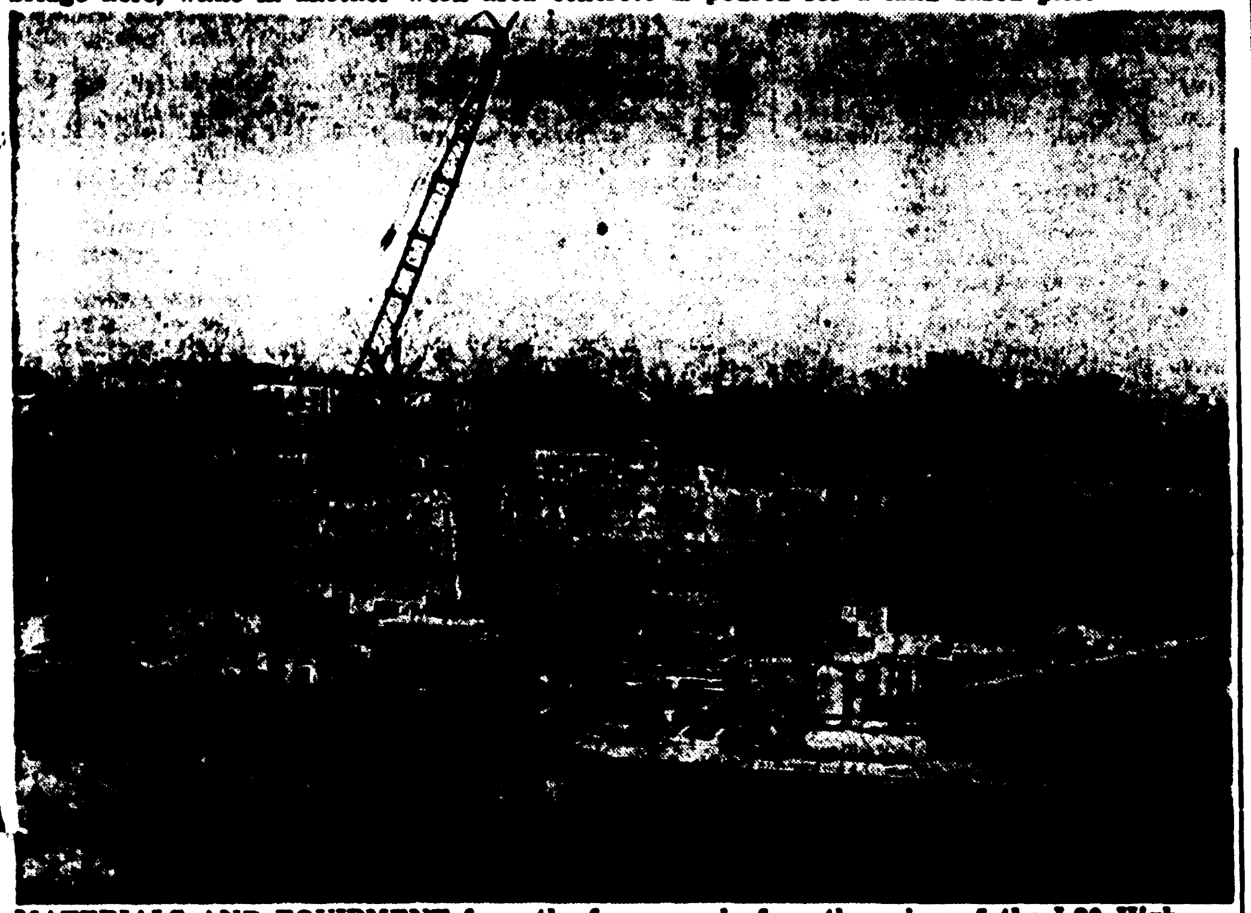
Monroe Morning World



REINFORCEMENT and forms for concrete are put into place for a pier on the new bridge here, while in another work area concrete is poured for a land based pier.



A LONG-RANGE VIEW of the super highway bridge being erected across the Ouachita River between Monroe and West Monroe is provided by a camera study by Staff Photographer Ben Bradford. Using telephoto lens, he took this picture from a vantage point 200 yards away.



MATERIALS AND EQUIPMENT form the foreground of another view of the I-20 Highway bridge construction progress. The picture was taken by Dan W. Davis Jr., project superintendent, whose hobby is photography.

Super Highway

Spanning The River

After several months of good behavior, the Ouachita River last week spilled its rising waters over into coffer dams and stopped mid - stream work on the Interstate Highway 20 bridge being built to span it between Monroe and West Monroe.

Operations were being continued on the bank areas where water had not encroached. Project Superintendent Dan W. Davis Jr., said that, according to present outlook, work in the stream may be halted until April or May, since spring is generally a high water period. He estimated Friday that water level had risen around 10 feet in the past week. This was still well below flood stage.

Prior to this development, Davis reported that the river had been at lower than anticipated levels for several months, providing favorable conditions for work on the $3,187,755 link in the super highway system.

EARLIER

About three weeks ago, Davis reported that the project under construction by Peter Kiewit Son's Co., general contractor of Omaha, Nebraska, had not encountered several high water periods expected on the basis of forecasts made at the time the contract was let May 28, 1960.

If they had, work in the stream bed would have been almost completely halted earlier, he said.

During one of the recent weeks when rain abated and other conditions were favorable, more than 1,000 yards of concrete were poured at the bridge site.

Project officials are hoping that the river won't repeat its high water performance of the spring of 1958 when openings in the seawall along South Grand had to be sealed to keep it from spilling into the Monroe area. Sections of South Grand were sandbagged at that time and water lapped at piers of the old traffic bridge and the railroad bridge.

The general contractor is well equipped for river transport, maintaining a fleet of barges and a powered barge which is used as a tug boat. In addition to this there are three or four small outboard boats, which provide an atmosphere of busy river traffic around the bridge site.

Since its beginning the project has had a good spectator rating. Motorists get a ringside view from the old traffic bridge nearby, and some viewers find vantage points along the levee.

Completion of the project, tentatively set for December, 1961, is expected to run a little past that time, officials said.

About 80 per cent of the materials and equipment for the project were brought in by water. Some of the huge equipment would be difficult to move on the highways.

STANDING HIGH

When contract - work on the bridge is completed each end of the span will be about 45 feet above street level, ready for linking to the elevated sections of the super highway.

"Most bridges have to be completed on fills that the roadway comes in on," Davis explained. "The whole thing has to progress simultaneously. This bridge is being built as a separate entity and the approaches can be constructed later, because it doesn't let down. Where a bridge touches down to the roadway, work on the approaches has to be done first.

About five or six subcontractors are being used on the project here. Length of the completed bridge will be 1,085 feet. It will be a fixed type span with 80 feet of clearance from pool stage of the river and will be of welded steel beam with concrete substructure and deck.

It will be 76 feet wide on the West Monroe side, with six lanes, and 150 feet wide from outside rail to outside rail on the Monroe side where entry and exit ramps will be located.

Natchez Pilgrimage

Another Era Recalled

The annual Natchez, Miss., Pilgrimage will come into full blossom next month, with its program dedicated to the observance of the Civil War Centennial.

During the pilgrimage which will open March 4 and extend through April 2, Confederate mementos pertaining to the Civil War, such as old papers, swords pistols, and other objects, will be displayed in all of the ante-bellum homes which will be open to the public.

TABLEAUX

Tableaux, which comprise the Confederate Pageant, will portray incidents in the lives of Varina Howell and Jefferson Davis, who were married in a quiet ceremony at The Briars in 1845.

Pageant officials said that within an area of five miles, Natchez has more interesting houses built prior to the War Between the States than any other place in the area.

They were constructed during the period beginning in the late 1700's and continuing through 1855. Officials said that "It is the life of the lavish cotton era that is re-enacted during the annual pilgrimage."

They pointed out that since no land battles were fought in the Natchez vicinity, there was little property damage. Thirty of the early houses will be included on the pilgrimage tours.

It will take three days to tour the 30 houses, since there are two five - house tours each day. The Confederate Pageant is presented every Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday night during the pilgrimage period. Negro spiritual programs are presented on the remaining nights.

Sponsors of the pilgrimage are the Pilgrimage Garden Club and the Natchez Garden Club.

Diplomatic General

Army generals and career diplomats ordinarily are about as far apart as night and day in the manner in which they approach problems. The general is likely to be abrupt and is certain to issue orders which he expects to be obeyed promptly. The diplomat uses a smoother approach. He is more likely to use persuasion and logic than force.

This raises some question as to whether President Kennedy's appointment of retired Lieutenant-General James M. Gavin to be ambassador to France was a wise choice.

It is plausible to speculate that the circumstances under which General Gavin left active military service had at least as much to do with his appointment as did his qualifications. He resigned as a protest against policies of the Eisenhower administration with respect to the army's missile program, for which he was responsible as chief of army research and development.

At the time of his retirement it was noted that the general's decision spoke well for his determination as a military leader to stop at nothing in seeking the best for his country's defense.

There may have been, however, another reason for his taking such dramatic action at that time. He may have already had a political bee in his bonnet and may have realized that criticism of the Eisenhower administration at that time was the best way to bring his aspirations to fruition.

Be that as it may, his action provided Presidential Candidate Kennedy with "missile gap" ammunition to fire at the Republicans' defense program. That may have been one of the things that helped to bring victory for Kennedy.

One factor President Kennedy was said to have considered in naming General Gavin was his acquaintance with French President Charles de Gaulle. That could be helpful but the relationship between the two as allied soldiers at war against a common enemy and as head of state and ambassador no doubt will be quite different.

Although President Kennedy pledged he would choose the best-qualified man for each appointive post, he may have departed from that policy; and adopted one more political; in naming General Gavin.

Handle 389,000 Volts

Science, in many ways, makes the world more dangerous, through such devices as nuclear weapons, but is also acts in many ways to make the world safer.

Now is has made it possible for an electric power worker to handle "hot" wires carrying up to 380,000 volts without danger of burns or ill effects of any kind.

The daintiest sparrow can perch on a power line carrying several hundred thousand volts and never singe a feather. This has been known for many years and it has also long been known that the reason this is true is that the sparrow does not touch the earth or any other "ground" at the same time. If he touches anything that short-circuits the voltage he will be burned to a crisp instantly. This happens occasionally but the bird neither knows nor thinks anything about it as he sits happily on a "hot" wire.

When birds light on a high-voltage line they are not injured because they merely become charged with the same voltage which the line carries. The electric current which kills only flows between two points when there is a difference in voltage.

Linemen can now work barehanded on high-voltage lines while standing in a fiberglass bucket hoisted to overhead wires by a truck-mounted, insulated aerial boom. The bucket and the men in it are charged at the same voltage as the line. Their safety is provided by the insulated boom, which protects them from the difference in voltage between the ground and the live conductor.

This new method for handling "hot" wires with bare hands has been thoroughly laboratory-tested at voltages up to 380,000 and field work has been done on lines carrying up to 138,000 volts. Using the new system, linemen can change an insulator on a 34,000-volt line in just one-half a man-hour of the five formerly required.

Man has learned at least two—and probably many other—important lessons from the birds. One is how to fly and the other is how to touch high-voltage wires safely.

Yale On Alcoholism

According to Yale University's "Quarterly Journal of Studies of Alcohol," there are 5,000,000 sufferers from alcoholism in the United States today.

Researchers estimate that 900,000 of these are women. The number may be greater because women have more protection and seclusion in their drinking. They are not as universally compelled to work, as are practically all men who do not reach "Skid Row," and are therefore able to conceal their addiction for a longer time. This may actually be against their best interests, since it allows them to go longer before seeking treatment.

Best modern thinking, psychologists say, is that alcoholism is a disease, coming form a combination of causes—psychological, social and physiological factors must all be present. Sex, degree of wealth, even one's moral upbringing have little to do with it. Of course, a total abstainer won't become an addict as long as he abstains. There are many who believe that there are many potential alcoholics among the abstainers. Some abstainers, themselves, believe they would become alcoholics if they once began drinking intoxicants.

Yale studies indicate that only three per cent of our alcoholics are on "Skid Row."

An article in the March edition of Ladies Home Journal faces up to the problem of the woman alcoholic, tells what society can do for her and how she can help herself.

"Women especially," the magazine says, "are protected by the privacy of the home. But it is important to find them, not to blame them but to help them face realities. Just because they are women the rules of alcoholism will not change.

Help for these sufferers must include greater education of nonalcoholics, the publication says, adding "If the great burden of shame could be lifted from the word 'alcoholism' more women at an earlier stage might face their drinking problems honestly and say to themselves, 'I probably have alcoholism.' " Then the battle could be fought in the open.

Both alcoholism and mental disorders need to be removed from the areas of "disgrace" into the field of common sense.

Thinking On Nuclear Tests

President Kennedy's Proposal For Period Of Thought Is Cheerfully Accepted By Soviet Union

SOMEWHERE IN GERMANY —President Kennedy's proposal for a stop - and - think period before resuming nuclear test-ban talks has been cheerfully accepted by the Russians — no wonder!

While we stop and think, they, in all probability, are doing research and development on nuclear weapons. Pretty soon there will be a new kind of "gap" — one in the use and knowledge of tactical arms with nuclear warheads.

These gloomy thoughts occur after some discreet discussion and some tedious reading, on the subject of atomic artillery. The matter is still somewhat verboten, and so little understood, that even an elementary, dead pan recital carries, I think, a certain amount of news content.

Well, then, the atomic materials which finally go into the ammunition are not so plentiful as to be cheap. The task of refining the product is difficult and highly technical, the more so because for over two years we have refrained from the tests which might allow us to refine the product and develop production skills.

Atomic ammunition is contained in artillery shells which bear distinctive color markings and serial numbers. (The forward troops of the Seventh Army in West Germany are already supply lines are in existence for resupply.) Every soldier who handles atomic materials, even the paperwork, must be selected and trained so as to insure, among other things, his psychological.

The moral and scientific mystique which encases military atomics is not inherent in the materials. It is a result of enemy propaganda which seeks to impede American development and acceptance of atomics, and of old wives' tales by persons who seek self - importance and sensationalism. An artillery commander's handbook, which lies before me, reads:

"There is actually nothing strange, new, or unfamiliar about the concept of (atomic) 'target analysis', because it is an extension of knowledge which all soldiers possess . . . In analyzing a target when a nuclear weapon is to be employed, the procedure involves comparing the effects of weapons . . . on a target of known (or assumed) size and composition. This results either in the estimation of casualties or damage to be achieved . . ."

Nothing could be simpler. Napoleon, the most famous of artillery officers, would have understood perfectly, without an knowledge of nuclear physics. The only added danger in the use of atomic artillery lies in the ignorance of the user — again, the strongest possible argument for making atomic tests, whether the Russians and Chinese, British and French, do or don't. The duty of all commanders, from the president on down, is to make this country militarily stronger than any coalition of foes, and strong enough to win without counting on the dubious help of allies.

Atomic artillery works best against advancing enemy infantry which does not expect nuclear fire. The slide rules, which calculate these things, show that a single 20 kiloton shell, bursting high, would kill 50 per cent of the hostile force, within 1,000 meters. If the foes were dug into foxholes or were advancing behind armor, the kill area would be smaller, and a low - burst shot would be used.

There is no "fallout" on airbursts. Artillerymen say, "The effect is gone with the boom." But against deep fortifications, a groundburst or "cratering" would be indicated, with lethal fallout, the strength of which can be calculated and controlled — once more, pleading the need of much more testing.

Calculation and control are needed to protect our own troops which advance to capture a position where the enemy has been atomically shelled. Each commander must judge the degree of military necessity when he fires atomic artillery that may injure his own soldiers. Under emergency conditions, when atomic rounds are all that may save a unit from destruction, the commander might lay down a 20 kiloton nuclear shell as close to his unprotected troops as 2,800 meters. If his own troops are warned and dug in, he might reduce this distance to 1,300 meters.

There is a great deal more of this non - secret information about a form of artillery ammunition which we are bound to use next time we fight, and about which the American public ought to become sophisitcated.

If the world isn't big enough for Communism and the rest of us, the side with atomic sophistication will be the one to survive.

Cults Plentiful

'One Seeks To Save Negro From Wilderness Of North America'

This country is getting as full of cults as the pomegranate has seeds. During the pro-Lumumba rioting which occurred in the United Nations, one of these cults, the Nation of Islam, appeared. This was organized in Detroit in the early 1930's by W. D. Fard, an ex-convict. Fard's leadership was taken over by a Georgia-born Negro named Elijah Poole who changed his name to Elijah Muhammad. According to Poole, Fard was Allah, and Elijah is the "Messenger of Allah." The Nation of Islam claims a membership up to a quarter of a million but as their affairs are secret, it is impossible to verify their numbers.

The objective is to save the Negro from "the wilderness of North America," to take them out of the "slavery imposed on them by the white race." In Harlem, Elijah's followers are often referred to as Africans.

Under Elijah Muhammad, the headquarters of the cult moved from Detroit to Chicago. Altogether there are at least 30 temples in various parts of the United States. There are also affiliated groups. The members are rigidly disciplined by captains who work directly under Elijah Muhammad.

The membership consists of men and women who are segregated, the women wearing a grotesque white uniform. The men are called the Fruit of Islam; the women, Muslim Girls Training. Both groups are under military discipline. Their objective is to hate "the white devil." These people are being conditioned and trained for the "War of Armageddon" when the blacks — as they refer to themselves — will kill the whites.

The Nation of Islam maintains two so-called universities; one in Detroit; the other in Chicago. These are for children between four and the upper teens. Public officials have had difficulties with them. In addition, each temple runs several businesses, which members are expected to patronize.

In February, the Nation of Islam has a convention in Chicago which is arranged like an Oriental bazaar. February is usually the start of the Feast of Ramadan among Moslems. Muhammad and his captains deliver long, vindictive speeches against the whites and against the Government of the United States. Although Elijah pretends to support the beliefs and doctrines of Islam, a study of his preachments must produce the view that he is not adequately learned in the Koran or any interpretations thereupon. The founders of this cult were not Moslems; they were American Negroes. However, they attached themselves to Islam, calling themselves first Allah's Temple of Islam and the Muslim Cult of Islam, and now settling down to be the Nation of Islam.

The organizer, W. D. Fard, who has disappeared and who the votaries of this sect believe is Allah, that is, God, was a peddler in Detroit after serving a three years period in San Quentin Penitentiary for violating the narcotics law. He went by many names and preached violence.

At first Fard preached the Bible but very soon abandoned and ridiculed the Testament and preached racial hatred instead. On November 21, 1932, Detroit was shocked by a frightful story of a human sacrifice. Robert Harris induced his roomer, John J. Smith, to present himself as a human sacrifice so that he might become the "Savior of the world." At the appointed time and place, Harris plunged a knife into Smith's heart. Harris was arrested and adjudged insane. Fard disappeared in May 1933.

Elijah Poole, variously known as Gulan Bogans, Gulam Bogans, and Mohammed Rassouli, took over. He was born in 1897 near Sandersville, Georgia, one of 13 children of Wali and Marie Poole.

LINCOLN

I sometimes think of Lincoln as . . . An ageless redwood tree . . . For in its solemn quietude . . . It has his dignity . . . To storms the lofty redwood tree . . . Has never turned its back . . . And neither did the silent man . . . Who wore a mantle black . . . The tree can take its mighty arms . . . And weaker ones embrace . . . As often Lincoln comforted . . . A childish saddened face . . . The sturdy mammoth redwood tree . . . Has roots both deep and long . . . And stands like words of Lincoln stand . . . Upon foundation strong . . . Thus as the tree in forest looms . . . At awesome giant height . . . So he still towers over men . . . As torch with freedom's light.

Views Of Our Readers

Against Integration

MONROE, La.

To the Editor:

It is encouraging to know that there are people who are still against integration and to know of the recent victory of the local option measure. But how do we further collect our forces to unite to combat this evil?

Manning Johnson, a Negro, sums up the school situation in his book "Color, Communism, and Common Sense" like this: "The whole issue boils down to taking Negro children out of one school and transferring them to another so that they can be seated with white children on the assumption that only in this way will the Negro child get an education. What really is being implied is that the 113,000 Negro teachers in Southern schools are inferior, incompetent and unable to properly teach the children of their own race . . . it is a question of the liquidation of the Negro school and the Negro teacher under the guise of integration.. ." Mr. Johnson also reveals that the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and orders from Moscow are the reason for the racial tension. The communists are not interested in helping the Negro, they are only interested in exploiting the Negro discovered Mrs. Helen Wood Birnie, who lost her dedication to the Communist Party for this reason.

All men are not created equal. Paul Harvey brought this to our attention during his recent visit to this city. Some people in this world are normal, some above average, some retarded, but each person has a special place to fill. Some beings are created white, some Negro, but each group with different talents and characteristics. Integration means we lose those special tasks God has assigned us, thereby displeasing God and so we disobey His will. "God, give us convictions to obey You."

More About Foxes

EROS, La.

To the Editor:

I am a member of the Louisiana Fox Hunters Association and I want to express my opinion of my fellow companions and members of this Association. I live about three miles from the lodge and have had the privilege of hunting with them. It is a clean sport and the members of this association are all fine upright citizens and voters of Louisiana.

Mr. W. O. Roberts of Ward 7 of Ouachita Parish stated in his article of Feb. 15, 1961, that there had been some 500 foxes turned loose in Ward 1 of Jackson Parish. Now, Mr. Roberts knows there aren't 500 foxes in Jackson Parish, let alone in Ward 1. The 33 foxes that were shipped into Jackson Parish were all vaccinated against rabies, but if you see any of these Red foxes in Ouachita Parish, especially in Ward 7, we would be happy for you to give any member of this outstanding association a ring and any one of us would gladly round them up and get them back into our area.

May I also state that we welcome all hunters to come into our ward and join in the recreation and sport of our fox hunts.

Easter Meditation

To the Editor:

I am submitting herewith a copy of an Easter Meditation that I wrote many years ago, for the Easter issue of your excellent paper, if you care to publish it.

That you may know who I am: I was born and reared in Arkansas, where I had lived all my life till two years ago the first of last November, when I came to Rayville to make my home with a son of mine and his family.

I am a retired Methodist preacher from Arkansas. The enclosed was written just before Easter, 1931, while I was a pastor of the Methodist Church at DeWitt, Ark.; and was read to my congregation there on Easter Sunday morning following the writing.

I have never offered it for publication to any other paper in this state.

If it strikes you as worthy, use it. If not, forget it.

(Written just before Easter, 1931, and read to my congregation at DeWitt, Ark. on Easter morning.)

Nineteen centuries ago today,
May be a little less or more,
Two angels from out the unseen shore
Stopped in front of a rock-hewn tomb
Hard by an ancient city's wall.

As touched their feet the trembling earth,
Creaked in its groove the unresisting stone,
Contemptuous of the governor's seal.
As dead men fell the soldiers down
Who through long hours vain watch had kept.
Breathless with haste and fear,
Their hands filled with tokens fit only for the dead,
Came the women through the graying morn,
Their hearts too overborne with sorrow
To reck of bird note, or scent of joyous spring.
They stop! Strong fears within their bosoms beating!
The stone is rolled away;
Young men in heavenly array
A sentry now within the empty tomb are keeping.
"Why seek ye among the dead," they said, "the living?
He is not here, but is risen as he said.
Come see the place where your Lord lay,
And hasten forth and tell it."
"O Day of days! O happy golden morning!
No words could tell, nor heart could hold
The full joy of that first glad Easter Day.

Appreciates Stories

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

May I take this opportunity to extend to your organization and staff the sincere thanks of the DSA committee of the Louisiana Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The editors, Mr. Dallas Roper and Mr. Bert Hatten were most cooperative in the news stories published on our board meeting. We on the committee would like to thank you most sincerely for the half - page of our nominees' pictures which appeared in the February 8 News-Star.

Our committee feels that due to newspaper coverage, we were able to bring to Monroe over 500 Jaycees and Jaynes. In addition, we feel that the number of nominees entered — 27, and the number of nominees in Monroe at the awards banquet — 23, was due in large measure to the publication of the DSA presentation meeting. Once again, we would like to thank you, Mr. Gates, Mr. Roper and Mr. Hatten for your big assist in making our project the finest that has ever been held in Jaycee DSA history.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER
U. S. Senator from Arizona

In my last column, I touched on the newspaper article announcing that some of the nation's largest manufacturers of electrical equipment had been the subject of federal prosecution under the anti-trust laws.

The Associated Press dispatch I read reports that 29 companies and officials had responded to that federal prosecution with pleas of guilty or no defense. The newspaper reports stated that the officials of these electrical companies had, in fact, conspired together to set a fixed price on certain pieces of electrical equipment.

Price fixing is offensive to our notions of a competitive free enterprise. The anti - trust laws themselves were the outgrowth of many instances of price fixing practiced by giant corporations against individual consumers.

Our understanding of the free enterprise system requires that anyone with a commodity or a product to sell should work out a price structure reflecting cost plus profit and should then compete for the customers in the open market. This system has served the Republic through all the years of our existence.

I have on many previous occasions suggested it might be wise to consider applying these same anti-trust provisions, which now operate to prevent price fixing on commodities and goods, to price fixing on labor.

I am certainly not defending the practice of price fixing as it was apparently revealed by the anti-trust prosecutions in Philadelphia. But what I am suggesting is that if it is wrong for the managers of industry to set a common price — if such a practice is harmful to the free enterprise system — then is it no less harmful for union bosses to arbitrarily establish a price for labor. In unionized industry, the leaders of national labor unions enforce a rigid monopoly on a commodity which is vital to the continued operations of the business.

The word "monopoly" conjurs up in our minds a vision of unfair competition. Nation-wide unions are in effect a labor monopoly, and these monopolies are controlled by a handful of union bosses.

If it is detrimental to the operation of the free enterprise system to have 29 large electrical manufacturers set prices by agreement among themselves, is it not also detrimental to have one or two giant labor unions establish the price the manufacturer must pay for labor?

If we can believe the reporters who interviewed actual steel workers during the last destructive steel strike, we can believe that many of these steel workers did not want to leave their jobs. The monopoly power of the steel union bosses decreed there would be a strike.

We needn't take sides in the steel controversy to consider whether or not this concentration of power in the hands of the bosses of industry - wide unions may not be just as corrupting an influence as is the concentration of decision making in the hands of a few industrial leaders.

Diplomatic General

Army generals and career diplomats ordinarily are about as far apart as night and day in the manner in which they approach problems. The general is likely to be abrupt and is certain to issue orders which he expects to be obeyed promptly. The diplomat uses a smoother approach. He is more likely to use persuasion and logic than force.

This raises some question as to whether President Kennedy's appointment of retired Lieutenant-General James M. Gavin to be ambassador to France was a wise choice.

It is plausible to speculate that the circumstances under which General Gavin left active military service had at least as much to do with his appointment as did his qualifications. He resigned as a protest against policies of the Eisenhower administration with respect to the army's missile program, for which he was responsible as chief of army research and development.

At the time of his retirement it was noted that the general's decision spoke well for his determination as a military leader to stop at nothing in seeking the best for his country's defense.

There may have been, however, another reason for his taking such dramatic action at that time. He may have already had a political bee in his bonnet and may have realized that criticism of the Eisenhower administration at that time was the best way to bring his aspirations to fruition.

Be that as it may, his action provided Presidential Candidate Kennedy with "missile gap" ammunition to fire at the Republicans' defense program. That may have been one of the things that helped to bring victory for Kennedy.

One factor President Kennedy was said to have considered in naming General Gavin was his acquaintance with French President Charles de Gaulle. That could be helpful but the relationship between the two as allied soldiers at war against a common enemy and as head of state and ambassador no doubt will be quite different.

Although President Kennedy pledged he would choose the best-qualified man for each appointive post, he may have departed from that policy; and adopted one more political; in naming General Gavin.

Handle 389,000 Volts

Science, in many ways, makes the world more dangerous, through such devices as nuclear weapons, but is also acts in many ways to make the world safer.

Now is has made it possible for an electric power worker to handle "hot" wires carrying up to 380,000 volts without danger of burns or ill effects of any kind.

The daintiest sparrow can perch on a power line carrying several hundred thousand volts and never singe a feather. This has been known for many years and it has also long been known that the reason this is true is that the sparrow does not touch the earth or any other "ground" at the same time. If he touches anything that short-circuits the voltage he will be burned to a crisp instantly. This happens occasionally but the bird neither knows nor thinks anything about it as he sits happily on a "hot" wire.

When birds light on a high-voltage line they are not injured because they merely become charged with the same voltage which the line carries. The electric current which kills only flows between two points when there is a difference in voltage.

Linemen can now work barehanded on high-voltage lines while standing in a fiberglass bucket hoisted to overhead wires by a truck-mounted, insulated aerial boom. The bucket and the men in it are charged at the same voltage as the line. Their safety is provided by the insulated boom, which protects them from the difference in voltage between the ground and the live conductor.

This new method for handling "hot" wires with bare hands has been thoroughly laboratory-tested at voltages up to 380,000 and field work has been done on lines carrying up to 138,000 volts. Using the new system, linemen can change an insulator on a 34,000-volt line in just one-half a man-hour of the five formerly required.

Man has learned at least two—and probably many other—important lessons from the birds. One is how to fly and the other is how to touch high-voltage wires safely.

Yale On Alcoholism

According to Yale University's "Quarterly Journal of Studies of Alcohol," there are 5,000,000 sufferers from alcoholism in the United States today.

Researchers estimate that 900,000 of these are women. The number may be greater because women have more protection and seclusion in their drinking. They are not as universally compelled to work, as are practically all men who do not reach "Skid Row," and are therefore able to conceal their addiction for a longer time. This may actually be against their best interests, since it allows them to go longer before seeking treatment.

Best modern thinking, psychologists say, is that alcoholism is a disease, coming form a combination of causes—psychological, social and physiological factors must all be present. Sex, degree of wealth, even one's moral upbringing have little to do with it. Of course, a total abstainer won't become an addict as long as he abstains. There are many who believe that there are many potential alcoholics among the abstainers. Some abstainers, themselves, believe they would become alcoholics if they once began drinking intoxicants.

Yale studies indicate that only three per cent of our alcoholics are on "Skid Row."

An article in the March edition of Ladies Home Journal faces up to the problem of the woman alcoholic, tells what society can do for her and how she can help herself.

"Women especially," the magazine says, "are protected by the privacy of the home. But it is important to find them, not to blame them but to help them face realities. Just because they are women the rules of alcoholism will not change.

Help for these sufferers must include greater education of nonalcoholics, the publication says, adding "If the great burden of shame could be lifted from the word 'alcoholism' more women at an earlier stage might face their drinking problems honestly and say to themselves, 'I probably have alcoholism.' " Then the battle could be fought in the open.

Both alcoholism and mental disorders need to be removed from the areas of "disgrace" into the field of common sense.

Thinking On Nuclear Tests

President Kennedy's Proposal For Period Of Thought Is Cheerfully Accepted By Soviet Union

SOMEWHERE IN GERMANY —President Kennedy's proposal for a stop - and - think period before resuming nuclear test-ban talks has been cheerfully accepted by the Russians — no wonder!

While we stop and think, they, in all probability, are doing research and development on nuclear weapons. Pretty soon there will be a new kind of "gap" — one in the use and knowledge of tactical arms with nuclear warheads.

These gloomy thoughts occur after some discreet discussion and some tedious reading, on the subject of atomic artillery. The matter is still somewhat verboten, and so little understood, that even an elementary, dead pan recital carries, I think, a certain amount of news content.

Well, then, the atomic materials which finally go into the ammunition are not so plentiful as to be cheap. The task of refining the product is difficult and highly technical, the more so because for over two years we have refrained from the tests which might allow us to refine the product and develop production skills.

Atomic ammunition is contained in artillery shells which bear distinctive color markings and serial numbers. (The forward troops of the Seventh Army in West Germany are already supply lines are in existence for resupply.) Every soldier who handles atomic materials, even the paperwork, must be selected and trained so as to insure, among other things, his psychological.

The moral and scientific mystique which encases military atomics is not inherent in the materials. It is a result of enemy propaganda which seeks to impede American development and acceptance of atomics, and of old wives' tales by persons who seek self - importance and sensationalism. An artillery commander's handbook, which lies before me, reads:

"There is actually nothing strange, new, or unfamiliar about the concept of (atomic) 'target analysis', because it is an extension of knowledge which all soldiers possess . . . In analyzing a target when a nuclear weapon is to be employed, the procedure involves comparing the effects of weapons . . . on a target of known (or assumed) size and composition. This results either in the estimation of casualties or damage to be achieved . . ."

Nothing could be simpler. Napoleon, the most famous of artillery officers, would have understood perfectly, without an knowledge of nuclear physics. The only added danger in the use of atomic artillery lies in the ignorance of the user — again, the strongest possible argument for making atomic tests, whether the Russians and Chinese, British and French, do or don't. The duty of all commanders, from the president on down, is to make this country militarily stronger than any coalition of foes, and strong enough to win without counting on the dubious help of allies.

Atomic artillery works best against advancing enemy infantry which does not expect nuclear fire. The slide rules, which calculate these things, show that a single 20 kiloton shell, bursting high, would kill 50 per cent of the hostile force, within 1,000 meters. If the foes were dug into foxholes or were advancing behind armor, the kill area would be smaller, and a low - burst shot would be used.

There is no "fallout" on airbursts. Artillerymen say, "The effect is gone with the boom." But against deep fortifications, a groundburst or "cratering" would be indicated, with lethal fallout, the strength of which can be calculated and controlled — once more, pleading the need of much more testing.

Calculation and control are needed to protect our own troops which advance to capture a position where the enemy has been atomically shelled. Each commander must judge the degree of military necessity when he fires atomic artillery that may injure his own soldiers. Under emergency conditions, when atomic rounds are all that may save a unit from destruction, the commander might lay down a 20 kiloton nuclear shell as close to his unprotected troops as 2,800 meters. If his own troops are warned and dug in, he might reduce this distance to 1,300 meters.

There is a great deal more of this non - secret information about a form of artillery ammunition which we are bound to use next time we fight, and about which the American public ought to become sophisitcated.

If the world isn't big enough for Communism and the rest of us, the side with atomic sophistication will be the one to survive.

Cults Plentiful

'One Seeks To Save Negro From Wilderness Of North America'

This country is getting as full of cults as the pomegranate has seeds. During the pro-Lumumba rioting which occurred in the United Nations, one of these cults, the Nation of Islam, appeared. This was organized in Detroit in the early 1930's by W. D. Fard, an ex-convict. Fard's leadership was taken over by a Georgia-born Negro named Elijah Poole who changed his name to Elijah Muhammad. According to Poole, Fard was Allah, and Elijah is the "Messenger of Allah." The Nation of Islam claims a membership up to a quarter of a million but as their affairs are secret, it is impossible to verify their numbers.

The objective is to save the Negro from "the wilderness of North America," to take them out of the "slavery imposed on them by the white race." In Harlem, Elijah's followers are often referred to as Africans.

Under Elijah Muhammad, the headquarters of the cult moved from Detroit to Chicago. Altogether there are at least 30 temples in various parts of the United States. There are also affiliated groups. The members are rigidly disciplined by captains who work directly under Elijah Muhammad.

The membership consists of men and women who are segregated, the women wearing a grotesque white uniform. The men are called the Fruit of Islam; the women, Muslim Girls Training. Both groups are under military discipline. Their objective is to hate "the white devil." These people are being conditioned and trained for the "War of Armageddon" when the blacks — as they refer to themselves — will kill the whites.

The Nation of Islam maintains two so-called universities; one in Detroit; the other in Chicago. These are for children between four and the upper teens. Public officials have had difficulties with them. In addition, each temple runs several businesses, which members are expected to patronize.

In February, the Nation of Islam has a convention in Chicago which is arranged like an Oriental bazaar. February is usually the start of the Feast of Ramadan among Moslems. Muhammad and his captains deliver long, vindictive speeches against the whites and against the Government of the United States. Although Elijah pretends to support the beliefs and doctrines of Islam, a study of his preachments must produce the view that he is not adequately learned in the Koran or any interpretations thereupon. The founders of this cult were not Moslems; they were American Negroes. However, they attached themselves to Islam, calling themselves first Allah's Temple of Islam and the Muslim Cult of Islam, and now settling down to be the Nation of Islam.

The organizer, W. D. Fard, who has disappeared and who the votaries of this sect believe is Allah, that is, God, was a peddler in Detroit after serving a three years period in San Quentin Penitentiary for violating the narcotics law. He went by many names and preached violence.

At first Fard preached the Bible but very soon abandoned and ridiculed the Testament and preached racial hatred instead. On November 21, 1932, Detroit was shocked by a frightful story of a human sacrifice. Robert Harris induced his roomer, John J. Smith, to present himself as a human sacrifice so that he might become the "Savior of the world." At the appointed time and place, Harris plunged a knife into Smith's heart. Harris was arrested and adjudged insane. Fard disappeared in May 1933.

Elijah Poole, variously known as Gulan Bogans, Gulam Bogans, and Mohammed Rassouli, took over. He was born in 1897 near Sandersville, Georgia, one of 13 children of Wali and Marie Poole.

Views Of Our Readers

Against Integration

MONROE, La.

To the Editor:

It is encouraging to know that there are people who are still against integration and to know of the recent victory of the local option measure. But how do we further collect our forces to unite to combat this evil?

Manning Johnson, a Negro, sums up the school situation in his book "Color, Communism, and Common Sense" like this: "The whole issue boils down to taking Negro children out of one school and transferring them to another so that they can be seated with white children on the assumption that only in this way will the Negro child get an education. What really is being implied is that the 113,000 Negro teachers in Southern schools are inferior, incompetent and unable to properly teach the children of their own race . . . it is a question of the liquidation of the Negro school and the Negro teacher under the guise of integration.. ." Mr. Johnson also reveals that the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and orders from Moscow are the reason for the racial tension. The communists are not interested in helping the Negro, they are only interested in exploiting the Negro discovered Mrs. Helen Wood Birnie, who lost her dedication to the Communist Party for this reason.

All men are not created equal. Paul Harvey brought this to our attention during his recent visit to this city. Some people in this world are normal, some above average, some retarded, but each person has a special place to fill. Some beings are created white, some Negro, but each group with different talents and characteristics. Integration means we lose those special tasks God has assigned us, thereby displeasing God and so we disobey His will. "God, give us convictions to obey You."

More About Foxes

EROS, La.

To the Editor:

I am a member of the Louisiana Fox Hunters Association and I want to express my opinion of my fellow companions and members of this Association. I live about three miles from the lodge and have had the privilege of hunting with them. It is a clean sport and the members of this association are all fine upright citizens and voters of Louisiana.

Mr. W. O. Roberts of Ward 7 of Ouachita Parish stated in his article of Feb. 15, 1961, that there had been some 500 foxes turned loose in Ward 1 of Jackson Parish. Now, Mr. Roberts knows there aren't 500 foxes in Jackson Parish, let alone in Ward 1. The 33 foxes that were shipped into Jackson Parish were all vaccinated against rabies, but if you see any of these Red foxes in Ouachita Parish, especially in Ward 7, we would be happy for you to give any member of this outstanding association a ring and any one of us would gladly round them up and get them back into our area.

May I also state that we welcome all hunters to come into our ward and join in the recreation and sport of our fox hunts.

Easter Meditation

To the Editor:

I am submitting herewith a copy of an Easter Meditation that I wrote many years ago, for the Easter issue of your excellent paper, if you care to publish it.

That you may know who I am: I was born and reared in Arkansas, where I had lived all my life till two years ago the first of last November, when I came to Rayville to make my home with a son of mine and his family.

I am a retired Methodist preacher from Arkansas. The enclosed was written just before Easter, 1931, while I was a pastor of the Methodist Church at DeWitt, Ark.; and was read to my congregation there on Easter Sunday morning following the writing.

I have never offered it for publication to any other paper in this state.

If it strikes you as worthy, use it. If not, forget it.

(Written just before Easter, 1931, and read to my congregation at DeWitt, Ark. on Easter morning.)

Nineteen centuries ago today,
May be a little less or more,
Two angels from out the unseen shore
Stopped in front of a rock-hewn tomb
Hard by an ancient city's wall.

As touched their feet the trembling earth,
Creaked in its groove the unresisting stone,
Contemptuous of the governor's seal.
As dead men fell the soldiers down
Who through long hours vain watch had kept.
Breathless with haste and fear,
Their hands filled with tokens fit only for the dead,
Came the women through the graying morn,
Their hearts too overborne with sorrow
To reck of bird note, or scent of joyous spring.
They stop! Strong fears within their bosoms beating!
The stone is rolled away;
Young men in heavenly array
A sentry now within the empty tomb are keeping.
"Why seek ye among the dead," they said, "the living?
He is not here, but is risen as he said.
Come see the place where your Lord lay,
And hasten forth and tell it."
"O Day of days! O happy golden morning!
No words could tell, nor heart could hold
The full joy of that first glad Easter Day.

Appreciates Stories

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

May I take this opportunity to extend to your organization and staff the sincere thanks of the DSA committee of the Louisiana Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The editors, Mr. Dallas Roper and Mr. Bert Hatten were most cooperative in the news stories published on our board meeting. We on the committee would like to thank you most sincerely for the half - page of our nominees' pictures which appeared in the February 8 News-Star.

Our committee feels that due to newspaper coverage, we were able to bring to Monroe over 500 Jaycees and Jaynes. In addition, we feel that the number of nominees entered — 27, and the number of nominees in Monroe at the awards banquet — 23, was due in large measure to the publication of the DSA presentation meeting. Once again, we would like to thank you, Mr. Gates, Mr. Roper and Mr. Hatten for your big assist in making our project the finest that has ever been held in Jaycee DSA history.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER
U. S. Senator from Arizona

In my last column, I touched on the newspaper article announcing that some of the nation's largest manufacturers of electrical equipment had been the subject of federal prosecution under the anti-trust laws.

The Associated Press dispatch I read reports that 29 companies and officials had responded to that federal prosecution with pleas of guilty or no defense. The newspaper reports stated that the officials of these electrical companies had, in fact, conspired together to set a fixed price on certain pieces of electrical equipment.

Price fixing is offensive to our notions of a competitive free enterprise. The anti - trust laws themselves were the outgrowth of many instances of price fixing practiced by giant corporations against individual consumers.

Our understanding of the free enterprise system requires that anyone with a commodity or a product to sell should work out a price structure reflecting cost plus profit and should then compete for the customers in the open market. This system has served the Republic through all the years of our existence.

I have on many previous occasions suggested it might be wise to consider applying these same anti-trust provisions, which now operate to prevent price fixing on commodities and goods, to price fixing on labor.

I am certainly not defending the practice of price fixing as it was apparently revealed by the anti-trust prosecutions in Philadelphia. But what I am suggesting is that if it is wrong for the managers of industry to set a common price — if such a practice is harmful to the free enterprise system — then is it no less harmful for union bosses to arbitrarily establish a price for labor. In unionized industry, the leaders of national labor unions enforce a rigid monopoly on a commodity which is vital to the continued operations of the business.

The word "monopoly" conjurs up in our minds a vision of unfair competition. Nation-wide unions are in effect a labor monopoly, and these monopolies are controlled by a handful of union bosses.

If it is detrimental to the operation of the free enterprise system to have 29 large electrical manufacturers set prices by agreement among themselves, is it not also detrimental to have one or two giant labor unions establish the price the manufacturer must pay for labor?

If we can believe the reporters who interviewed actual steel workers during the last destructive steel strike, we can believe that many of these steel workers did not want to leave their jobs. The monopoly power of the steel union bosses decreed there would be a strike.

We needn't take sides in the steel controversy to consider whether or not this concentration of power in the hands of the bosses of industry - wide unions may not be just as corrupting an influence as is the concentration of decision making in the hands of a few industrial leaders.

Unwritten Laws; Many Hit Congress Sessions

EDITOR'S NOTE — Reams of bills are funneled into the congressional hopper every session but precious few are ever ground out at the other end. The rest is chaff swept unlamented into the wastebasket. The current crop is no exception but the pick of the litter, involving a citizen named D. D. Eisenhower, is odds on to make it.

By ARTHUR EDSON
AP Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A conservative politician once said that what this nation needs is a gradual, careful unmaking of its laws.

And for anyone who shares this view, the opening of Congress is a depressing occasion.

Representatives and their helpers gang up on the hopper where the bills are introduced. Some have so many ideas for new laws that they have their bills tied in bundles—and look like Boy Scouts on a successful waste paper drive.

Senators, of a more leisurely race, don't rush in so rapidly.

But in this Congress they have joined in with such enthusiasm that now, less than two months since opening day, thousands of bills have been introduced, and more pour in daily.

And yet, for all this industry, most bills won't get—and possibly don't deserve—a decent hearing. Only a handful ever will become law.

Few, pitifully few, ever will be kicked around in public enough to give the average citizen a chance to understand them.

Generally, these will be the bills that get President Kennedy's backing, such as federal aid to education, help for the unemployed, a higher minimum wage, or the big money bills that add up to more than an $80-billion budget.

The mortality figures on bills are plain enough.

In the 86th Congress, for example, which gave up the struggle on Sept. 1, 1960, there were 17,230 bills introduced of which 1,292 became laws.

Traditionally a bill is given less than one chance in 10 of becoming law.

It's too bad so many bills are born, utter a faint cry heard only by the Congressional Record, and then die and are buried unmourned in an unmarked grave. For merely a glance through their titles would give the public a better understanding of the complexities of this nation's business.

Consider this simple question: How many congressmen are enough?

For years, until Alaska and Hawaii were admitted, 435 representatives were considered exactly right.

The two new states shoved the total to 437.

But as the law now stands, this will revert to 435 seats in the next session. These will be spread around proportionately, as determined by the 1960 census.

States with enough increase in population will get more representatives; states that have held their own, or have lost, will get less.

No congressman is eager to have his job plucked from under him, and so several have found a solution: more congressmen.

Rep. James G. Fulton, R-Pa., among others, would increase the House to 450. Rep. Thomas J. Lane, D-Mass., would boost it to 453. Rep. Basil L. Whitener, D-N.C., would raise it to 436.

Observe the sense of urgency in these bills? Unless the law is changed, Pennsylvania will lose 3 seats, Massachusetts 2 and North Carolina 1.

Concern for the care and protection of congressmen stirs our legislators' hearts—and bill drafters.

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, thinks senators and representatives should take summer vacations like other mortals.

Her view of a congressman, wilted by the summer's heat, fretted by late sessions and what may happen in his next election, shows that every job has its drawbacks.

"The over-all result is that we legislate in such periods under conditions that are not conducive for clear minds and stable emotions," she says.

However roiled the mind or turbulent the emotion, the legislative show must go on.

Sen. Francis Case, R-S.D., who used to be one, thinks a representative should serve four years instead of two. Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., would provide copies of the Congressional Record to former congressmen who yearn to know what the old gang is up to.

Rep. Frank Chelf, D-Ky., believes a president should be made a senator when he finishes his White House chores, a fancy that holds great attraction for everyone except former presidents. William Howard Taft was asked about a somewhat similar proposal in 1912. Chloroform, Taft said, could prove a more merciful oblivion.

But a congressman doesn't think only of himself. If he has his collective way, we will all have an almost continuous round of special days and weeks to celebrate.

Without pausing to list their sponsors, let's look at some of the bill proposals.

At this moment we would be recalling our past, with February as National History Month. Ahead would be Arbor Day (last Friday in April), Law Day (May 1), followed, appropriately, by National Police Week (May 22-27).

June 4-10 could be jolly. It has been suggested, for reasons not glaringly obvious, as National American Guild of Variety Artists Week.

And other proposals have rolled in for a Senior Citizens's Month, a National Day of Prayer for the Cure of Cancer, Gen. Casimir Pulaski Day, a Teacher's Day, a Fireman's Day, an Interfaith Day, a Hernando de Soto Week and a Haym Salomon Day.

In case you haven't been observing National History Month, and don't know about Salomon: he went broke helping to finance the American Revolution.

Not even a postage stamp escapes the eager scrutiny of our lawmakers.

They have proposed stamps to call attention to highway safety, to Temple University on its 75th birthday, to Sequoyah, the pride of the Cherokee Indians, to Jefferson Davis, to lumberjacks, to good health, to the signers of the Declaration of Independence, to Dr. Jesse Torrey, who set up the first free library.

Rep. B. F. Sisk, D-Calif., has a bill to assure the orderly marketing of turkeys.

Rep. James Roosevelt, D-Calif., thinks this country should seriously consider using the metric system, while Rep. Abraham J. Multer, D-N.Y., wants dogs kept on leash in the District of Columbia, a reminder that Congress also serves as a city council for the nation's capital.

Rep. August E. Johansen, R-Mich., would reduce the duty on paprika, while Rep. John B. Bennett, another Michigan Republican, thinks a duty should be put on imported nutshell charcoal and on lignite briquets.

Rep. Victor L. Anfuso, D-N.Y., wants Congress to commend ADA Rogers Wilson of Texas for her musical composition entitled, "American Victory! American Liberty!"

And Ireland, who can forget Ireland? So Congress as been asked to pass a resolution favoring unity for that rambunctious island. And, faith, wouldn't ye know that it should be done by that Democratic gentleman from Rhode Island, the Hon. John Edward Fogarty?

Unlike public bills, which apply to us all, more than half the bills enacted into law by the last Congress were private bills, and they illustrate the point perfectly.

Private bills deal with individuals in dispute with the mighty federal government.

Merely the names of those seeking relief suggest how far ranging the problems are: Ali Khosrowkhah, Yick T. Jew, Giovanni Freda, C. W. Jones, Kisaku Yamada, Georgios Tzotzolas, Shun Ngor Ong and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The former president isn't exactly in distress. But Rep. James G. Fulton, R-Pa., would restore Eisenhower to his rank as general of the Army, and his name is democratically listed along with all the other supplicants.

How Do Embezzlers Get Away With It?

NOTE — Safecrackers and all their furtive brother robbers heisted an estimated total of $440 million in cash and merchandise during a recent year. Operating with far less effort in the same time, embezzlers lifted $500 million. How can they get away with it? What finally trips them up? Here's a study of a tantalizing but risky trade.

He's about 35, has a wife, two kids and is paying the mortgage on his home. It's in a nice neighborhood. He has a car. It's a medium-priced model.

He always has time for the Boy Scout troop, the church bazaar, the Community Fund drive.

He's a person you'd trust. He seems secure and confident, but he lives in fear. At any minute some accident, some freak development, could unmask him.

He's an embezzler.

This embezzler has no name. He's a composite based on a detailed study of 1,001 embezzlers who stole a total of $3,694,641.27. The study was made by the United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., which had to pay off for the thievery of these white collar crooks.

Among the great legion are such pillars of society as William Richard Rose, who embezzled $1.4 million from his own bank at Ellenville, N. Y.; the late Harold Giles Hoffman, onetime New Jersey governor, who financed his political career with $300,000 of the state's money; Miss Minnie Mangum, executive of a Norfolk, Va., building and loan association, who got $2,919,000 in cash—more than double the cash stolen by armed robbers in the fabulous Boston Brink's holdup; and Burnice Iverson Geiger, who broke the bank at Sheldon, Iowa—her father's bank—by stealing $2,126,850.10.

These hardly seem like people to place alongside the professional crooks. But all the nation's robbers, burglars, pickpockets and auto thieves together stole a total of $440 million in a recent year. In the same period, embezzlers got a minimum of $500 million, and some experts insist the true figure is at least $1 billion.

Determining the loot pocketed by embezzlers is complex because of several factors: It's done by people who are considered honest; it's done in hundreds of different ways; it's frequently carried out over a long period of time; it's not always reported, even after it's discovered; there is some confusion in legal definition."

The embezzler-to-be, whether he's a laundry man or bank president or lawyer, rarely has anything in his background to suggest that one day he will start fattening his take-home pay. He generally has been a genuinely honest person who can claim with conviction that never in his life did he intend to steal a single penny. What then goes wrong?

"The embezzler feels that he has an unsharable problem, that no one can help him, and no one could possibly get inside him to find out what he's all about," says Dr. Irving Jacks, Temple University Medical School assistant professor and former clinical psychologist with the New York City Department of Correction.

"He feels that no one could break through the logical system he has devised for supplying himself with money power. The embezzler, most of all, never thinks of himself as a thief but as quite apart from other criminals, as above the mass of men."

The embezzler who usually wins public sympathy has a pathetic story—one that may be absolutely true: the $53-a-week bank clerk with an ill wife; the widow with four children, the insurance company executive helping a brother-in-law get started in business. However, close examination may show that the sick wife goes to the doctor in an air-conditioned limousine; the widow's children are in an exclusive private school, and the executive's wife controls 51 per cent of the brother-in-law's business.

Ironically, quite often discovery is the result of good luck rather than good detection. Regular audits won't uncover defalcations in ordinary circumstances because they're designed to determine whether the books balance. The books do, as a rule, because they're controlled by the person who's juggling them.

These discoveries frequently occur during the absence of the finagler, which is why embezzlers hate to go on vacation.

There's irony—and poetic justice, if you want—in the case of the ambitious embezzler who methodically stole $300,000 from a bank and used the money to buy its stock. He finally installed himself as president, but the bank failed because of his speculations.

A New York embezzler who felt he was underpaid at $2,500 a year decided he needed at least $4,500, so he stole the difference. As he got raises, he cut his thefts proportionately. When his salary topped $4,500, he started returning the difference. When he was caught, he had paid back all but $3,000 of $25,000 involved.

There are hundreds of methods used in these self-help programs. Some are almost primitive. Example: a Jersey City secretary who filched stamps. That sounds like penny-ante stuff, but in five years she got $4,850. On the other extreme there is accounting wizardry of the type which once bemused the Mergenthaler Linotype Co. It lost $800,000 in an embezzlement that involved a maze of fictitious names and phantom firms.

RUNNING THE SCALES

Other Side Of 'Pacific' Aired

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

The Northeast State College production of "South Pacific" and ensuing writeup brought many shadings of comment and opinion.

Indicative of the hard work and spirit which went into the major production is the following letter from a Northeast student:

"I am a junior speech education major at NLSC and am writing you in regard to your review of Northeast's recent musical production of "South Pacific."

"Allow me to quote from your review: 'All points considered, South Pacific is not a very good bi dfor a college production. Writers Rodgers and Hammerstein probably had certain characters in mind — namely, Mary Martin and Ezio Pinza — when they whipped up this saga of World War II in the early 1950's. . . !

"It is my opinion that these writers were more than likely sure of this play's potential success before they would risk it as a mere vehicle for two stars.

"In our production, I believe the singing, acting and dancing demands of the roles were adequately met by the cast members. The leading roles of Emile de Becque and Nellie Forbush are not so difficult that they could not be effectively portrayed by students with talent and some experience. Certainly Dona Jarrell more than adequately met the dramatic and musical demands of her role. Many times her naivete captured the audience's heart and her very stage presence tied some of the otherwise dragging or expository scenes together. Yet this leading lady received not even a mention in your review.

"I, personally, disagree with your cirticism of the script, that it is an 'obvious slap at the South.' But it is certainly your privilege to state your personal opinion.

"It is my contention that a review of the performances turned out by the college actors and actresses would be more beneficial to us as students than a critical analysis of the script.

"We consider ours an educational theatre not a community theatre and recognize the difference. Surely it is a step forward when both students and faculty members work together with a minimum of stage equipment and greatly appreciated rented costumes and scenery to give the Monroe area a performance to the best of our ability of some of the finest dramatic or musical literature available."

PAST WEEK

A United Nations ambassador and a symphony orchestra on the touring circuits with a Monroe appearance of "Brother Dave" Gardner and a Louisiana Tech workshop opera packed last week's culture roster in Northeast Louisiana.

Friday was a busy day for those who caught both the afternoon performance of the Houston Symphony at Louisiana Tech in Ruston and the address by General Carlos Romulo on the Northeast State Concert series at Neville Auditorium that same evening.

"Brother Dave" Gardner's show here earlier in the week featured the comedian's deep -Southern - fried humor along with Jay Steffani on the vocals and Slick Lawson's band. Chuck Morgan served as master of ceremonies.

The Louisiana Tech music department staged workshop performances of Bizet's "Carmen" in Howard Auditorium Tuesday and Thursday nights. So far as could be established, this was the first full - length, grand opera yet undertaken by Tech resources.

The Centenary College Choir under the direction of A. C. Voran will present a concert at Neville auditorium at 8 p.m. Tuesday. The 40 - voice organization from the Shreveport college features a wide variety of choral music and costumes. Pianist Sandy Lawn of West Monroe is one of the accompanists for the group.

How To Win 'Cold War'

A FORWARD STRATEGY FOR AMERICA. By Robert Strausz-Hupe, William R. Kintner and Stefan T. Possony. Harper. $5.95.

In 1959 the Foreign Policy Research Institute at the University of Pennsylvania produced a book called "Protracted Conflict," an analysis of the Cold War. Now comes the sequel, which might be called "How to Win the Cold War." The three authors have summarized the studies of the Institute, making use of a great deal of government information.

The general reader need not shy away in fear that this is high level mumbo-jumbo. It is plain talk, cold turkey style, about things that have to be done if the free world is to survive.

For example, the book discusses with candor the dilemma of a free world (a clean fighter) always being on the defensive against the communist world (a dirty fighter). Among other things it demands more effort in propaganda, not just defensively, but to create pressure on the Reds. It demands more economic pressure in Eastern Europe and suggests policies in dealing with the "uncommitted" nations.

It argues the foolhardiness of going into summit meetings on Russia's own terms. It takes a firm stand for more nuclear testing, discusses Doomsday weapons in the manner of a poker player and outlines what the American government should tell its own people. It has specific suggestions for the structure of national security.

It demands that America get going. It insists that America mobilize all its resources and convert itself from passive reactions to positive actions, coordinating the military, economic, technological, psychological, cultural, diplomatic, and political factors into one overall strategy.

The authors feel the struggle hangs in the balance, with Russia confident the free world will not rouse itself until it is too late. They say the trend must be reversed in the next decade, if at all.

Snowbound With Girl, Bat-Man

A WINTER'S TALE. By Jon Godden. Knopf. $3.95.

This is quite British, don't you know. But perhaps only the British could make this sort of thing come off. It is an unusual tale of four personalities — one a great, wolf - like Alsatian named Sylvie.

Her master is Jerome Holt, who likes to write novels but makes his best income from plays that are dashed off in a few weeks. Now in his mid-40s he has spent most of the last 14 years holed up in an old house in the remote English countryside. There are two reasons for this withdrawal: the house suits his writing habits and it is a refuge from women. He is a man who permits himself only casual affairs now and then, when his writing talent has gone stale and he needs a lift. He needs one as the book opens.

Holt's man of all affairs is Peter, who had been his batman during the war and had suffered a hideous mutilation of his face in an accidental explosion. Peter has found his life pattern in caring for Holt.

A young actress, Una, has fallen in love with Holt during one of his London jaunts. Tracing him to his hideaway, she arrives at the start of a week - long snowstorm. In this snowbound isolation the love affair plays out to the expected result, Una's departure. But in that week there are gathering tensions among two men, a woman with a feline mind and a she-dog.

At the finish you might say Una has her revenge on Holt at Sylvie's cost. Yet there is more, an odd undertone of male vs. female. And there would have been no story without Sylvie.

The writing suits the action. Almost too leisurely at first, it develops pace at the right time. The final scene between Una and Jerome is done keenly and well, and there are tersely masculine passages describing the final actions of the two men.

Jon Godden, like her sister Rumer Godden, is an experienced and accomplished novelist.

SPACE PROBES PLANNED

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — U. S. space scientists plan an all - out assault on the moon, Mars and Venus starting in 1962 with a series of spacecraft bearing the names Ranger, Surveyor, Prospector, Mariner and Voyager.

Mariner will include several planetary probes launched by Atlas - Agena B. to the vicinity of Mars and Venus. Voyager will be a series of later planetary probes, launched by Saturn rockets to orbit Mars and Venus and probably to eject instrumented capsules for landing on these planets.

Guide To Good Reading

New books of fiction offer a variety of material which will appeal to all types of readers. Francis Van Wyck Mason is an outstanding writer in the field of historical fiction. His latest novel is called "Manila Galleon." It is set in the early 18th century and is a stirring tale of high adventure in the best tradition. Those who like sea stories have a long and rich treat ahead of them. "Mountains Ahead" by Martha Ferguson McKeon is another historical novel. This one has its setting in the early days of our country and is concerned with the hardships and adventures of those who travelled the Oregon Trail in the year 1847. It is a chronicle of human travail of mind, body and spirit. "Mountains Ahead" is a story of a trek which fairly throbs with the noise and smell and taste of life on a wagon train. It is a tribute to the courage of our ancestors in braving tremendous hardships to expand our nation to the land beyond the mountains.

Mishail Sholokhow is the author of a new book about life in Russia called "Harvest on the Don." It is the story of the impact of the social revolution on the people of Russia and is a sequel to "Quiet Flows the Don" by the same author. A new novel by John Dos Passos is always eagerly awaited. His latest one is "Midcentury." In this book he uses characters from the world of labor, to paint an unforgettable picture of life in our time. Merle Miller has written several novels in the last few years, all of which have received excellent acceptance. His latest one is "A Gay and Melancholy Sound." This novel recounts the life and times of Joshua Bland, ex - prodigy, World War II veteran and theatrical producer. In this book we meet a procession of the great and near great in an unforgettable reading experience.

"My Hero" by Robert Carson is an explosive, moving story of the men behind the scenes in high finance and international power politics. It is a vivid and exciting portrayal of a man who must be honest, no matter what the cost to himself. "A Stranger in My Grave" is the title of a nightmare which becomes a hideous reality, written by Margaret Millar, there is a thrill in every page.

Three interesting and exciting books of non - fiction are available this week. "The War Called Peace" is the title of a book of Harry and Bonaro Overstreet which gives a perfectly excellent picture of the cold war and the problems we face. "One Week in March" is the title of a book by Mark Sherwin and Charles Lam Markmann which discusses the events of the first week of the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt in March of 1933. It is a well written book and an important addition to the field of 20th century history. An interesting book in the field of science is "The Coil of Life" by Ruth Moore. This is a history of the great discoveries in the life sciences and is fascinating reading.

More people are reading non-fiction than fiction from the main library of the Ouachita Parish Public Library and we attribute this to the fact that our non-fiction collection is growing rapidly and we are adding more and more books of factual material. Among the late additions are books of great variety. "The Story of the National Baptists" by Owen D. Pelt and Ralph Lee Smith is a very interesting account of this denomination. "Successful Real Estate Selling" by Cliff W. Krueger should be in great demand, for we never seem to have enough material on this subject.

"Shaping Our Times; What the United Nations Is and Does" is a very interesting and provocative book by Harold Courlander. It gives an excellent picture of the operations of the United Nations and should be useful to many people.

Would you like to know all the facts about health insurance? The library has a new book on this subject by Edwin J. Faulkner, which is a very comprehensive study. A splendid book of marine biology is "Creatures of the Sea" by William B. Gray. It is exciting as well as informative. Two valuable books for parents of children approaching adolescence are "What's Happening to Me" and "A Story About You" both written by Marion O. Lerrigo.

Garden books are always in demand and new ones are constantly arriving at the library. The latest one, which should be most useful to people in this community is "Your Garden in the South" by Hamilton Mason. John Durant has written a very fine account of the Olympics which he calls "Highlights of the Olympics; From Ancient Times to the Present." The name of Wernher von Braun is well known in the field of space travel and exploration. His latest book is called "First Men to the Moon" and will be widely read and enjoyed by young men. The war of 1812 is one of the most neglected episodes of our history as far as literature is concerned. We are happy that a new book by Colonel Red Reeder has just been written on this subject. It is called "The Story of the War of 1812" and is geared to high school readers.

ALMANAC

Today is Sunday, Feb. 26, the 57th day of the year with 308 more in 1961.

The moon is approaching its full phase.

The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mars and Venus.

On this day in history: In 1802, French novelist Victor Hugo was born.

In 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte fled from the island of Elba to begin his second conquest of France.

In 1846, William Frederick Cody, better known as Buffalo Bill, was born in Scott County, Iowa.

In 1870, New York's first subway line was opened to the public.

In 1887, baseball immortal Grover Alexander, was born in St. Paul, Nebraska.

Thought for today: Herbert Spencer said: "We have unmistakable proof that throughout all past time, there has been a ceaseless devouring of the weak by the strong."

My Answer

By Billy Graham

QUESTION: My Sunday School teacher says that the story of Jonah, and other Bible miracles are allegorical. Is this the way you explain Bible miracles? KL

ANSWER: No, I never try to explain away the miracles of the Bible. I have lived long enough to know that many things in life are miraculous, and inexplicable. Who has fathomed the fabulous miracle of human reproduction? Who can rationalize mother - love? Who can explain the subtle power of evil, or the miracle of self-sacrifice?

There was a time in my life when I had some honest doubts. But I went out into the mountains years ago with my Bible, and paryerfully sought a way to resolve my doubts. Finally, I made my decision. I said; "God, I don't understand everything in this book but just as I have taken you by faith, I take this Book by faith." From that time on the Word of God was like a sword in my hand. I had the strength of authority—not once have I ever tried to prove God, the Bible, or any of the miracles. I am content to let God know more than I do, and I have peace in my heart.

Unbelief is at the base of all our anxiety, but faith is the basis for peace. This goes for our relationship with God, and our relationships with man.

Accept the Bible by faith and a new dimension of living is opened to you.

Iron Brigade Were Giants In Action

THE IRON BRIGADE. By Alan T. Nolan, MacMillan. $6.95.

"They looked like giants . . . and giants they were, in action." They came from the West, from Wisconsin and Indiana, and Michigan. Their hallmark — tall and black, pinned jauntily with a golden eagle on the right side, adorned with a looping plume on the right. They were the Iron Brigade.

"Fighting Joe" Hooker christened the brigade after the battle of South Mountain in 1862. It was the only wholly Western brigade in the Army of the Potomac and its blood stained battlefields from Second Bull Run to Gettysburg. There were four regiments in the beginning — three from Wisconsin and one from Indiana. Another from Michigan came in after Antietam, when the brigade could no longer muster as many men as a regiment had at the first roll call.

Gettysburg was its last stand. On the first day's battle, in the fury of the Confederacy's initial onslaught, the Iron Brigade lost 1,212 of the 1,883 men who went into action; the new Michigan regiment lost 80 per cent of its strength — but,. unless ordered, no man had taken a backward step.

There were illustrious men on the rosters. Lysander Cutler had led Maine militia into action against the Aroostook Indians. Frank Haskell would write a famous narrative of Gettysburg. Rufus Dawes was a great - grandson of the William Dawes who rode with Paul Revere. W. W. Robinson had fought against Mexico and he was a son of a veteran of 1812. Henry A. Morrow was a judge in Michigan and a Virginian. And there were hundreds of unnamed, unsung volunteers.

This is a stirring story, one that taps a rich and still largely unexplored lode of Civil War history.

Unwritten Laws; Many Hit Congress Sessions

EDITOR'S NOTE — Reams of bills are funneled into the congressional hopper every session but precious few are ever ground out at the other end. The rest is chaff swept unlamented into the wastebasket. The current crop is no exception but the pick of the litter, involving a citizen named D. D. Eisenhower, is odds on to make it.

By ARTHUR EDSON
AP Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A conservative politician once said that what this nation needs is a gradual, careful unmaking of its laws.

And for anyone who shares this view, the opening of Congress is a depressing occasion.

Representatives and their helpers gang up on the hopper where the bills are introduced. Some have so many ideas for new laws that they have their bills tied in bundles—and look like Boy Scouts on a successful waste paper drive.

Senators, of a more leisurely race, don't rush in so rapidly.

But in this Congress they have joined in with such enthusiasm that now, less than two months since opening day, thousands of bills have been introduced, and more pour in daily.

And yet, for all this industry, most bills won't get—and possibly don't deserve—a decent hearing. Only a handful ever will become law.

Few, pitifully few, ever will be kicked around in public enough to give the average citizen a chance to understand them.

Generally, these will be the bills that get President Kennedy's backing, such as federal aid to education, help for the unemployed, a higher minimum wage, or the big money bills that add up to more than an $80-billion budget.

The mortality figures on bills are plain enough.

In the 86th Congress, for example, which gave up the struggle on Sept. 1, 1960, there were 17,230 bills introduced of which 1,292 became laws.

Traditionally a bill is given less than one chance in 10 of becoming law.

It's too bad so many bills are born, utter a faint cry heard only by the Congressional Record, and then die and are buried unmourned in an unmarked grave. For merely a glance through their titles would give the public a better understanding of the complexities of this nation's business.

Consider this simple question: How many congressmen are enough?

For years, until Alaska and Hawaii were admitted, 435 representatives were considered exactly right.

The two new states shoved the total to 437.

But as the law now stands, this will revert to 435 seats in the next session. These will be spread around proportionately, as determined by the 1960 census.

States with enough increase in population will get more representatives; states that have held their own, or have lost, will get less.

No congressman is eager to have his job plucked from under him, and so several have found a solution: more congressmen.

Rep. James G. Fulton, R-Pa., among others, would increase the House to 450. Rep. Thomas J. Lane, D-Mass., would boost it to 453. Rep. Basil L. Whitener, D-N.C., would raise it to 438.

Observe the sense of urgency in these bills? Unless the law is changed, Pennsylvania will lose 3 seats, Massachusetts 2 and North Carolina 1.

Concern for the care and protection of congressmen stirs our legislators' hearts—and bill drafters.

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, thinks senators and representatives should take summer vacations like other mortals.

Her view of a congressman, wilted by the summer's heat, fretted by late sessions and what may happen in his next election, shows that every job has its drawbacks.

"The over-all result is that we legislate in such periods under conditions that are not conducive for clear minds and stable emotions," she says.

However roiled the mind or turbulent the emotion, the legislative show must go on.

Sen. Francis Case, R-S.D., who used to be one, thinks a representative should serve four years instead of two. Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., would provide copies of the Congressional Record to former congressmen who yearn to know what the old gang is up to.

Rep. Frank Chelf, D-Ky., believes a president should be made a senator when he finishes his White House chores, a fancy that holds great attraction for everyone except former presidents. William Howard Taft was asked about a somewhat similar proposal in 1912. Chloroform, Taft said, could prove a more merciful oblivion.

But a congressman doesn't think only of himself. If he has his collective way, we will all have an almost continuous round of special days and weeks to celebrate.

Without pausing to list their sponsors, let's look at some of the bill proposals.

At this moment we would be recalling our past, with February as National History Month. Ahead would be Arbor Day (last Friday in April), Law Day (May 1), followed, appropriately, by National Police Week (May 22-27).

June 4-10 could be jolly. It has been suggested, for reasons not glaringly obvious, as National American Guild of Variety Artists Week.

And other proposals have rolled in for a Senior Citizens's Month, a National Day of Prayer for the Cure of Cancer, Gen. Casimir Pulaski Day, a Teacher's Day, a Fireman's Day, an Interfaith Day, a Hernando de Soto Week and a Haym Salomon Day.

In case you haven't been observing National History Month, and don't know about Salomon: he went broke helping to finance the American Revolution.

Not even a postage stamp escapes the eager scrutiny of our lawmakers.

They have proposed stamps to call attention to highway safety, to Temple University on its 75th birthday, to Sequoyah, the pride of the Cherokee Indians, to Jefferson Davis, to lumberjacks, to good health, to the signers of the Declaration of Independence, to Dr. Jesse Torrey, who set up the first free library.

Rep. B. F. Sisk, D-Calif., has a bill to assure the orderly marketing of turkeys.

Rep. James Roosevelt, D-Calif., thinks this country should seriously consider using the metric system, while Rep. Abraham J. Multer, D-N.Y., wants dogs kept on leash in the District of Columbia, a reminder that Congress also serves as a city council for the nation's capital.

Rep. August E. Johansen, R-Mich., would reduce the duty on paprika, while Rep. John B. Bennett, another Michigan Republican, thinks a duty should be put on imported nutshell charcoal and on lignite briquets.

Rep. Victor L. Anfuso, D-N.Y., wants Congress to commend ADA Rogers Wilson of Texas for her musical composition entitled, "American Victory! American Liberty!"

And Ireland, who can forget Ireland? So Congress as been asked to pass a resolution favoring unity for that rambunctious island. And, faith, wouldn't ye know that it should be done by that Democratic gentleman from Rhode Island, the Hon. John Edward Fogarty?

Unlike public bills, which apply to us all, more than half the bills enacted into law by the last Congress were private bills, and they illustrate the point perfectly.

Private bills deal with individuals in dispute with the mighty federal government.

Merely the names of those seeking relief suggest how far ranging the problems are: Ali Khosrowkhah, Yick T. Jew, Giovanni Freda, C. W. Jones, Kisaku Yamada, Georgios Tzotzolas, Shun Ngor Ong and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The former president isn't exactly in distress. But Rep. James G. Fulton, R-Pa., would restore Eisenhower to his rank as general of the Army, and his name is democratically listed along with all the other supplicants.

How Do Embezzlers Get Away With It?

NOTE — Safecrackers and all their furtive brother robbers heisted an estimated total of $440 million in cash and merchandise during a recent year. Operating with far less effort in the same time, embezzlers lifted $500 million. How can they get away with it? What finally trips them up? Here's a study of a tantalizing but risky trade.

By BERNARD GAVZER

He's the first one in the office and the last one to leave. He brings his lunch in a brown paper bag and eats at his desk.

He never gets sick enough to stay home, and he hates to go on vacation.

He's about 35, has a wife, two kids and is paying the mortgage on his home. It's in a nice neighborhood. He has a car. It's a medium-priced model.

He always has time for the Boy Scout troop, the church bazaar, the Community Fund drive.

He's a person you'd trust. He seems secure and confident, but he lives in fear. At any minute some accident, some freak development, could unmask him.

He's an embezzler.

This embezzler has no name. He's a composite based on a detailed study of 1,001 embezzlers who stole a total of $3,684,641.27. The study was made by the United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., which had to pay off for the thievery of these white collar crooks.

Among the great legion are such pillars of society as William Richard Rose, who embezzled $1.4 million from his own bank at Ellenville, N. Y.; the late Harold Giles Hoffman, onetime New Jersey governor, who financed his political career with $300,000 of the state's money; Miss Minnie Mangum, executive of a Norfolk, Va., building and loan association, who got $2,919,000 in cash—more than double the cash stolen by armed robbers in the fabulous Boston Brink's holdup; and Burnice Iverson Geiger, who broke the bank at Sheldon, Iowa—her father's bank—by stealing $2,126,850.10.

These hardly seem like people to place alongside the professional crooks. But all the nation's robbers, burglars, pickpockets and auto thieves together stole a total of $440 million in a recent year. In the same period, embezzlers got a minimum of $500 million, and some experts insist the true figure is at least $1 billion.

Determining the loot pocketed by embezzlers is complex because of several factors: It's done by people who are considered honest; it's done in hundreds of different ways; it's frequently carried out over a long period of time; it's not always reported, even after it's discovered; there is some confusion in legal definition."

The embezzler-to-be, whether he's a laundry man or bank president or lawyer, rarely has anything in his background to suggest that one day he will start fattening his take-home pay. He generally has been a genuinely honest person who can claim with conviction that never in his life did he intend to steal a single penny. What then goes wrong?

"The embezzler feels that he has an unsharable problem, that no one can help him, and no one could possibly get inside him to find out what he's all about," says Dr. Irving Jacks, Temple University Medical School assistant professor and former clinical psychologist with the New York City Department of Correction.

"He feels that no one could break through the logical system he has devised for supplying himself with money power. The embezzler, most of all, never thinks of himself as a thief but as quite apart from other criminals, as above the mass of men."

The embezzler who usually wins public sympathy has a pathetic story—one that may be absolutely true: the $53-a-week bank clerk with an ill wife; the widow with four children, the insurance company executive helping a brother-in-law get started in business. However, close examination may show that the sick wife goes to the doctor in an air-conditioned limousine; the widow's children are in an exclusive private school, and the executive's wife controls 51 per cent of the brother-in-law's business.

Ironically, quite often discovery is the result of good luck rather than good detection. Regular audits won't uncover defalcations in ordinary circumstances because they're designed to determine whether the books balance. The books do, as a rule, because they're controlled by the person who's juggling them.

These discoveries frequently occur during the absence of the finagler, which is why embezzlers hate to go on vacation.

There's irony—and poetic justice, if you want—in the case of the ambitious embezzler who methodically stole $300,000 from a bank and used the money to buy its stock. He finally installed himself as president, but the bank failed because of his speculations.

A New York embezzler who felt he was underpaid at $2,500 a year decided he needed at least $4,500, so he stole the difference. As he got raises, he cut his thefts proportionately. When his salary topped $4,500, he started returning the difference. When he was caught, he had paid back all but $3,000 of $25,000 involved.

There are hundreds of methods used in these self-help programs. Some are almost primitive. Example: a Jersey City secretary who filched stamps. That sounds like penny-ante stuff, but in five years she got $4,850. On the other extreme there is accounting wizardry of the type which once bemused the Mergenthaler Linotype Co. It lost $800,000 in an embezzlement that involved a maze of fictitious names and phantom firms.

RUNNING THE SCALES

Other Side Of 'Pacific' Aired

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

The Northeast State College production of "South Pacific" and ensuing writeup brought many shadings of comment and opinion.

Indicative of the hard work and spirit which went into the major production is the following letter from a Northeast student:

"I am a junior speech education major at NLSC and am writing you in regard to your review of Northeast's recent musical production of "South Pacific."

"Allow me to quote from your review: 'All points considered, South Pacific is not a very good bi dfor a college production. Writers Rodgers and Hammerstein probably had certain characters in mind — namely, Mary Martin and Ezio Pinza — when they whipped up this saga of World War II in the early 1950's. . . !

"It is my opinion that these writers were more than likely sure of this play's potential success before they would risk it as a mere vehicle for two stars.

"In our production, I believe the singing, acting and dancing demands of the roles were adequately met by the cast members. The leading roles of Emile de Becque and Nellie Forbush are not so difficult that they could not be effectively portrayed by students with talent and some experience. Certainly Dona Jarrell more than adequately met the dramatic and musical demands of her role. Many times her naivete captured the audience's heart and her very stage presence tied some of the otherwise dragging or expository scenes together. Yet this leading lady received not even a mention in your review.

"I, personally, disagree with your cirticism of the script, that it is an 'obvious slap at the South.' But it is certainly your privilege to state your personal opinion.

"It is my contention that a review of the performances turned out by the college actors and actresses would be more beneficial to us as students than a critical analysis of the script.

"We consider ours an educational theatre not a community theatre and recognize the difference. Surely it is a step forward when both students and faculty members work together with a minimum of stage equipment and greatly appreciated rented costumes and scenery to give the Monroe area a performance to the best of our ability of some of the finest dramatic or musical literature available."

PAST WEEK

A United Nations ambassador and a symphony orchestra on the touring circuits with a Monroe appearance of "Brother Dave" Gardner and a Louisiana Tech workshop opera packed last week's culture roster in Northeast Louisiana.

Friday was a busy day for those who caught both the afternoon performance of the Houston Symphony at Louisiana Tech in Ruston and the address by General Carlos Romulo on the Northeast State Concert series at Neville Auditorium that same evening.

"Brother Dave" Gardner's show here earlier in the week featured the comedian's deep -Southern - fried humor along with Jay Steffani on the vocals and Slick Lawson's band. Chuck Morgan served as master of ceremonies.

The Louisiana Tech music department staged workshop performances of Bizet's "Carmen" in Howard Auditorium Tuesday and Thursday nights. So far as could be established, this was the first full - length, grand opera yet undertaken by Tech resources.

The Centenary College Choir under the direction of A. C. Voran will present a concert at Neville auditorium at 8 p.m. Tuesday. The 49 - voice organization from the Shreveport college features a wide variety of choral music and costumes. Pianist Sandy Lawn of West Monroe is one of the accompanists for the group.

How To Win 'Cold War'

A FORWARD STRATEGY FOR AMERICA. By Robert Strausz-Hupe, William R. Kintner and Stefan T. Possony. Harper. $5.95.

In 1959 the Foreign Policy Research Institute at the University of Pennsylvania produced a book called "Protracted Conflict," an analysis of the Cold War. Now comes the sequel, which might be called "How to Win the Cold War." The three authors have summarized the studies of the Institute, making use of a great deal of government information.

The general reader need not shy away in fear that this is high level mumbo-jumbo. It is plain talk, cold turkey style, about things that have to be done if the free world is to survive.

For example, the book discusses with candor the dilemma of a free world (a clean fighter) always being on the defensive against the communist world (a dirty fighter). Among other things it demands more effort in propaganda, not just defensively, but to create pressure on the Reds. It demands more economic pressure in Eastern Europe and suggests policies in dealing with the "uncommitted" nations.

It argues the foolhardiness of going into summit meetings on Russia's own terms. It takes a firm stand for more nuclear testing, discusses Doomsday weapons in the manner of a poker player and outlines what the American government should tell its own people. It has specific suggestions for the structure of national security.

It demands that America get going. It insists that America mobilize all its resources and convert itself from passive reactions to positive actions, coordinating the military, economic, technological, psychological, cultural, diplomatic, and political factors into one overall strategy.

The authors feel the struggle hangs in the balance, with Russia confident the free world will not rouse itself until it is too late. They say the trend must be reversed in the next decade, if at all.

Guide To Good Reading

New books of fiction offer a variety of material which will appeal to all types of readers. Francis Van Wyck Mason is an outstanding writer in the field of historical fiction. His latest novel is called "Manila Galleon." It is set in the early 18th century and is a stirring tale of high adventure in the best tradition. Those who like sea stories have a long and rich treat ahead of them. "Mountains Ahead" by Martha Ferguson McKeon is another historical novel. This one has its setting in the early days of our country and is concerned with the hardships and adventures of those who travelled the Oregon Trail in the year 1847. It is a chronicle of human travail of mind, body and spirit. "Mountains Ahead" is a story of a trek which fairly throbs with the noise and smell and taste of life on a wagon train. It is a tribute to the courage of our ancestors in braving tremendous hardships to expand our nation to the land beyond the mountains.

Mishail Sholokhow is the author of a new book about life in Russia called "Harvest on the Don." It is the story of the impact of the social revolution on the people of Russia and is a sequel to "Quiet Flows the Don" by the same author. A new novel by John Dos Passos is always eagerly awaited. His latest one is "Midcentury." In this book he uses characters from the world of labor, to paint an unforgettable picture of life in our time. Merle Miller has written several novels in the last few years, all of which have received excellent acceptance. His latest one is "A Gay and Melancholy Sound." This novel recounts the life and times of Joshua Bland, ex - prodigy, World War II veteran and theatrical producer. In this book we meet a procession of the great and near great in an unforgettable reading experience.

"My Hero" by Robert Carson is an explosive, moving story of the men behind the scenes in high finance and international power politics. It is a vivid and exciting portrayal of a man who must be honest, no matter what the cost to himself. "A Stranger in My Grave" is the title of a nightmare which becomes a hideous reality, written by Margaret Millar, there is a thrill in every page.

Three interesting and exciting books of non - fiction are available this week. "The War Called Peace" is the title of a book of Harry and Bonaro Overstreet which gives a perfectly excellent picture of the cold war and the problems we face. "One Week in March" is the title of a book by Mark Sherwin and Charles Lam Markmann which discusses the events of the first week of the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt in March of 1933. It is a well written book and an important addition to the field of 20th century history. An interesting book in the field of science is "The Coil of Life" by Ruth Moore. This is a history of the great discoveries in the life sciences and is fascinating reading.

More people are reading non-fiction than fiction from the main library of the Ouachita Parish Public Library and we attribute this to the fact that our non-fiction collection is growing rapidly and we are adding more and more books of factual material. Among the late additions are books of great variety. "The Story of the National Baptists" by Owen D. Pelt and Ralph Lee Smith is a very interesting account of this denomination. "Successful Real Estate Selling" by Cliff W. Krueger should be in great demand, for we never seem to have enough material on this subject.

"Shaping Our Times; What the United Nations Is and Does" is a very interesting and provocative book by Harold Courlander. It gives an excellent picture of the operations of the United Nations and should be useful to many people.

Would you like to know all the facts about health insurance? The library has a new book on this subject by Edwin J. Faulkner, which is a very comprehensive study. A splendid book of marine biology is "Creatures of the Sea" by William B. Gray. It is exciting as well as informative. Two valuable books for parents of children approaching adolescence are "What's Happening to Me" and "A Story About You" both written by Marion O. Lerrigo.

Garden books are always in demand and new ones are cons[illegible]ly arriving at the library. The latest one, which should be most useful to people in this community is "Your Garden in the South" by Hamilton Mason. John Durant has written a very fine account of the Olympics which he calls "Highlights of the Olympics; From Ancient Times to the Present." The name of Wernher von Braun is well known in the field of space travel and exploration. His latest book is called "First Men to the Moon" and will be widely read and enjoyed by young men. The war of 1812 is one of the most neglected episodes of our history as far as literature is concerned. We are happy that a new book by Colonel Red Reeder has just been written on this subject. It is called "The Story of the War of 1812" and is geared to high school readers.

Snowbound With Girl, Bat-Man

A WINTER'S TALE. By Jon Godden. Knopf. $3.95.

This is quite British, don't you know. But perhaps only the British could make this sort of thing come off. It is an unusual tale of four personalities — one a great, wolf - like Alsatian named Sylvie.

Her master is Jerome Holt, who likes to write novels but makes his best income from plays that are dashed off in a few weeks. Now in his mid-40s he has spent most of the last 14 years holed up in an old house in the remote English countryside. There are two reasons for this withdrawal: the house suits his writing habits and it is a refuge from women. He is a man who permits himself only casual affairs now and then, when his writing talent has gone stale and he needs a lift. He needs one as the book opens.

Holt's man of all affairs is Peter, who had been his batman during the war and had suffered a hideous mutilation of his face in an accidental explosion. Peter has found his life pattern in caring for Holt.

A young actress, Una, has fallen in love with Holt during one of his London jaunts. Tracing him to his hideaway, she arrives at the start of a week - long snowstorm. In this snowbound isolation the love affair plays out to the expected result, Una's departure. But in that week there are gathering tensions among two men, a woman with a feline mind and a she-dog.

At the finish you might say Una has her revenge on Holt at Sylvie's cost. Yet there is more, an odd undertone of male vs. female. And there would have been no story without Sylvie.

The writing suits the action. Almost too leisurely at first, it develops pace at the right time. The final scene between Una and Jerome is done keenly and well, and there are tersely masculine passages describing the final actions of the two men.

Jon Godden, like her sister Rumer Godden, is an experienced and accomplished novelist.

SPACE PROBES PLANNED

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — U. S. space scientists plan an all - out assault on the moon, Mars and Venus starting in 1962 with a series of spacecraft bearing the names Ranger, Surveyor, Prospector, Mariner and Voyager.

Ranger will be a lunar impacter launched by an Atlas - Agena B. Surveyor will be a lunar soft-lander launched by a Centaur rocket. Prospector will be launched by a Saturn to land a mobile laboratory on the moon with a traveling radius of 50 miles.

Mariner will include several planetary probes launched by Atlas - Agena B. to the vicinity of Mars and Venus. Voyager will be a series of later planetary probes, launched by Saturn rockets to orbit Mars and Venus and probably to ejject instrumented capsules for landing on these planets.

ALMANAC

Today is Sunday, Feb. 26, the 57th day of the year with 308 more in 1961.

The moon is approaching its full phase.

The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mars and Venus.

On this day in history: In 1802, French novelist Victor Hugo was born.

In 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte fled from the island of Elba to begin his second conquest of France.

In 1846, William Frederick Cody, better known as Buffalo Bill, was born in Scott County, Iowa.

In 1870, New York's first subway line was opened to the public.

In 1887, baseball immortal Grover Alexander, was born in St. Paul, Nebraska.

Thought for today: Herbert Spencer said: "We have unmistakable proof that throughout all past time, there has been a ceaseless devouring of the weak by the strong."

My Answer

By Billy Graham

QUESTION: My Sunday School teacher says that the story of Jonah, and other Bible miralces are allegorical. Is this the way you explain Bible miracles? KL

ANSWER: No, I never try to explain away the miracles of the Bible. I have lived long enough to know that many things in life are miraculous, and inexplicable. Who has fathomed the fabulous miracle of human reproduction? Who can rationalize mother - love? Who can explain the subtle power of evil, or the miracle of self-sacrifice?

There was a time in my life when I had some honest doubts. But I went out into the mountains years ago with my Bible, and paryerfully sought a way to resolve my doubts. Finally, I made my decision. I said; "God, I don't understand everything in this book but just as I have taken you by faith, I take this Book by faith." From that time on the Word of God was like a sword in my hand. I had the strength of authority—not once have I ever tried to prove God, the Bible, or any of the miracles. I am content to let God know more than I do, and I have peace in my heart.

Unbelief is at the base of all our anxiety, but faith is the basis for peace. This goes for our relationship with God, and our relationships with man.

Accept the Bible by faith and a new dimension of living is opened to you.

Iron Brigade Were Giants In Action

THE IRON BRIGADE. By Alan T. Nolan, MacMillan. $6.95.

"They looked like giants . . . and giants they were, in action." They came from the West, from Wisconsin and Indiana, and Michigan. Their hallmark — tall and black, pinned jauntily with a golden eagle on the right side, adorned with a looping plume on the right. They were the Iron Brigade.

"Fighting Joe" Hooker christened the brigade after the battle of South Mountain in 1862. It was the only wholly Western brigade in the Army of the Potomac and its blood stained battlefields from Second Bull Run to Gettysburg. There were four regiments in the beginning — three from Wisconsin and one from Indiana. Another from Michigan came in after Antietem, when the brigade could no longer muster as many men as a regiment had at the first roll call.

Gettysburg was its last stand. On the first day's battle, in the fury of the Confederacy's initial onslaught, the Iron Brigade lost 1,212 of the 1,883 men who went into action; the new Michigan regiment lost 80 per cent of its strength — but, unless ordered, no man had taken a backward step.

There were illustrious men on the rosters. Lysander Cutler had led Maine militia into action against the Aroostook Indians. Frank Haskell would write a famous narrative of Gettysburg. Rufus Dawes was a great - grandson of the William Dawes who rode with Paul Revere. W. W. Robinson had fought against Mexico and he was a son of a veteran of 1812. Henry A. Morrow was a judge in Michigan and a Virginian. And there were hundreds of unnamed, unsung volunteers.

This is a stirring story, one that taps a rich and still largely unexplored lode of Civil War history.

House GOP May Submit Own Pay Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republicans Saturday were considering offering a minimum wage bill of their own as a substitute for President Kennedy's proposal to raise the wage floor gradually from $1 to $1.25 an hour.

Gop whip Leslie C. Arends, Illinois, said Republicans will wait to see what the House Labor Committee does with Kennedy's bill before deciding whether to sponsor a substitute when the measure reaches the House floor.

Republicans, joined by southern Democrats, scored a coup last year by pushing a substitute through the House by an eight-vote margin.

The milder Republican-southern Democratic bill replaced a Labor Committee - approved measure much like Kennedy's new proposal and a Senate-passed bill he sponsored as a senator. Both the 1960 Senate and House minimum wage bills were scuttled when a joint conference committee could not agree upon a compromise.

A House labor subcommittee now is working on Kennedy's bill to raise the wage floor to $1.25 over a two-year period and extend coverage to 4.3 million more workers. The subcommittee expects to finish drafting the measure next week and to forward it to the full labor committee for action.

Lumbago Keeps Ike From Links

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) Former President Dwight Eisenhower satisfied himself Saturday with light exercise and continued relaxation, foregoing his favorite pasttime — golf — until completely free from lumbago.

The lumbago followed a cold about 10 days ago. The ex-President tried a game of golf about a week ago, but the ailment proved somewhat troublesome. However, he has been able to do some skeet shooting and hopes soon to return to the course.

Labor Calls For Revision Of Tax Laws

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — The AFLCIO Executive Council, labor's policy-making body, called Saturday for a revision of present tax laws that have resulted in the "exporting of U.S. jobs."

The council issued a lengthy statement reviewing the field of international trade and giving its views on the United States' present unfavorable balance of payments position in the world market.

It urged the government to adopt a more flexible approach to trade and cautioned that "the U.S. cannot afford to misconceive its role as that of an isolated, benevolent, but fearful Uncle Sam."

The council said that present tax incentives for U.S. firms investing abroad have benefitted nations already highly industrialized, while doing little for such needy areas and nations as Africa, Asia and Latin America.

It said that "special tax devices to encourage U.S. industry to invest in industrialized countries should be withdrawn, and proper incentives for investment in underindustrialized countries retained or adopted."

The council said "at very least" tax laws should be amended to "provide immediate application of full U.S. taxes on profits earned from sale of products shipped back to the United States from their overseas operation." At present, such profits are tax-free so long as they are kept out of the country.

The council said that while the nation needs international trade for economic growth, "it cannot aford to alow competition from specific imports to cause undue hardships to American workers or American industry."

U.S. Intentions In Laos Praised

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)—Prince Norodom Sihanouk has written President Kennedy the United States showed good intentions in backing a neutral commission to end the Laotian civil war. But he said the commission would fail.

Replying to a Kennedy letter, the Cambodian chief ot state said he felt only an international conference of 14 interested nations—including Red China—could end the fighting.

Sihanouk said U. S. support of Laotian King Savang Vathana's proposal for a three-nation neutral commission was proof the U. S. intentions were good. But he said such a commission is unacceptable to pro-Communist rebels who control much of northeastern Laos and, therefore, could not hope to accomplish much.

Cambodia and Burma rejected the king's appeal that they serve on the commission, leaving only Malaya willing.

BANK EXAMINER SAYS

1,000 To One Shot Exposes Embezzler

A respected Iowa bank official this week was found to have committed embezzlements. To find what led him to it—and how the defalcations were uncovered—United Press International assigned reporters, David Smothers, George Brown and Larry Rummel. This is their report.

KNOXVILLE, Iowa (UPI) — A federal bank examiner revealed Saturday that a 1,000 to one shot exposed civic idol Eldon L. Job as the embezzler of more than half a million dollars of his neighbors' money.

The long chance sent Job to his grave just 31 hours after he entered a deserted home, walked up to the attic and hanged himself with a length of sash cord.

Knoxville residents were stunned by the unmasking of the town's leading banker, foremost civic leader and perhaps most respected single individual.

Job's minister said the townspeople themselves may have to take blame for attributing "God-like qualities to this man."

Job's downfall came when examiner E. W. Morgan of Des Moines rifled through the records of thousands of bank loans late Tuesday afternoon. He chanced to notice that the signatures on a few of the notes were similar.

"It just happened that three or four were close together," Morgan said. "It was a thousand to one shot to spot."

The notes had been forged as had 40 others. They were instruments through which Job had embezzled from $500,000 to $700,000 during the last four to five years from the Community National Bank.

Northeast ROTC Win 'Superior' For Inspection

Northeast State's Reserve Officers Training Corps won a superior rating following a 4th Army team's inspection of the armory and maintenance of equipment, Lt. Col. Lawrence R. Longfellow, professor of military science here, announced yesterday.

The inspecting group, headed by the chief warrant officer, comprised approximately 25 personnel from 4th Army who are based at Fort Hood.

Members of the Ordnance Branch examined all weapons; men in the Signal Corps inspected communications equipment; and representatives of the Quartermaster Branch examined clothing.

The team described the rifle range as the "best small range seen on their tour of ROTC units." The group also termed the Northeast military supply room as the "best small supply room from standpoints of organization, maintenance and neatness."

Inspection of the armory and equipment is done to keep the army commander and heads of technical services informed as to serviceability, proper usage and operational readiness of a unit's major items of equipment, Col. Longfellow explained.

Other reasons for this special examination are to provide information pertaining to adequacy and effectiveness of organizational and maintenance operations; efficiency of repair parts supply procedures which directly support maintenance operations; and the proficiency of unit maintenance personnel.

Rebels Capture Kasai Capital

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Pro-Lumumba troops buoyed by the bloodless capture of the capital of Kasai Province fanned out through the bush country Saturday in an apparent attempt to cut off the rival army of Joseph Mobutu from its capital of Leopoldville.

The precision and speed with which the supporters of slain ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba moved out from their Stanleyville stronghold in Oriental Province indicated outside support. There was speculation Communist Czech or United Arab Republic officers were helping them.

The Lumumba troop commander technically is Gen. Victor Lundula who was a medical corps sergeant-major before Lumumba elevated him last summer.

Reliable sources said a column from Stanleyville seized Ikela in Equator Providence, the home territory of Mobutu who has concentrated many of his 17,000 men at Bumba, 135 miles north of Ikela.

British Openly For Seating Red China In U.N.

LONDON (UPI)—Britain, after a review of policy toward Red China, now can be expected to favor openly a seat for Peiping in the United Nations despite American opposition, diplomatic sources said Saturday.

There was speculation Prime Minister Harold Macmillan might visit Red China next fall during a scheduled Far East tour.

The sources said Macmillan would be certain to discuss the British position on Red China with President Kennedy when they meet in Washington in April.

The policy review was conducted with Michael Stewart, British envoy to Peiping who came to London 10 days ago and will return to China next week.

Although Britain recognizes Red China it has remained loyal to the United States on the U.N. seat issue.

But sources said Britain would stand by its new policy of favoring a seat for Peiping—unless the United States goes so far as to threaten to quit the organization if Red China wins membership.

A further major conclusion of the talks with Stewart, the sources said, was that Britain feels Red China's participation is essential for any substantial progress in world disarmament. Hitherto, the West has negotiated primarily with Russia and the Eastern European states.

Prime Minister Says British To Stand By U.S.

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan said Saturday Britain stands with America "in good times or bad" and declared he was encouraged by President Kennedy's new efforts to achieve East-West disarmament.

But Macmillan warned: "We must face the dangers of a long struggle against Communist ambitions with strong nerves and sober confidence and as much unity as we can command. The more fully we recognize what we are up against, the stronger and more effective our response is likely to be."

Macmillan was addressing the first national conference of Young Conservatives, the youth organization of his ruling Conservative party.

"All the signals show that we are in for a period of fiercelv competitive coexistence, which though it may fluctuate in intensity will certainly not allow us to indulge in any complacency," Macmillan declared.

Corn, cotton, wheat, pastureland – whatever your crop, Hi-D® is the nitrogen fertilizer to use. You'll find it better than any ammonium nitrate you ever used before.

Hi-D always flows freely! Hi-D's special granules are unusually high in density and super dry, have much less tendency to pick up moisture prior to application. You will find it most satisfactory out in the field, even under humid conditions. Hi-D doesn't gum-up, won't clog, cake or bridge in your spreader.

Hi-D has a guaranteed analysis of 33.5% nitrogen. Half of this is nitrate nitrogen for vigorous early growth. The other half is ammonia nitrogen for sustained follow-up feeding. Your crops get the two types of nitrogen they do best on!

Let Hi-D keep your crops on the grow. It's sound management. But remember, first test your soil, lime if necessary and follow with the mixed fertilizer your dealer recommends. Then add the supplementary boost of Hi-D. Ask your dealer for it by name. Hi-D—best in the land!

Northeast ROTC Win 'Superior' For Inspection

Northeast State's Reserve Officers Training Corps won a superior rating following a 4th Army team's inspection of the armory and maintenance of equipment, Lt. Col. Lawrence R. Longfellow, professor of military science here, announced yesterday.

The inspecting group, headed by the chief warrant officer, comprised approximately 25 personnel from 4th Army who are based at Fort Hood.

Members of the Ordnance Branch examined all weapons; men in the Signal Corps inspected communications equipment; and representatives of the Quartermaster Branch examined clothing.

The team described the rifle range as the "best small range seen on their tour of ROTC units." The group also termed the Northeast military supply room as the "best small supply room from standpoints of organization, maintenance and neatness."

Inspection of the armory and equipment is done to keep the army commander and heads of technical services informed as to serviceability, proper usage and operational readiness of a unit's major items of equipment, Col. Longfellow explained.

Other reasons for this special examination are to provide information pertaining to adequacy and effectiveness of organizational and maintenance operations; efficiency of repair parts supply procedures which directly support maintenance operations; and the proficiency of unit maintenance personnel.

Rebels Capture Kasai Capital

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — Pro-Lumumba troops buoyed by the bloodless capture of the capital of Kasai Province fanned out through the bush country Saturday in an apparent attempt to cut off the rival army of Joseph Mobutu from its capital of Leopoldville.

The precision and speed with which the supporters of slain ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba moved out from their Stanleyville stronghold in Oriental Province indicated outside support. There was speculation Communist Czech or United Arab Republic officers were helping them.

The Lumumba troop commander technically is Gen. Victor Lundula who was a medical corps sergeant-major before Lumumba elevated him last summer.

Reliable sources said a column from Stanleyville seized Ikela in Equator Providence, the home territory of Mobutu who has concentrated many of his 17,000 men at Bumba, 135 miles north of Ikela.

British Openly For Seating Red China In U.N.

LONDON (UPI)—Britain, after a review of policy toward Red China, now can be expected to favor openly a seat for Peiping in the United Nations despite American opposition, diplomatic sources said Saturday.

There was speculation Prime Minister Harold Macmillan might visit Red China next fall during a scheduled Far East tour.

The sources said Macmillan would be certain to discuss the British position on Red China with President Kennedy when they meet in Washington in April.

The policy review was conducted with Michael Stewart, British envoy to Peiping who came to London 10 days ago and will return to China next week.

Although Britain recognizes Red China it has remained loyal to the United States on the U.N. seat issue.

But sources said Britain would stand by its new policy of favoring a seat for Peiping—unless the United States goes so far as to threaten to quit the organization if Red China wins membership.

A further major conclusion of the talks with Stewart, the sources said, was that Britain feels Red China's participation is essential for any substantial progress in world disarmament. Hitherto, the West has negotiated primarily with Russia and the Eastern European states.

WOMEN BEST AT BRIDGE

MONTREAL (AP) — Bridge expert Charles Goren says women make "infinitely better" bridge players than men at the social level.

"They have more time to devote to the game and they are not as vain as men about cards," he said in an interview Friday. Goren is a bachelor.

Prime Minister Says British To Stand By U.S.

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan said Saturday Britain stands with America "in good times or bad" and declared he was encouraged by President Kennedy's new efforts to achieve East-West disarmament.

But Macmillan warned: "We must face the dangers of a long struggle against Communist ambitions with strong nerves and sober confidence and as much unity as we can command. The more fully we recognize what we are up against, the stronger and more effective our response is likely to be."

Macmillan was addressing the first national conference of Young Conservatives, the youth organization of his ruling Conservative party.

"All the signals show that we are in for a period of fiercely competitive coexistence, which though it may fluctuate in intensity will certainly not allow us to indulge in any complacency," Macmillan declared.

7 Arrested In Franklin Liquor Raids

WINNSBORO (Special) —Town, parish and state officers cooperated in Saturday night raids and charged seven Winnsboro Negroes with possession of intoxicants.

The officers confiscated a "room - full" of liquor and beer.

Included were 17 cases of beer, 69 half - pints of whiskey, 125 fifths of wine and 15 half - pints of gin.

The raids were set off when Lemon Ball, Negro, about 36, of Winnsboro, was picked up Friday night at Baskin with a carload of whiskey, wine and beer.

Deputy Sheriffs Mack Hill and Floyd Jones and State Trooper Charles B. Holcomb made the arrests.

Ball has been released under $750 bond.

Arrested Saturday night were Edward Ausberry, 46; Henry Ball, 40; Vivian Watkins, 24; Rexanna Mathis, 53; Fannie Sullivan, 54; Susie Chapman, 36; Roy Sullivan, 64.

They were all placed under $600 bond.

Taking part in the raids were Sheriff A. J. Stephens and deputies in his department; City Marshall George Ferrington and the city police department; Corporal Dave Chase of the state police and Trooper Holcomb.

The raids started at 7:15 and were completed by 8 p.m.

Ten places of business — mostly cafes — were hit by the officers.

Kennedy Confers With Russell On Defense Policies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy conferred Saturday with Sen. Richard B. Russell on the administration's new defense policies which reportedly will call for a $2.1 billion increase in the present defense budget.

The Georgia Democrat, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said afterward that "I don't think it would be possible, of course, to increase the strength of our defenses without an increase in spending."

Russell spent an hour at the White House along with Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Russell declined to say whether the group discussed a possible increase in the $41.8 billion defense budget proposed by former President Eisenhower for the fiscal year which begins July 1. This is the largest U.S. defense budget in peacetime history.

The senator, however, said he didn't think the American people would mind spending money for national defense as long as they "believe they are getting value for the dollar."

Franklin Parish Winners Named At Stock Show

WINNSBORO (Special) — Awards were handed out Saturday at the Franklin Parish Junior Livestock Show here, which serves as a preliminary to the Northeast Louisiana Livestock Exposition opening this week at Delhi.

A parade featuring exhibitors, the Winnsboro High School Band and the Franklin Parish Riding Club, opened the exposition, which was sponsored by the Winnsboro Lions Club in cooperation with the Franklin Parish Cattlemen's Association, parish dairymen, businessmen, and various individual contributors.

Judges for the occasion were county agents, E. E. Johnson, Catahoula Parish, and H. D. Gaddis, LaSalle Parish. The show was directed by Bill Russell, assistant county agent, and Patsy Johnson, associate home demonstration agent.

Five dollar awards were made for blue ribbon winners, and three dollars for red ribbon ratings. Blue ribbon premiums were matched by the Winnsboro State Bank and Trust Co., with the exception of those for showmanship and grooming.

In the dairy division, Larry Russell won three blue ribbons on Guernseys, and an award for the best groomed dairy calf. He also received a blue ribbon in showmanship. Second place in showmanship went to Arthur Spearman who received two blue ribbons on animals. Carolyn Gwin had three dairy blue ribbons. Alice Jane Gowan, two blue ribbons, Jerry Crooks, one, and Joyce McKenzie, one.

In the beef division, Roger Smith, Penny Pennybaker, Kent Wiggins, and Charles Johnston won blue ribbons for Hereford steers. Penny Pennybaker received a blue ribbon on an Angus steer, and second in showmanship, while first in showmanship went to Kent Wiggins. Raymond Gwin received a blue in beef breeding.

In the sheep division, Sammy Fife received two blues and a red ribbon for ewe, ram and lamb entries, while Eddie Fletcher received three blue ribbons.

Blue ribbons for swine went to Archin Pippin, Douglas Ingram, Larry Spruill, Sammy Fife and Harvey Lishman.

The blue ribbon animals were scheduled to be taken to Delhi this weekend for the district show.

Storm Knocks Out Railroad's Signal System

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Seventy miles of the New York Central's signal system was knocked out Saturday night between Bryan, Ohio, and Goshen, Ind., by a storm. It caused 11 trains to be delayed from two to four hours.

A company spokesman, who reported the signal failure, said the railroad was forced to go "back 120 years in railroad operations by using hand-switching and oral communications" to keep the trains moving.

Kennedy Pays Tribute To Rep. Vinson

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy said Saturday America's search for peace will be built on firmness and a sound defense. He said advice of Rep. Carl E. Vinson, D-Ga., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee will be essential to that search.

Kennedy paid tribute to Vinson's "vast experience and knowledge" in security matters in a letter read by his military aide, Brig. Gen. C.V. Clifton, at a capitol luncheon honoring Vinson and attended by top military brass, congressional leaders, and about 40 other friends of the veteran House member.

The occasion was publication in the Army-Navy-Air Force Journal (and in condensed form in the Reader's Digest) of an article entitled "Uncle Carl Vinson—Backstage Boss of the Pentagon," recounting the story of Vinson's House service since 1914 and his long campaign for a stronger defense.

"As we look ahead," Kennedy told Vinson, "I am sure that we will be drawing upon your vast experience and knowledge in security matters in finding a way to peace based on firmness for our country and our friends throughout the world.

"A sound military strength will be the background in this step-by-step search and your thought and guidance will continue to be essential in this work."

Speaker Sam Rayburn, the only House member to outrank Vinson in service, called Vinson the most brilliant committee chairman he has seen in his almost 48 years in the House. Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, chief of naval operations, referred in jest to differences in the pentagon—his wrist was recently slapped for airing some of his own non-concurring views—but said one thing on which all the services agree is their high regard for Vinson.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., said Georgia had reason to be proud of Vinson as a national leader as far back as when he himself was still a boy. He pictured Vinson and Rayburn as among the few national figures today whose place in history is already assured.

After a number of jesting references were made to the now-legendary manner in which Vinson has managed to boss not only his committee, but through it, the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps, Vinson replied:

"I disclaim the influence attributed to me, but I trust that others will accept it as the gospel truth. The article is over generous. But I must admit I enjoyed reading it."

LOOKS 'EM OVER

The Stranger We All Know

Few people have ever heard the name August Hassinen and associated it with some person they know.

To us who have known the man for many years, the name indicates a total stranger. Yet he has been one of Monroe's better known personalities for over 20 years as well as a national sports figure by another name.

A Finn by birth, American by choice, wrestler by profession and retired by time, Gus Kallio, former world's middleweight wrestling champion and Monroe promoter, has removed the veil from the well kept secret that was known only to some close friends, business associates, and members of his family.

"As long as I was active wrestling and promoting I preferred to be known only as Gus Kallio. I am still Gus Kallio. It's my legal name, now, but I was born August Hassinen at Oulu, Finland."

So said Kallio at his Jackson street home where he has lived here since retirement from active life following a stroke in October of 1958.

"Now, it's all right to tell this part of my life. There's no reason not to let it be known."

Kallio said he legally changed his name when he applied for his first U.S. citizenship papers at Cincinnati, Ohio.

In the United States since 1913 and a chain of established homes at Cincinnati, Minneapolis, New York City, Red Lodge, Mont., Louisville, Ky., Omaha, Neb., and Arcadia and Monroe in Louisiana, Kallio said his present adopted name means "cliff" in Finnish. He said Americans couldn't pronouce the name Hassinen correctly, so he had his name changed.

A brother, Isaac Hassinen, lives in Canada and goes by the old family name. He never liked it because Gus changed his.

"Maybe, Isaac was right. Maybe, I shouldn't have changed it. But it doesn't matter now. If I was still promoting or wrestling, I would not say anything. Now, I think my friends all should know this about me."

Kallio, the wrestler, claimed world welterweight and middleweight championships during his ring career. He was dethroned as middleweight king in 1939 after ten years as undisputed champion. He began promoting here shortly after losing his crown, but retired a little over two years ago.

Some Short Shots

Monroe Little League, Inc., will install officers of a new league at a special supper program Tuesday evening at 6:30 o'clock at the Paragon.

A record total of 53 teams is expected for the Little League season here, according to Jack Hesketh, league secretary and Monroe recreation director. This total includes the Minor Leagues which this year will include all 8-year-olds as well as some older boys. It's estimated that over 1,000 eight - to - 12-year-olds will participate in in the program this summer.

The new league will operate for boys in the college area of eastern Monroe. Northside and Southside leagues already are established.

Earl Coleman, a product of Coach Raymond Richards' Delhi High School football teams, a center last year for Copiah-Lincoln Junior College, is due to be playing for Delta State next September.

Gordon Gibson, Byrd High senior who has been a mainstay of the Yellow Jackets in triple-A basketball this seasson, is the son of a former Monroe jeweler, Gordon Gibson. Young Gibson participated in athletics at Plum Street Elementary School and at Neville High here before the family moved to Shreveport last year.

Gibson is the leading scorer in the Shreveport - Bossier area with 467 points in 27 games, for a 17.3 average.

West Monroe Little Boys Baseball missed out on luring the Dixie Series to the Twin Cities next August, but word is already out that West Monroe will try for the 1962 event. The 1961 tournament goes to Lookout Mountain, Tenn.

Attention in Arkansas is being focused on Jerry Hughes of Wilmot. Competing for the University of Arkansas, he already claims distinction as the first Arkansas trackman to top 14 feet in the pole vault. This includes competition for athletes in any Arkansas schools or by any Arkansas-born athlete anywhere.

Track records of Neville High athletes are being compiled by Coach George Davis with the help of Van Leigh, coach at Lee Junior High. All former Neville High athletes who think they hold marks that may still stand are being requested to advise Coach Davis. Many records are already posted on the master chart, but some of these may be topped before research is completed.

Registration of Little League and Dixie League begins tomorrow for eight-to-14-year-old boys at the Monroe Community Center. The 13-to-14-year class will play in the Dixie circuit.

Northeast got maximum mileage from its most trusted credit card as the Indians drove into fourth place via a grueling 61-57 Gulf States win over Louisiana Tech here last night.

With :51 seconds to go, the score deadlocked 57-57, and the widly partisian crowd frenzied with anticipation, Lanny Johnson-the boy whose given the Indians their happiest motoring all season-sifted through Tech's rugged defense for a lay-up and the winning margin.

Stuart Toms hit two foul shots moments later but it mattered little except to push the game even further out of the Bulldogs graps.

As in Northeast's other encounters, Johnson was the big chief all night. The hometown hoop-star hit 29 points for game scoring honors and was easily the difference between the clubs in their season finale.

It was a brutally contested showdown in which the lead changed so frequently an IBM might have been pressed to keep up.

Tech, way down in GSC contendings for a change, clung tenaciously all the way and at times threatened to come out ahead.

The Bulldogs received great performances from Joe Daigle, Ron Futrell and Joe Abendroth.

Futrell led K'9 scoring with 15, but Daigle, playing his heart out in his collegiate swan song, rebounded with desperation and put 11 points on the scoreboard. Abendroth completed Tech's double figure trio with 12.

Northeast sped to an early 5-1 lead but let it slip quickly as Tech forged a short - lived lead.

With Daigle's foul shooting doing most of the work, Tech stayed alternately deadlocked and two points behind until Daigle put them in front again with 6:40 left in the half.

The Redshirts grabbed their biggest lead — six points — then maneuvered futilely as the Tribe chiseled away the gap then spanned it to leave the floor at intermission ahead 31-29.

Little more than a single point spelled the difference throughout practically all the final half and the crowd began to wilt with anxiety.

In the final minute Northeast stalled until Johnson saw his way clear for the winning two.

The victory gives the Indians a 11-13 season mark and GSC fourth place with 4-6. Tech is now 7-18 and 3-7 with the possibility of sharing the conference cellar with Southeastern if the Lions win their last game.

RELAY TEAM WINS

Indian Thinclads Place Third In Memphis Relays

MEMPHIS, Tenn., (Special) — Northeast State's cinder men wound up in a familiar third spot at the Memphis Relays Saturday night.

It was the second meet of the season for the Tribe and the second time they have ended in third place.

Arkansas's Razorbacks finished first here with a 50 point total, to 44½ for Alabama and 32 for Northeast. Florida State got 30½ points, Clemson 30, Georgia 17¼, Georgia Tech 15, Mississippi State 9, Memphis State 8 and Vanderbilt 2½.

Northeast was competing without the services of top pole vaulter John Pennel, and with crack distance man Buddy Eiland on the ailing list.

The Tribe got another first place in relay action last night as an eight-lap team composed of Jim Glass, Jim Mouser, John Baker and Randall Walker covered the 1200 yard distance in 3:22.4.

Church McCullam was the only other Northeast first place winner taking a victory in the two mile run of the college division. McCullam's time was 10:3.4.

Northeast racked up on second place finishes as Owen Owen took second in the broad jump with a leap of 22 ft. 5 in., Jack Williams finished second in the two mile run of the university division, Hoy Rogers just missed a first place in the shot put with a toss of 50 ft. 9 inches, and the 12 lap relay team of Jim Mouser, Jim Glass, John Baker and Randall Walker finished second, but was disqualified.

The Indians' 20-lap relay, composed of Jim Mouser, a senior, and three freshmen John Baker, Al Taylor and Claude Mercer finished fourth, and freshman Jay Goldsmith wound up fourth in the 60-yard dash.

Owen Owen finished fifth in the low hurdles, Jack Williams placed fifth in the mile run of the university division, Herschal Copeland gained a fourth place tie with four other high jumpers, George Abbott got a second place in the college division mile run and Bill Frye finished fifth. Abbott also ran fifth in the 880 yard run.

Buddy Eiland attempted to run the mile but became ill and had to drop out of further competition.

Neville hurdler Courtland Gray won the high school division of the high hurdles in Friday night action.

The Indians of Coach Bob Grosclose remained in Memphis due to bad weather and will return to Monroe today. The Tribe travels to Fort Worth for their next competition, in the Fort Worth Relays.

Davis Named President At Baseball Meet

WINNSBORO (Special) — Herbert Davis, Jr., was re-elected president of Winnsboro Little Boys Baseball, Inc., at an organizational meeting in the Louisiana Power and Light Co., office Thursday night.

Earl Carroll was elected vice-president and W. E. (Frenchie) Marioneaux was re-elected secretary-treasurer, and Dave Anders was again named to the post of player agent.

Directors elected to serve during the 1961 season were Davis, Carroll, Marioneaux, Anders, Owen White, J. W. McLemore, Jr., T. B. Dickey, A. J. Stephens, Charles Harris, C. L. Moore, Jr., E. J. LaForge, Shirley Evans and Norman Hewitt.

Committees appointed were: Umpire — Harry Wafer, Gene Knecht and Ed Thompson; Scoring — C. J. Peters; Grounds — Frenchie Marioneaux and J. W. McLemore, Jr.; Finance — T. B. Dickey, Robert F. Mulhearn and Dr. Vernon Baldwin; Publicity — Si Willing and Otis Hassell; Concession stand — A. J. Stephens, T. B. Dickey and Owen White.

Boys 8 through 12 are eligible to play. They must be 8 before August 1, 1961, and must not be 13 before August 1, 1931.

All prospective players, regardless of whether they have played before or not, must register with Dave Anders at the Northeast La. Power Coop office between March 1, and March 31. No players will be accepted after March 31.

Tryouts will be April 17 through April 20, and the season will open with the first game on May 4.

Last year Winnsboro had six Little Boys teams and six minor league teams. The Little Boys all-star team advanced to the state finals at Houma.

Johnson Set, Tig Thinclads To Be Tough

GRAMBLING, La. (Special) — The Grambling College Thinclads face a killing 15-week schedule this spring, but coach Tom Williams will confront the situation undaunted.

He concedes that things could be tougher.

Williams considers his action quite proper.

Explaining with candor that any pessimism on his part might give his squad a feeling of inferiority.

Grambling doesn't have the assets to thumb its nose and wiggle derisive fingers at ranking track powers, but Olympic sprinter Stone Johnson should inspire enough dread to engender hope for a good season.

Johnson, a polished trouper, holds the world's record for 200-meters. Williams is confident that his fanaticism for winning will result in team-wide resurgence.

One of the nation's top attractions, the resourceful junior has been invited to make special appearances in the University of Texas relay and the Dallas Invitational Track and Field meet.

Thompson In Biggest Day In Racing

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Jimmy Thompson scored the biggest triumph of his auto racing career Saturday when he drove his 1949 Ford for a record-setting average of 141.732 miles per hour in the 250-mile modified-sportsman race at Daytona International Speedway.

Thompson, from Monroe, N. C., withstood a strong challenge by Bill Decoster, a rookie from Basking Ridge, N. J., and was only 15 seconds in front when he flashed across the finish line. Decoster drove a 1957 Ford.

The event was the semifinal of Daytona Beach's Speed Week Festival. The big race, the Daytona 500 for late model stock cars, will be run Sunday, starting at 1 p.m., EST.

Saturday's competition was remarkably free of the hair-raising crashes that marked the two 100-mile stock car races Friday.

The crowd of 27,500 saw only three accidents, all minor, although gusty winds of 40 m.p.h. added to the hazards of the high-speed battle.

But the first mishap of the day —on the first lap—put the favored Frank Secrist of Oildale, Calif., on the sidelines.

Secrist, who set a record of 154.812 m.p.h. in qualifying, went off the course on the east turn. His 1953 Studebaker skidded across the infield and smashed broadside into a concrete barrier protecting the spectators. He was not injured.

Sonny Black of Forest Park, Ga., was third in a 1957 Chevrolet and Elmo Henderson of Spartanburg, S. C., was fourth in a 1958 Pontiac.

A record for the race was only a formality. Last year's first running was halted after the first lap following a 37-car pileup on the east turn. Marion (Bubba) Farr was clocked at 116.612 for that lap and the time went into the books as the record.

Only 27 of the starting 60- cars were on the track at the finish.

Two of the hottest drivers here, Glenn (Fireball) Roberts of Daytona Beach and Joe Weatherly of Norfolk, Va., declined to race Saturday. They complained that some drivers in the field were not qualified for the 2½-mile oval.

Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., led the first 15 laps in a 1955 Chevrolet. Then Farr forged ahead in a 1956 Ford and headed the pack through the 23rd lap.

Thompson grabbed the lead on the 24th and from then until the 46th he and Farr dueled, swapping the lead five times.

Vidalia Boys, Ferriday Girls Win In Parish

FERRIDAY, La. (Special) — Vidalia downed Harrisonburg's boys, 63-48 and Ferriday's girls won by 25-21 over Newellton in the finals of the Ferriday tri-parish tournament last night.

Booth led Harrisonburg with 24 points, Bruce scored 16 for Vidalia, Staggs led Ferriday's girls with 13 and Vines scored 11 for Newellton.

In the boys' consolation game Ferriday downed Waterproof, 51-42. Weber was high for the winners and Taylor hit 12 for the losers.

St. Joseph won the girl's consolation game with a 44-28 victory over Monterey. Melville led the winning girls with 32 points and Trisler scored 12 for Monterey.

In boys semifinal action Harrisonburg downed Ferriday, 73-41 and Vidalia beat Waterproof, 56-52.

In the girls' semifinal games Ferriday downed Monterey, 46-33 and Newellton outscored St. Joseph, 28-17.

Pokes Defend Title, Seek Fourth Crown

LAKE CHARLES, La. (Special) — A veteran McNeese State tennis team, seeking its fourth straight Gulf States Conference championship, swings into a schedule of 16 dual matches on March 20 against SMU at Dallas.

Coach Lee Hayley's Cowboys will play TCU the following day at Fort Worth, then will meet five GSC rivals plus Loyola and Centenary in home - and - home dual bouts.

The Cowboys will finish their season in the annual GSC tournament at Monroe on May 11 and 12. For the past three years, the Pokes have swept all five singles and both doubles titles in the conference tourney.

Leading the McNeese team will again be Federico Zarazua, lithe Mexico City senior, who has won the GSC No. 1 singles title three straight years.

Vicente Hernandez and Carlos Perez, also seniors from Mexico City, will probably fill the No. 2 and 3 singles spots, respectively. Junior Jimmy (Bubba) Brown and sophomore Glenn Guillory, both of Lake Charles, will round out the squad in the No. 4 and 5 positions.

Hernandez has held the GSC No. 2 singles crown and, along with Zarazua, the No. 1 doubles championship for three years.

Perez won the No. 4 title in 1958 and 1960 and was No. 3 singles ruler in 1959. Brown has captured No. 5 singles honors the past two years.

Guillory was McNeese's sixth man last spring and moves into the starting slot vacated by Robert Nelson, No. 3 champ in 1960.

Calhoun Grabs Two Victories At St. Paschals'

Visiting Calhoun poured it on hapless St. Paschal's by a resounding 46-27 count last night.

Futrell led the victors netting 18 points with Roy sinking 11 for the losers.

In girls' action Calhoun also took the measure of the [illegible] in a 30-27 vendetta. [illegible] sank 13 points for the winners with Boyington and Harper teaming up for 10 each to pace the losers.

St. Paschal's turned the table in independent action by whipping the visitors by [illegible].

Rebel Coach Denies Story On Top Team

UNIVERSITY, Miss. — Ole Miss football coach Johnny Vaught Saturday categorically denied the intent of a United Press International story dealing with the 1961 Ole Miss football team.

The UPI story, published Feb. 23, quoted Vaught as follows: "Mississippi football coach Johnny Vaught . . . says he has the personnel to 'go all the way' in 1961."

The statement was lifted from a letter sanctioned by Vaught to members of the 1961 Ole Miss squad, now in spring training. As in the past, when similar messages were distributed to Rebel teams, both in the spring and late summer, contents of the letter were both personal and confidential.

"In view of our present rebuilding situation, nothing could be more misleading than the story distributed by the UPI," Vaught said.

"The letter was not intended for publication," he added. "Nor did it state without qualification that I advised the squad point blank that we 'have the personnel to go all the way in 1961'."

"Truth of the matter, we will have a good football team this year. But we will not be affluent in both talent and experience to compare with 1959 and 1960. Ole Miss in 1961 will be a young team with good potential.

"The letter was a personal message to the squad through which we were seeking to build confidence and set an achievement goal," Vaught continued. "Nothing else was intended. The message was not prepared for release to the press and as far as I am concerned, those who did so and the person who first published it violated a confidence. The UPI then saw fit to put me on record in prediction of an unbeaten season, which was entirely contrary to the intent and full meaning of the letter."

The letter was first published in the Feb. 22 issue of The Jackson, Miss., State Times.

Cold Weather Diving Is Fun

INNERKIP, Ont. (AP)—A bitter wind lifted blinding snow across a lonely, flooded quarry, hampering a group of four men intent on chopping through the thick ice.

When water finally welled up through the hole, the group turned not to fishing lines but to skin-diving gear. One by one they dropped into the frigid water for an ice dive—an increasingly popular variation of the underwater sport.

The quarry is near this village, 8 miles northeast of Woodstock. On its floor, about 30 feet down, are two old concrete foundations 8 miles northeast of Woodstock. On its floor, about 30 feet down, are two old concrete foundations connected by a tunnel through which the divers could swim.

Beneath the ice they found themselves in a wonderland of clear green water. Near the surface the water was slightly below freezing, but toward the bottom it was warmer.

The four are members of the Windsor Scuba (self-contained underwater breathing apparatus) divers, a group with the Great Lakes and southwestern Ontario for a playground.

The average sportsman may not get the urge to swim when the temperature drops below freezing, but it is estimated about half of Canada's 360,000 skin-divers carry the pastime into winter.

Syd Routley, huskey president of the Windsor club, says the secret is in the temperature of the water rather than the air.

"The water is usually warmer than the air, so just because it may be five below zero above the ice is no reason to worry."

The most popular method of keeping warm in the frigid water is to get wet.

"The rubber suits we wear are called wet suits," Routley said. "They don't keep you dry. The idea is to let the water in, trap it and warm it with your body. The warmer water and its insulation effect are what keep the diver warm."

The dry suit, rigged to seal water out, is losing favor. Divers found themselves in trouble when the thin rubber was ripped on the underwater obstacles.

But with the wet suits that let the water filter through, they say winter swimming is no more arduous than a cold shower.

Warriors Roll Late To Top Cincy Royals

CINCINNATI (AP)—Wilt Chamberlain scored 58 points Saturday as the Philadelphia Warriors came from behind in the last quarter for a 129-120 National Basketball Association victory over the Cincinnati Royals.

The Warriors had led through most of the first half of the nationally televised game before Cincinnati took command in the third quarter.

The Royals held a 99-92 margin going into the final period. The Warriors quickly cut the lead with six straight points, but Cincinnati led 101-98 when Chamberlain and Guy Rodgers came through with field goals that sent Philadelphia ahead to stay.

Philadelphia held a 63-61 half-time lead.

Oscar Robertson and Jack Twyman again bore the heavy burden of the Cincinnati offense. Robertson finished with 39 points and Twyman with 25.

Philadelphia never was behind in the first half although the score was tied twice. In the third period Twyman's jump shot from 15 feet out pulled Cincinnati even in front, and the Royals kept control until the Warriors' outbreak in the final period.

The Stranger We All Know

Few people have ever heard the name August Hassinen and associated it with some person they know.

To us who have known the man for many years, the name indicates a total stranger. Yet he has been one of Monroe's better known personalities for over 20 years as well as a national sports figure by another name.

A Finn by birth, American by choice, wrestler by profession and retired by time, Gus Kallio, former world's middleweight wrestling champion and Monroe promoter, has removed the veil from the well kept secret that was known only to some close friends, business associates, and members of his family.

"As long as I was active wrestling and promoting I preferred to be known only as Gus Kallio. I am still Gus Kallio. It's my legal name, now, but I was born August Hassinen at Oulu, Finland."

So said Kallio at his Jackson street home where he has lived here since retirement from active life following a stroke in October of 1958.

"Now, it's all right to tell this part of my life. There's no reason not to let it be known."

Kallio said he legally changed his name when he applied for his first U.S. citizenship papers at Cincinnati, Ohio.

In the United States since 1913 and a chain of established homes at Cincinnati, Minneapolis, New York City, Red Lodge, Mont., Louisville, Ky., Omaha, Neb., and Arcadia and Monroe in Louisiana, Kallio said his present adopted name means "cliff" in Finnish. He said Americans couldn't pronouce the name Hassinen correctly, so he had his name changed.

A brother, Isaac Hassinen, lives in Canada and goes by the old family name. He never liked it because Gus changed his.

"Maybe, Isaac was right. Maybe, I shouldn't have changed it. But it doesn't matter now. If I was still promoting or wrestling, I would not say anything. Now, I think my friends all should know this about me."

Kallio, the wrestler, claimed world welterweight and middleweight championships during his ring career. He was dethroned as middleweight king in 1939 after ten years as undisputed champion. He began promoting here shortly after losing his crown, but retired a little over two years ago.

Some Short Shots

Monroe Little League, Inc., will install officers of a new league at a special supper program Tuesday evening at 6:30 o'clock at the Paragon.

A record total of 53 teams is expected for the Little League season here, according to Jack Hesketh, league secretary and Monroe recreation director. This total includes the Minor Leagues which this year will include all 8-year-olds as well as some older boys. It's estimated that over 1,000 eight - to - 12-year-olds will participate in in the program this summer.

The new league will operate for boys in the college area of eastern Monroe. Northside and Southside leagues already are established.

Earl Coleman, a product of Coach Raymond Richards' Delhi High School football teams, a center last year for Copiah-Lincoln Junior College, is due to be playing for Delta State next September.

Gordon Gibson, Byrd High senior who has been a mainstay of the Yellow Jackets in triple-A basketball this seasson, is the son of a former Monroe jeweler, Gordon Gibson. Young Gibson participated in athletics at Plum Street Elementary School and at Neville High here before the family moved to Shreveport last year.

Gibson is the leading scorer in the Shreveport - Bossier area with 467 points in 27 games, for a 17.3 average.

West Monroe Little Boys Baseball missed out on luring the Dixie Series to the Twin Cities next August, but word is already out that West Monroe will try for the 1962 event. The 1961 tournament goes to Lookout Mountain, Tenn.

Attention in Arkansas is being focused on Jerry Hughes of Wilmot. Competing for the University of Arkansas, he already claims distinction as the first Arkansas trackman to top 14 feet in the pole vault. This includes competition for athletes in any Arkansas schools or by any Arkansas-born athlete anywhere.

Track records of Neville High athletes are being compiled by Coach George Davis with the help of Van Leigh, coach at Lee Junior High. All former Neville High athletes who think they hold marks that may still stand are being requested to advise Coach Davis. Many records are already posted on the master chart, but some of these may be topped before research is completed.

Registration of Little League and Dixie League begins tomorrow for eight-to-14-year-old boys at the Monroe Community Center. The 13-to-14-year class will play in the Dixie circuit.

RELAY TEAM WINS

Indian Thinclads Place Third In Memphis Relays

MEMPHIS, Tenn., (Special) — Northeast State's cinder men wound up in a familiar third spot at the Memphis Relays Saturday night.

It was the second meet of the season for the Tribe and the second time they have ended in third place.

Arkansas's Razorbacks finished first here with a 50 point total, to 44½ for Alabama and 32 for Northeast. Florida State got 30½ points, Clemson 30, Georgia 17½, Georgia Tech 15, Mississippi State 9, Memphis State 8 and Vanderbilt 2½.

Northeast was competing without the services of top pole vaulter John Pennel, and with crack distance man Buddy Eiland on the ailing list.

The Tribe got another first place in relay action last night as an eight-lap team composed of Jim Glass, Jim Mouser, John Baker and Randall Walker covered the 1280 yard distance in 3:22.4.

Church McCullam was the only other Northeast first place winner taking a victory in the two mile run of the college division. McCullam's time was 10:3.4.

Northeast racked up on second place finishes as Owen Owen took second in the broad jump with a leap of 22 ft. 5 in., Jack Williams finished second in the two mile run of the university division, Hoy Rogers just missed a first place in the shot put with a toss of 50 ft. 9 inches, and the 12 lap relay team of Jim Mouser, Jim Glass, John Baker and Randall Walker finished second, but was disqualified.

The Indians' 20-lap relay, composed of Jim Mouser, a senior, and three freshmen John Baker, Al Taylor and Claude Mercer finished fourth, and freshman Jay Goldsmith wound up fourth in the 60-yard dash.

Owen Owen finished fifth in the low hurdles, Jack Williams placed fifth in the mile run of the university division, Herschal Copeland gained a fourth place tie with four other high jumpers, George Abbott got a second place in the college division mile run and Bill Frye finished fifth. Abbott also ran fifth in the 880 yard run.

Buddy Eiland attempted to run the mile but became ill and had to drop out of further competition.

Neville hurdler Courtland Gray won the high school division of the high hurdles in Friday night action.

The Indians of Coach Bob Grosclose remained in Memphis due to bad weather and will return to Monroe today. The Tribe travels to Fort Worth for their next competition, in the Fort Worth Relays.

Thompson In Biggest Day In Racing

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — Jimmy Thompson scored the biggest triumph of his auto racing career Saturday when he drove his 1949 Ford for a record-setting average of 141.732 miles per hour in the 250-mile modified-sportsman race at Daytona International Speedway.

Thompson, from Monroe, N. C., withstood a strong challenge by Bill Decoster, a rookie from Basking Ridge, N. J., and was only 15 seconds in front when he flashed across the finish line. Decoster drove a 1957 Ford.

The event was the semifinal of Daytona Beach's Speed Week Festival. The big race, the Daytona 500 for late model stock cars, will be run Sunday, starting at 1 p.m., EST.

Saturday's competition was remarkably free of the hair-raising crashes that marked the two 100-mile stock car races Friday.

The crowd of 27,500 saw only three accidents, all minor, although gusty winds of 40 m.p.h. added to the hazards of the high-speed battle.

But the first mishap of the day—on the first lap—put the favored Frank Secrist of Oildale, Calif., on the sidelines.

Secrist, who set a record of 154.812 m.p.h. in qualifying, went off the course on the east turn. His 1953 Studebaker skidded across the infield and smashed broadside into a concrete barrier protecting the spectators. He was not injured.

Sonny Black of Forest Park, Ga., was third in a 1957 Chevrolet and Elmo Henderson of Spartanburg, S. C., was fourth in a 1958 Pontiac.

A record for the race was only a formality. Last year's first running was halted after the first lap following a 37-car pileup on the east turn. Marion (Bubba) Farr was clocked at 116.612 for that lap and the time went into the books as the record.

Only 27 of the starting 60 cars were on the track at the finish.

Two of the hottest drivers here, Glenn (Fireball) Roberts of Daytona Beach and Joe Weatherly of Norfolk, Va., declined to race Saturday. They complained that some drivers in the field were not qualified for the 2½-mile oval.

Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., led the first 15 laps in a 1955 Chevrolet. Then Farr forged ahead in a 1956 Ford and headed the pack through the 23rd lap.

Thompson grabbed the lead on the 24th and from then until the 46th he and Farr dueled, swapping the lead five times.

Vidalia Boys, Ferriday Girls Win In Parish

FERRIDAY, La. (Special) — Vidalia downed Harrisonburg's boys, 63-48 and Ferriday's girls won by 25-21 over Newellton in the finals of the Ferriday tri-parish tournament last night.

Booth led Harrisonburg with 24 points, Bruce scored 16 for Vidalia, Staggs led Ferriday's girls with 13 and Vines scored 11 for Newellton.

In the boys' consolation game Ferriday downed Waterproof, 51-42. Weber was high for the winners and Taylor hit 12 for the losers.

St. Joseph won the girl's consolation game with a 44-28 victory over Monterey. Melville led the winning girls with 32 points and Trisler scored 12 for Monterey.

In boys semifinal action Harrisonburg downed Ferriday, 72-41 and Vidalia beat Waterproof, 56-52.

In the girls' semifinal games Ferriday downed Monterey, 45-33 and Newellton outscored St. Joseph, 28-17.

Northeast got maximum mileage from its most trusted credit card as the Indians drove into fourth place via a grueling 61-57 Gulf States win over Louisiana Tech here last night.

With :51 seconds to go, the score deadlocked 57-57, and the widly partisian crowd frenzied with anticipation, Lanny Johnson-the boy whose given the Indians their happiest motoring all season-sifted through Tech's rugged defense for a lay-up and the winning margin.

Stuart Toms hit two foul shots moments later but it mattered little except to push the game even further out of the Bulldogs graps.

As in Northeast's other encounters, Johnson was the big chief all night. The hometown hoop-star hit 29 points for game scoring honors and was easily the difference between the clubs in their season finale.

It was a brutally contested showdown in which the lead changed so frequently an IBM might have been pressed to keep up.

Tech, way down in GSC contendings for a change, clung tenaciously all the way and at times threatened to come out ahead.

The Bulldogs received great performances from Joe Daigle, Ron Futrell and Joe Abendroth.

Futrell led K'9 scoring with 15, but Daigle, playing his heart out in his collegiate swan song, rebounded with desperation and put 11 points on the scoreboard. Abendroth completed Tech's double figure trio with 12.

Northeast sped to an early 5-1 lead but let it slip quickly as Tech forged a short - lived lead.

With Daigle's foul shooting doing most of the work, Tech stayed alternately deadlocked and two points behind until Daigle put them in front again with 6:40 left in the half.

The Redshirts grabbed their biggest lead — six points — then maneuvered futilely as the Tribe chiseled away the gap then spanned it to leave the floor at intermission ahead 31-29.

Little more than a single point spelled the difference throughout practically all the final half and the crowd began to wilt with anxiety.

In the final minute Northeast stalled until Johnson saw his way clear for the winning two.

The victory gives the Indians a 11-13 season mark and GSC fourth place with 4-6. Tech is now 7-16 and 3-7 with the possibility of sharing the conference cellar with Southeastern if the Lions win their last game.

Davis Named President At Baseball Meet

WINNSBORO (Special) — Herbert Davis, Jr., was re-elected president of Winnsboro Little Boys Baseball, Inc., at an organizational meeting in the Louisiana Power and Light Co., office Thursday night.

Earl Carroll was elected vice-president and W. E. (Frenchie) Marioneaux was re-elected secretary-treasurer, and Dave Anders was again named to the post of player agent.

Directors elected to serve during the 1961 season were Davis, Carroll, Marioneaux, Anders, Owen White, J. W. McLemore, Jr., T. B. Dickey, A. J. Stephens, Charles Harris, C. L. Moore, Jr., E. J. LaForge, Shirley Evans and Norman Hewitt.

Committees appointed were: Umpire — Harry Wafer, Gene Knecht and Ed Thompson; Scoring — C. J. Peters; Grounds — Frenchie Marioneaux and J. W. McLemore, Jr.; Finance — T. B. Dickey, Robert F. Mulhearn and Dr. Vernon Baldwin; Publicity — Si Willing and Otis Hassell; Concession stand — A. J. Stephens, T. B. Dickey and Owen White.

Boys 8 through 12 are eligible to play. They must be 8 before August 1, 1961, and must not be 13 before August 1, 1961.

All prospective players, regardless of whether they have played before or not, must register with Dave Anders at the Northeast La. Power Coop office between March 1, and March 31. No players will be accepted after March 31.

Tryouts will be April 17 through April 20, and the season will open with the first game on May 4.

Last year Winnsboro had six Little Boys teams and six minor league teams. The Little Boys all-star team advanced to the state finals at Houma.

Pokes Defend Title, Seek Fourth Crown

LAKE CHARLES, La. (Special) — A veteran McNeese State tennis team, seeking its fourth straight Gulf States Conference championship, swings into a schedule of 16 dual matches on March 20 against SMU at Dallas.

Coach Lee Hayley's Cowboys will play TCU the following day at Fort Worth, then will meet five GSC rivals plus Loyola and Centenary in home - and - home dual bouts.

The Cowboys will finish their season in the annual GSC tournament at Monroe on May 11 and 12. For the past three years, the Pokes have swept all five singles and both doubles titles in the conference tourney.

Leading the McNeese team will again be Federico Zarazua, lithe Mexico City senior, who has won the GSC No. 1 singles title three straight years.

Vicente Hernandez and Carlos Perez, also seniors from Mexico City, will probably fill the No. 2 and 3 singles spots, respectively. Junior Jimmy (Bubba) Brown and sophomore Glenn Guillory, both of Lake Charles, will round out the squad in the No. 4 and 5 positions.

Hernandez has held the GSC No. 2 singles crown and, along with Zarazua, the No. 1 doubles championship for three years.

Perez won the No. 4 title in 1958 and 1960 and was No. 3 singles ruler in 1959. Brown has captured No. 5 singles honors the past two years.

Guillory was McNeese's sixth man last spring and moves into the starting slot vacated by Robert Nelson, No. 3 champ in 1960.

Johnson Set, Tig Thinclads To Be Tough

GRAMBLING, La. (Special) — The Grambling College Thinclads face a killing 15-week schedule this spring, but coach Tom Williams will confront the situation undaunted.

He concedes that things could be tougher.

Williams considers his action quite proper.

Explaining with candor that any pessimism on his part might give his squad a feeling of inferiority.

Grambling doesn't have the assets to thumb its nose and wiggle derisive fingers at ranking track powers, but Olympic sprinter Stone Johnson should inspire enough dread to engender hope for a good season.

Johnson, a polished trouper, holds the world's record for 200-meters. Williams is confident that his fanaticism for winning will result in team-wide resurgence.

One of the nation's top attractions, the resourceful junior has been invited to make special appearances in the University of Texas relay and the Dallas Invitational Track and Field meet.

The complete schedule follows:

March 4 Arkansas AM&N College, Grambling.

March 10-11 Border Olympics, Laredo, Texas.

March 18 Quandrangle meet — Southern, Jackson State, Arkansas A. M&N, and Grambling; Grambling.

March 24-25 Texas Southern Relay, Houston, Texas.

April 1 Arkansas AM&N, Pine Bluff, Ark.

April 7-8 Prairie View Relay, Prairie View, Texas.

April 14-15 Pelican Relay, Baton Rouge.

April 22 Grambling Invitational, Grambling.

April 28-29 Drake Relay, Des Moines, Iowa.

May 5-6 Tuskegee Relay, Tuskegee, Ala.

May 12-13, Southwestern Conference Track and Field Meet, Baton Rouge.

June 2-3 NAIA Track and Field Meet, Sioux Falls, S.D.

June 9, Meet of Champions, Houston, Texas.

June 16-17 NCAA Track and Field Meet, Philadelphia, Pa.

June 23-24 National AAU Championships, New York, NY.

Calhoun Grabs Two Victories At St. Paschals'

Visiting Calhoun poured it on hapless St. Paschal's by a resounding 46-27 count last night. Futrell led the victors netting 18 points with Roy sinking 11 for the losers.

In girls' action Calhoun also took the measure of the Saints in a 30-27 vendetta. Thompson sank 12 points for the winners with Boyington and Harper teaming up for 10 each to pace the losers.

St. Paschal's turned the tables in independent action by whipping the visitors by 61-55

REGIONAL CHAMPIONS

Athens Boys, Ogden Girls Take Wins In Class-C Meet

Athens staged an explosive first half last night and held on with all they had to take a 54-48 victory over Eros in the finals of the Class-C Regional tourney after the losers had cut a 19 point lead to nothing after intermission.

Ogden downed Enterprise, 43-37 to take the championship trophy in the girl's bracket.

Eros fell behind in the first half as Athens bombed the nets from all over the court with red-hot Don Henry, Rickey Spurlock and Gary Mitchell doing the damage.

Athens hit with ease and forced Eros to shoot from outside, then picked off the rebounds when Alton Spillars and company couldn't find the range.

Robert Crowe had put Eros in front by 2-0 on a set shot to open the game but Spurlock, Mitchell and Henry opened up to make it 8-2 before Eros could score again.

With big Dwight Carpenter and Gaylon Chandler in the right place at the right time when the rebounds came down, Athens moved into a commanding 18-7 first quarter lead and kept firing away to start the second quarter to move ahead 22-9 with 6:05 left in the half. Athens couldn't miss the second quarter and Eros found themselves behind by 38-19 at the half.

Eros came back in the third quarter with a cool, deliberate attack and began to cut away at the Athens lead. Spillars, McManus and Crowe hit from outside and Athens couldn't get moving as the score evened out at 46-46 with three minutes left in the game.

Eros tied it up for the second time at 48-48 with 2 minutes left but could never get a lead. Athens sewed it up in the final seconds at the free throw line to win the championship.

In the girls finals Ogden got behind the 16 points of Pat Alford and the 13 markers of Linda Hatten to claim the victory over Enterprise. Linda Poole hit 12 points for the losers and Geraldine McVay tallied 9 points.

In boys semifinal action Athens downed Marion, 67-43 and Eros triumphed over Fort Necessity, 50-43.

In the girls' semifinal play Enterprise downed Georgetown, 33-30 and Ogden whipped Lisbon, 47-34.

All tournament selections in the boys' division were Dennis Towns, Marion; Gerald Thames, Fort Necessity; Carl Jones, Fort Necessity; Robert Crowe, Eros; Eugene Harper, Eros; Bobby Lowe, Central; Don Henry, Athens; Gary Mitchell, Athens; Frank Sheppard, Enterprise and Don Reeves, Marion.

Girls' all tourney selections were Jo Ann Hammons, Central; Sue Bradford, Georgetown; Betty Harrison, Lisbon; Margie Adams, Ogden; Freddie McCormick, Enterprise; Lynette Prudhomme, Enterprise at guards, and Shelia Roberts, Georgetown; Wanda Brasher, Marion; Darleen Farley, Lisbon; Linda Hatten, Ogden; Linda Poole, Enterprise; and Pat Alford, Ogden at forwards.

REBELS BEATEN

Ardon Gets Hot, Wave Wins, 87-71

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — With slim Jack Ardon hitting a career high in the scoring column and dominating the backboards, Tulane dealt Mississippi an 87-71 Southeastern Conference setback Saturday night.

The victory—second of the season for Tulane over Ole Miss—brought the Greenies' season record to 10 triumphs in 22 outings and 5-7 in the SEC.

Ardon hit for 28 points—20 of them in the second half—and picked off 25 rebounds. Sophomore sharpshooter Jim Kerwin added 25 points to the Tulane offensive.

The first half was a torrid one and ended tied at 35-35. But Tulane routed the Rebels after the intermission, outscoring the visitors 52-36.

The Greenies defense limited Jack Waters, No. 3 man in the SEC scoring derby to 16 points.

The game got a bit rough in the closing minutes and officials ejected sophomore Bill Bolton.

The loss was Mississippi's 14th in 22 games and left its SEC mark at 3-9 in conference play.

SNAFU

Heads Have Hassel Over Schoolboy All-Star Tiffs

EDITOR'S NOTE: The recent NCAA ruling on scholastic all-star games has created some misunderstanding—if not confusion. A. L. Hardman, sports editor of the Charleston (W.Va.) Gazette, defines the reasons for the confusion and the results the ruling might provide in this article written for

By A. L. HARDMAN
Sports Editor, Charleston Gazette
Written for The Associated Press

The National Federation of High School Athletic Association and the National Collegiate Athletic Association seem to agree that all-star games are an unnecessary evil.

But they apparently don't agree on whose responsibility it is to put those games out of business.

The NCAA has been prodded for several years by the NFHSAA to step in and stop the ever-increasing number of all-star games. But this year, at its meeting in Pittsburgh, when the NCAA finally got around to taking action, the brunt of the responsibility for judging the games was thrown back to the high schools.

The NCAA recently passed a rule which provides for the loss of a year's varsity eligibility for any athlete participating in a scholastic all-star football or basketball game that is not approved by the appropriate state high school athletic association.

In other words, the NCAA would mete out the punishment if the NFHSAA would first point out the guilty.

This wasn't what the NFHSAA wanted at all. It wasn't what the NFHSAA had asked for at any time.

The resolution sent to the NCAA for action and support was one to end all all-star games which are not "promoted, operated and entirely and completely sponsored by the high school athletic associations themselves."

This included not only football and basketball but all sports.

Except in a few scattered cases, as in Georgia and Alabama, whose athletic associations sponsor their own all-star games, this would have been a complete blackballing of these contests.

Apparently the NCAA had no desire to be so severe but preferred to let some of the games continue if they could obtain sanction on a local level.

When the NCAA watered down the resolution, therefore, the high schools groups were left with a responsibility that they didn't think they could handle legally. In some states it was found to be entirely out of the question for the athletic associations to rule on the participation of players in any game after said players had finished their high school eligibility.

In West Virginia, for example, the constitution and by-laws of the secondary schools activities commission very plainly states that it can neither approve nor disapprove of all-star games. Thus the commission, by taking a hands off policy, in fact ruled out the legality of all all-star games in this state.

Virginia has followed suit and of the 48 states and three Canadian providences under the wing of the national federation, several others are taking the same attitude.

Cliff Fagan, executive secretary of the national federation, hasn't said so, but it is apparent that he doesn't disapprove of this approach to the problem. When West Virginia announced a hands off policy, he said it was "action well taken."

GUINN, DYKES ON SECOND TEAM

Jackets, Bastrop Dominate District

Byrd and Bastrop, given no better than a chance for fifth and sixth place by pre-season District 1-AAA forecasters won when the chips were down, finished first and second respectively in the loop, and dominated all - district first team balloting.

Byrd's Gordon Gibson was named "Outstanding Player" in the loop and Jacket coach Scotty Robertson received the honor of being named outstanding coach.

Other first team selections were Robert Clifton, 5-11 senior guard from Bossier City and the only other player besides Gibson to be a unanimous selection on the first team, Bob Wallace, a 6-4 senior from Byrd, Floyd Murry, a 6-3 junior from Bastrop and George Madison, a 6-0 Bastrop senior.

Members of the second team are Carl Guinn, Ouachita's high-scoring operator, Jack Odom of Fair Park, Charles Dykes of West Monroe, John Pierce of Fair Park and Roger Briley of Bryd, and Tommy Beaube of Ouachita.

Gibson held runnerup scoring honors in Shreveport circles, while Clifton ranked number three in the point derby and Wallace handled most of Byrd's rebounding and held a 9.5 scoring average.

Murry and Madison were sparkplugs in a Bastrop attack that netted the Rams the runnerup spot in 1-AAA. Murry was the big man with the rebounds and teamed with hot-shooting Madison to lead the Ram scoring attack.

Gibson's scoring average was 17 and Clifton was 16.8. The Yellow Jackets will host Jesuit Tuesday and Bastrop met St. Aloysuis last night in first round state playoff action.

Guinn received 35 votes in the balloting and was the only player to push the first five. The accurate shooting Lion led an offensive minded second team. Charles Dykes of West Monroe and Tommy Beaube of Ouachita tied for the fifth position on the second unit.

Ouachita's Don Long, West Monroe's Oliver Schulz, Phil Carney, Larry Tulley, Dean Bounds and Donnie Carrol all of Fair Park were on the honorable mention list.

Top Program On Slate For Roll-Arena

Adrian Ballengeon, fresh from a convincing heavyweight title victory over the Black Panther in last week's wrestling action, takes on giant Lu Kim from Manchuria in an hour time limit, two falls to win scrap at Roll-Arena Monday night.

On the same card, the Black Panther, victim of Ballengeon last week, will get a taste of his own type of wrestling medicine in an hour limit, two falls to win scrap with rough-tough Carlos Mendoza.

Shiek Abdullah and Prince Omar will square off in a one fall, 30 minute time limit battle to add to the night's grappling program.

Ballengeon has had quite a time in his local championship matches. He has had to beat his opponent more than once to be able to claim and hold ownership of the prize belt. Big Lu Kim, his opponent for Monday's action, had a successful night last week by halting the jumps of Jumping Johnny King in a two - fall battle.

The Black Panther will be up against a man with some valuable wrestling experience in Carlos Mendoza. Mendoza has been in and out of the Monroe rings for some time but will have to put up with the "hard - headed" techniques of the masked Black Panther.

Shiek Abdullah and Prince Omar are new faces at Roll-Arena but could prove to be champs before long.

Northwestern Gets 71-60 Win Over Centenary

NATCHITOCHES, La. (AP) — Northwestern State won its 24th straight home-court victory Saturday night by defeating Centenary for the second time this year, 71-60.

The victory gave NSC the mythical "pine cone" championship for the team which has the best record among Louisiana Tech, Centenary and NSC.

Centenary led most of the first half, but NSC rallied to go ahead at 30-26 at intermission.

Scoring honors went to Jackie Crawford of Centenary with 28 points. Leading NSC was Truitt Weldon with 22 points.

Jordan Back In Graces Of Athletic Body

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former world welterweight champion Don Jordan of Los Angeles Saturday was restored to the good graces of the California Athletic Commission. The commission renewed Jordan's license.

The action cleared the way for Jordan to fight another ex-welterweight champion, Carmen Basilio, in New York March 11.

The California board declined to renew Jordan's license last year. It felt he had not conducted himself to the best interests of boxing. Prominent among the charges against him was his former association with Los Angeles ex-gambler Mickey Cohen.

Jordan's attorney, former football star Gary Kerkorian, and his new manager, airline executive Kirk Kerkorian (no relation), argued that Jordan has conducted himself without criticism since he broke off his friendship with Cohen.

John Patrick Rohan had an enviable record as freshman coach at N.Y.U. last season. His frosh basketball team won 30 of 32 games.

Cage Program Ends At YMCA

Saturday morning, February 25, marked the end of a very successful Basketball program at the Y.M.C.A. 31 different basketball teams with an enrollment of 320 boys and girls participated in the past 7 weeks. The program of the Y.M.C.A. basketball league is to give every boy and girl a chance to play with a team of his own age group. Emphasis was placed on teaching fundamentals as well as game play. According to Mr. Robert C. McKee, Director of the League, attendance hit an all time high of 2700 during the season.

Winners of the play-off games will play in Bossier City at a later date. An All-Star team will be selected to compete in the Louisiana - Mississippi Sports Festival in Jackson, Miss.

The Falcons dropped an 18-13 decision to the Sharp-Shooters in Saturday's action, and the Globetrotters outhit the Rebels, 18-17.

Will Your Grandchildren Forget God?

Nikita Khrushchev has said, "Your Grandchildren will grow up under Communism!"

If that's true, your grandchildren will forget God . . . will never go to church . . . will live in a world of Godless atheism.

"Never," you say. But are you sure? Are you doing anything to prevent . . . to oppose Communism? One sure way is to help RADIO FREE EUROPE.

RFE broadcasts truth from the Free World to 79 million people in captive nations behind the Iron Curtain. 79 million people who are vital to the cause of freedom because they create a buffer zone between Russia and the Free World . . . a zone that ties up 30 Russian Divisions . . . keeps Russia from starting a war. There's only one catch—RFE needs your support to continue on the air. How about it? Will you help fight Communism? Secure the future of your children? Your dimes, your quarters, your dollars help to keep freedom alive in the world.

REGIONAL CHAMPIONS

Athens Boys, Ogden Girls Take Wins In Class-C Meet

Athens staged an explosive first half last night and held on with all they had to take a 54-48 victory over Eros in the finals of the Class-C Regional tourney after the losers had cut a 19 point lead to nothing after intermission.

Ogden downed Enterprise, 43-37 to take the championship trophy in the girl's bracket.

Eros fell behind in the first half as Athens bombed the nets from all over the court with red-hot Don Henry, Rickey Spurlock and Gary Mitchell doing the damage.

Athens hit with ease and forced Eros to shoot from outside, then picked off the rebounds when Alton Spillars and company couldn't find the range.

Robert Crowe had put Eros in front by 2-0 on a set shot to open the game but Spurlock, Mitchell and Henry opened up to make it 8-2 before Eros could score again.

With big Dwight Carpenter and Gaylon Chandler in the right place at the right time when the rebounds came down, Athens moved into a commanding 18-7 first quarter lead and kept firing away to start the second quarter to move ahead 22-9 with 6:05 left in the half. Athens couldn't miss the second quarter and Eros found themselves behind by 38-19 at the half.

Eros came back in the third quarter with a cool, deliberate attack and began to cut away at the Athens lead. Spillars, McManus and Crowe hit from outside and Athens couldn't get moving as the score evened out at 46-46 with three minutes left in the game.

Eros tied it up for the second time at 48-48 with 2 minutes left but could never get a lead. Athens sewed it up in the final seconds at the free throw line to win the championship.

In the girls finals Ogden got behind the 16 points of Pat Alford and the 13 markers of Linda Hatten to claim the victory over Enterprise. Linda Poole hit 12 points for the losers and Geraldine McVay tallied 9 points.

In boys semifinal action Athens downed Marion, 67-43 and Eros triumphed over Fort Necessity, 50-43.

In the girls' semifinal play Enterprise downed Georgetown, 33-30 and Ogden whipped Lisbon, 47-34.

All tournament selections in the boys' division were Dennis Towns, Marion; Gerald Thames, Fort Necessity; Carl Jones, Fort Necessity; Robert Crowe, Eros; Eugene Harper, Eros; Bobby Lowe, Central; Don Henry, Athens; Gary Mitchell, Athens; Frank Sheppard, Enterprise and Don Reeves, Marion.

Girls' all tourney selections were Jo Ann Hammons, Central; Sue Bradford, Georgetown; Betty Harrison, Lisbon; Margie Adams, Ogden; Freddie McCormick, Enterprise; Lynette Prudhomme, Enterprise at guards, and Shelia Roberts, Georgetown; Wanda Brasher, Marion; Darleen Farley, Lisbon; Linda Hatten, Ogden; Linda Poole, Enterprise; and Pat Alford, Ogden at forwards.

REBELS BEATEN

Ardon Gets Hot, Wave Wins, 87-71

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — With slim Jack Ardon hitting a career high in the scoring column and dominating the backboards, Tulane dealt Mississippi an 87-71 Southeastern Conference setback Saturday night.

The victory—second of the season for Tulane over Ole Miss—brought the Greenies' season record to 10 triumphs in 22 outings and 5-7 in the SEC.

Ardon hit for 28 points—20 of them in the second half—and picked off 25 rebounds. Sophomore sharpshooter Jim Kerwin added 25 points to the Tulane offensive.

The first half was a torrid one and ended tied at 35-35. But Tulane routed the Rebels after the intermission, outscoring the visitors 52-36.

The Greenies defense limited Jack Waters, No. 3 man in the SEC scoring derby to 16 points.

The game got a bit rough in the closing minutes and officials ejected sophomore Bill Bolton.

The loss was Mississippi's 14th in 22 games and left its SEC mark at 3-9 in conference play.

SNAFU

Heads Have Hassel Over Schoolboy All-Star Tiffs

EDITOR'S NOTE: The recent NCAA ruling on scholastic all-star games has created some misunderstandings—if not confusion. A. L. Hardman, sports editor of the Charleston (W.Va.) Gazette, defines the reasons for the confusion and the results the ruling might provide in this article written for

By A. L. HARDMAN
Sports Editor, Charleston Gazette
Written for The Associated Press

The National Federation of High School Athletic Association and the National Collegiate Athletic Association seem to agree that all-star games are an unnecessary evil.

But they apparently don't agree on whose responsibility it is to put those games out of business.

The NCAA has been prodded for several years by the NFHSAA to step in and stop the ever-increasing number of all-star games. But this year, at its meeting in Pittsburgh, when the NCAA finally got around to taking action, the brunt of the responsibility for judging the games was thrown back to the high schools.

The NCAA recently passed a rule which provides for the loss of a year's varsity eligibility for any athlete participating in a scholastic all-star football or basketball game that is not approved by the appropriate state high school athletic association.

In other words, the NCAA would mete out the punishment if the NFHSAA would first point out the guilty.

This wasn't what the NFHSAA wanted at all. It wasn't what the NFHSAA had asked for at any time.

The resolution sent to the NCAA for action and support was one to end all all-star games which are not "promoted, operated and entirely and completely sponsored by the high school athletic associations themselves."

This included not only football and basketball but all sports.

Except in a few scattered cases, as in Georgia and Alabama, whose athletic associations sponsor their own all-star games, this would have been a complete blackballing of these contests.

Apparently the NCAA had no desire to be so severe but preferred to let some of the games continue if they could obtain sanction on a local level.

When the NCAA watered down the resolution, therefore, the high schools groups were left with a responsibility that they didn't think they could handle legally. In some states it was found to be entirely out of the question for the athletic associations to rule on the participation of players in any game after said players had finished their high school eligibility.

In West Virginia, for example, the constitution and by-laws of the secondary schools activities commission very plainly states that it can neither approve nor disapprove of all-star games. Thus the commission, by taking a hands off policy, in fact ruled out the legality of all all-star games in this state.

Virginia has followed suit and of the 48 states and three Canadian providences under the wing of the national federation, several others are taking the same attitude.

Cliff Fagan, executive secretary of the national federation, hasn't said so, but it is apparent that he doesn't disapprove of this approach to the problem. When West Virginia announced a hands off policy, he said it was "action well taken."

GUINN, DYKES ON SECOND TEAM

Jackets, Bastrop Dominate District

Byrd and Bastrop, given no better than a chance for fifth and sixth place by pre-season District 1-AAA forecasters won when the chips were down, finished first and second respectively in the loop, and dominated all - district first team balloting.

Byrd's Gordon Gibson was named "Outstanding Player" in the loop and Jacket coach Scotty Robertson received the honor of being named outstanding coach.

Other first team selections were Robert Clifton, 5-11 senior guard from Bossier City and the only other player besides Gibson to be a unanimous selection on the first team, Bob Wallace, a 6-4 senior from Byrd, Floyd Murry, a 6-3 junior from Bastrop and George Madison, a 6-0 Bastrop senior.

Members of the second team are Carl Guinn, Ouachita's high-scoring operator, Jack Odom of Fair Park, Charles Dykes of West Monroe, John Pierce of Fair Park and Roger Briley of Bryd, and Tommy Beaube of Ouachita.

Gibson held runnerup scoring honors in Shreveport circles, while Clifton ranked number three in the point derby and Wallace handled most of Byrd's rebounding and held a 9.5 scoring average.

Murry and Madison were sparkplugs in a Bastrop attack that netted the Rams the runnerup spot in 1-AAA. Murry was the big man with the rebounds and teamed with hot-shooting Madison to lead the Ram scoring attack.

Gibson's scoring average was 17 and Clifton was 16.8. The Yellow Jackets will host Jesuit Tuesday and Bastrop met St. Aloysuis last night in first round state playoff action.

Guinn received 35 votes in the balloting and was the only player to push the first five. The accurate shooting Lion led an offensive minded second team. Charles Dykes of West Monroe and Tommy Beaube of Ouachita tied for the fifth position on the second unit.

Ouachita's Don Long, West Monroe's Oliver Schulz, Phil Carney, Larry Tulley, Dean Bounds and Donnie Carrol all of Fair Park were on the honorable mention list.

Top Program On Slate For Roll-Arena

Adrian Ballengeon, fresh from a convincing heavyweight title victory over the Black Panther in last week's wrestling action, takes on giant Lu Kim from Manchuria in an hour time limit, two falls to win scrap at Roll-Arena Monday night.

On the same card, the Black Panther, victim of Ballengeon last week, will get a taste of his own type of wrestling medicine in an hour limit, two falls to win scrap with rough-tough Carlos Mendoza.

Shiek Abdullah and Prince Omar will square off in a one fall, 30 minute time limit battle to add to the night's grappling program.

Ballengeon has had quite a time in his local championship matches. He has had to beat his opponent more than once to be able to claim and hold ownership of the prize belt. Big Lu Kim, his opponent for Monday's action, had a successful night last week by halting the jumps of Jumping Johnny King in a two - fall battle.

The Black Panther will be up against a man with some valuable wrestling experience in Carlos Mendoza. Mendoza has been in and out of the Monroe rings for some time but will have to put up with the "hard - headed" techniques of the masked Black Panther.

Shiek Abdullah and Prince Omar are new faces at Roll-Arena but could prove to be champs before long.

Northwestern Gets 71-60 Win Over Centenary

NATCHITOCHES, La. (AP) — Northwestern State won its 24th straight home-court victory Saturday night by defeating Centenary for the second time this year, 71-60.

The victory gave NSC the mythical "pine cone" championship for the team which has the best record among Louisiana Tech, Centenary and NSC.

Centenary led most of the first half, but NSC rallied to go ahead at 30-26 at intermission.

Scoring honors went to Jackie Crawford of Centenary with 23 points. Leading NSC was Truitt Weldon with 22 points.

Jordan Back In Graces Of Athletic Body

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former world welterweight champion Don Jordan of Los Angeles Saturday was restored to the good graces of the California Athletic Commission. The commission renewed Jordan's license.

The action cleared the way for Jordan to fight another ex-welterweight champion, Carmen Basilio, in New York March 11.

The California board declined to renew Jordan's license last year. It felt he had not conducted himself to the best interests of boxing. Prominent among the charges against him was his former association with Los Angeles ex-gambler Mickey Cohen.

Jordan's attorney, former football star Gary Kerkorian, and his new manager, airline executive Kirk Kerkorian (no relation), argued that Jordan has conducted himself without criticism since he broke off his friendship with Cohen.

John Patrick Rohan had an enviable record as freshman coach at N.Y.U. last season. His frosh basketball team won 30 of 32 games.

Cage Program Ends At YMCA

Saturday morning, February 25, marked the end of a very successful Basketball program at the Y.M.C.A. 31 different basketball teams with an enrollment of 320 boys and girls participated in the past 7 weeks. The program of the Y.M.C.A. basketball league is to give every boy and girl a chance to play with a team of his own age group. Emphasis was placed on teaching fundamentals as well as game play. According to Mr. Robert C. McKee, Director of the League, attendance hit an all time high of 2700 during the season.

Winners of the play-off games will play in Bossier City at a later date. An All-Star team will be selected to compete in the Louisiana - Mississippi Sports Festival in Jackson, Miss.

The Falcons dropped an 18-13 decision to the Sharp-Shooters in Saturday's action, and the Globetrotters outhit the Rebels, 18-17.

SHOOTS 3-UNDER PAR

Palmer Holds Stroke Lead In Baton Rouge Open Golf

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Arnold Palmer blistered the windy 6,700 - yard Sherwood Forrest course with a 3-under-par 67 Saturday and took a one-stroke lead at the midway point in the $20,000 Baton Rouge Open Golf Tournament.

Palmer, the defending champion who plays out of Miami, made four birdies on a 34-33 card which gave him a 36-hole total of 132.

Sixty-five pros and 11 amateurs survived the 147 cut-off and will compete in the 36-hole finale Sunday.

Bobby Nichols of Midland, Tex., turned in the day's best card with a 66 to climb into third place with a 135.

Palmer, a transplanted Pennsylvanian, bogied only the sixth hole. Putting for a 66 on the 18th, his 8-footer hung on the rim as the gallery gasped.

Both Palmer and Burke, also a former winner here, will be shooting for the $1,000 bonus promised any ex-titlist who wins again.

The wind—gusts ranged up to 25 m.p.h.—and clear skies helped dry out the course which was soaked Thursday and Friday by driving rains which forced postponement of the opening round Thursday.

But the winds hampered many players and the scores were generally higher than the first-round cards.

Howie Johnson, who won the tourney in 1960 and Dave Hill, who captured the Tucson Open last weekend, failed to make the cut-off. Johnson fired a 78 for a 149 total—two strokes over the limit. Hill blew to an 80 for a 36-hole total of 153.

Wes Ellis Jr., of West Caldwell, N.J.; Gary Player, the transplanted South African; Gay Brewer Jr. of Crystal River, Fla.; George Bayer of South Pasadena, Calif., and Lionel Hebert, the homestate favorite from Lafayette, La., were the only other players to shoot par or under.

Ellis fired a 68 for a 136 total and was in fourth spot. Hebert, with a 70 for 137, tied for fifth with Frank Boynton of Orlando, Fla., who has a 66-71.

Bunched with 138s were George Knudson of Toronto, Canada, Houston LaClair of Birmingham, Ala., who shot a 67, and Buster Cupit of Fort Smith, Ark.

Sam Snead, the old warhorse of the pro circuit, slipped to a 74 after firing an opening-round 69. Snead set the tourney record in 1963 with a 275.

Maroons Snatch Win From Tigers

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Leland Mitchell scored in the final two seconds to enable league-leading Mississippi State to shade Louisiana State 56-54 in a Southeastern Conference basketball game Saturday night.

LSU led from the start and was in front 39-35 at intermission but was cautious in the second half because of costly personals against three starters. As a result, Mississippi State steadily chopped down the LSU margin which disappeared in the final five minutes.

After MSU pulled even at 54-54 on a Mitchell field goal, the Maroons began to play the waiting game, holding possession almost the final four minutes.

LSU's George Nattin, who had four personals, lost control of the ball while swapping turns with Ellis in a pair of dribbling acts. It appeared a Mississippi State player had touched the ball and forced it out, but officials ruled the other way. Then MSU's Jack Berkshire sent a pass to Jerry Graves who whirled and passed to Mitchell with three seconds remaining. Mitchell then flipped in the game-winning basket.

Mitchell was top scorer with 19 points. Stan Jacobs paced LSU with 18, 14 of them in the first half.

LSU had the edge in field goals, 22 to 20, and the better shooting percentage, .420 to .360.

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Sam Bernardi, a 5-foot-6 entry from Winnetka, Ill., matched par Saturday and became the medalist for his age group in the 72-hole PGA Club Championship.

Bernardi's 36-hole card of 67-70—137 left him six strokes ahead of Clarence Doser, runner-up in the entries 50 years of age and older. Doser, from Gaithersburg, Md., had a 70-73—143.

After Sunday's second round for those under 50, the field will be cut to the low 125 golfers plus ties. The final 36-holes in the $10,000 event will be played Monday and Tuesday.

Bernardi, 54, was the only entry to break par of 35-37—72 over the exacting 6,814-yard PGA National Course Saturday. Gusty winds added a stroke or two to many of the scores.

Following Bernardi and Doser were John Watson of South Bend, Ind., and Duke Gibson of Kansas City, Mo., at 146.

PICKED FOR All-District honors in 8-B girls' basketball action were two Calhoun stars, Eleanor Calhoun and Zella Faye Brown. Miss Calhoun led the girls in scoring with a 14-point average for the year. Miss Brown, an outstanding sophomore guard was an outstanding defensive player. The Ouachita Wildlife Unit will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday night with several items on the program, including resolutions to present to the state convention.

The resolutions in turn will be presented at the March 17-19 convention in Monroe of the Louisiana Wildlife Federation.

Floyd Throws Verbal Stabs At Challenger

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson threw a few light verbal jabs Saturday at Ingemar Johansson, his opponent in the championship rematch here March 13.

To the slugging Swede's demands for a foreign-born referee for the fight, Patterson retorted: "This fight is being fought in the United States. I am a U. S. citizen, and I demand a U. S. referee."

Patterson, training here, said if the fight were staged in a foreign country, he would agree to a foreign referee.

Johansson, training at Palm Beach, 80 miles distant, also called for 6-ounce rather than the 8-ounce gloves used here. Six-ounce gloves were used in the previous fights.

Ingo can choose whatever weight gloves he wants, Patterson said. It makes no difference to him, the champ added.

Paret Heavier

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Favored Benny (Kid) Paret had a five-pound advantage over Gaspar Ortega for their 10-round, nationally televised fight Saturday night at Olympic Auditorium.

Paret weighed 154½—the heaviest of his career—and Ortega 149½. The welterweight limit, 147, wasn't observed because the fight isn't a title event.

Paret took the title from Don Jordan last year. He is a 4 to 1 favorite, despite the fact that he lost a decision to Ortega two years ago.

Fullmer Picked To Top Robinson

By CHARLES MAHER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The odds are 2-to-1 or thereabouts that one of this week's biggest losers in a town full of same will be Ray Robinson.

For, if the moneychangers reckon correctly when they say Gene Fullmer will retain his NBA middleweght title Saturday night, this might easily be the last championship fight in Robinson's long and distinguished career.

The 40-year-old challenger will try to win the middleweight title for the sixth time when he meets the 29-year-old champion before a national television audience (ABC) and about 8,000 paying customers at Convention Center. The hour is 7 p.m. PST.

Robinson's great skills have diminished substantially since the days when he was called the best in his profession, pound for pound. But the odds do not seem to give him much credit for fighting Fullmer to a draw only last December in Los Angeles.

On the other hand, that fight must have been a more punishing exercise for Robinson, whose aging body took a savage flogging all night, than for the much younger Fullmer, who easily survived Robinson's brilliant but infrequent flurries.

The champion, whose atrocious style is offset by his ferocious strength and durability, will be permitted this time to indulge his bullish manners all the way. Ordinarily, manager Marv Jenson shouts instructions by the numbers from the corner. Saturday night he'll keep quiet.

"Last time," Gene said, "I felt I should be fighting a little harder. But Marv wanted me to be more cautious. This time I felt I would like to go as hard as I dared."

"I thought Gene was comfortably ahead last time," Jenson said. "The way it came out made me feel I should give him a chance to go on his own once. If he had lost because I held him back, I could never have forgiven myself."

Robinson once said Fullmer was a difficult man to fight because nobody—Fullmer included—knew what he was going to do next. The absence of Jenson's restraining direction from the corner is not likely to make Gene any more predictable.

But Ray's manager, George Gainford, says Gene was not boxing by the numbers on May 1, 1957, when Robinson regained the title by knocking out Fullmer in the fifth round at Chicago.

"Right now," Gainford said, "Ray looks to be in about the same shape as last December. The only trouble we've had is developing more punches, or rather working on punches we neglected to use last time. We've been kicking ourselves all over the place because we didn't use them.

"Frankly, I think we're going to flatten the guy this time."

But Jenson said Robinson's best punch might not do that.

"In the last fight," Jenson said, "Robinson caught Gene one or two good shots before the 7th round, and in the 11th he hit him harder than when he knocked him out in Chicago. Gene feels now Robinson can't knock him out.

"Anyway, the impact of that punch in Chicago was two-thirds Robinson and one-third Gene moving in fast toward the punch."

Gainford, noting Fullmer's manager had made the analysis, said: "Robinson has never hit Jenson, so Jenson can say anything he wants to."

This will be the fourth time Robinson and Fullmer have fought for the title. Each beat the other once before they drew last time out.

Fullmer gets a rematch within 90 days if he loses, but there is no provision for a return bout if Robinson loses. Since Ray has been beaten twice by Paul Pender—recognized as champion in New York and Massachusetts—he will be left with no visible claim to a title shot if he loses this one.

Cincinnati Sure Of At Least Tie For Loop Title

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — Cincinnati won its 16th straight game and clinched a tie for the Missouri Valley Conference title by whipping North Texas State 73-43 Saturday.

The Bearcats thus ended their Valley slate with a 10-2 record. Bradley, also with 2 losses, is the other Valley crown contender.

The Eagles were tied with Cincinnati after 8 minutes but then collapsed before an 18-point Bearcat scoring burst. The visitors played three men taller than 6-foot-8 and dominated the board. They grabbed 63 rebounds to 37 for the North Texans and outshot them from the field 40 per cent to 28 per cent.

Cincinnati's Bob Wiesenhahn and Paul Hogue led scoring with 15 points apiece. Ardie Dixon had 14 for North Texas.

$100,000 JACKPOT

Prove It Claims Santa Anita Pot

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)— Prove It, once an unsung member of the Rex Ellsworth Stable, stepped another giant stride toward fame Saturday with a remarkably easy victory in the $145,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

Bet down to odds of 2-5 by a crowd estimated at 52,500, the 4-year-old California comet rolled in to haul down the $100,000 jackpot and score his ninth win in 10 trips to the post.

Lengths behind was the Jacnot Stable hope, the hopelessly named 4-year-old Oink, with the Kerr Stable's Grey Eagle third.

It was no contest when jockey Willie Shoemaker opened the throttle on Prove It as they neared the turn for home. The winning bay won eased up by 2¼ lengths.

The time for the mile and one quarter golden gallop was an excellent 2 minutes flat. The track record is 1:59 4-5 set in this same spectacle by Round Table in 1958.

Prove It paid 40 cents on the dollar—$2.80 to win, $2.60 to place and $2.20 to show.

Oink, ridden by Milo Valenzuela, returned $7.20 and $3.60 and Grey Eagle, with Larry Gilligan aboard, $2.60 to show.

Actually, everything was just right for Prove It. He carried a wisp of 115 pounds. He had Shoemaker, many times the national riding champion, and a favored No. 4-post position.

It was then merely up to the horse to run, and he did.

It was the second $100,000 victory for Prove It at this meeting. He captured the Santa Anita Maturity in January.

The race went pretty well according to pattern, with one notable exception.

C. W. Smith's highly regarded American Comet, the third betting choice, faded as the pack raced down the back stretch and finished 11th and last.

The lightly regarded First Balcony was fourth while C. V. Whitney's Tompion, the second choice in the fancy of the patrons, came in a disappointing eighth.

Championship Fight To Be Viewed Here

Local fight fans can beat the no home TV ruling for the March 13 Floyd Patterson — Ingemar Johansson bout and watch the historic rubber match live over closed circuit video in the Neville High auditorium.

The 15-round heavyweight fight will come direct from Convention Hall at Miami Beach through the auspicies of the TelePrompTer Corporation and is being promoted here by the Monroe Lions' Club.

Tickets will sell for $4.75 and can be bought at the Dew Music Co.

Patterson became the first men in history of heavyweight fighting to regain the title when he knocked out Johansson in the fifth round June 20 last year. Johansson won their first meeting with a spectacular third - round kayo, June 26, 1959, for one of the greatest upsets in ring history.

Many ringsiders will be paying $100 for their seats.

SHOOTS 3-UNDER PAR

Palmer Holds Stroke Lead In Baton Rouge Open Golf

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Arnold Palmer blistered the windy 6,700 - yard Sherwood Forrest course with a 3-under-par 67 Saturday and took a one-stroke lead at the midway point in the $20,000 Baton Rouge Open Golf Tournament.

Palmer, the defending champion who plays out of Miami, made four birdies on a 34-33 card which gave him a 36-hole total of 132.

Sixty-five pros and 11 amateurs survived the 147 cut-off and will compete in the 36-hole finale Sunday.

Bobby Nichols of Midland, Tex., turned in the day's best card with a 66 to climb into third place with a 135.

Palmer, a transplanted Pennsylvanian, bogied only the sixth hole. Putting for a 66 on the 18th, his 8-footer hung on the rim as the gallery gasped.

Both Palmer and Burke, also a former winner here, will be shooting for the $1,000 bonus promised any ex-titlist who wins again.

The wind—gusts ranged up to 25 m.p.h.—and clear skies helped dry out the course which was soaked Thursday and Friday by driving rains which forced postponement of the opening round Thursday.

But the winds hampered many players and the scores were generally higher than the first-round cards.

Howie Johnson, who won the tourney in 1959 and Dave Hill, who captured the Tucson Open last weekend, failed to make the cutoff. Johnson fired a 76 for a 149 total—two strokes over the limit. Hill blew to an 80 for a 36-hole total of 153.

Wes Ellis Jr., of West Caldwell, N.J.; Gary Player, the transplanted South African; Gay Brewer Jr. of Crystal River, Fla.; George Bayer of South Pasadena, Calif., and Lionel Hebert, the homestate favorite from Lafayette, La., were the only other players to shoot par or under.

Ellis fired a 68 for a 136 total and was in fourth spot. Hebert, with a 70 for 137, tied for fifth with Frank Boynton of Orlando, Fla., who has a 66-71.

Bunched with 138s were George Knudson of Toronto, Canada, Houston LaClair of Birmingham, Ala., who shot a 67, and Buster Cupit of Fort Smith, Ark.

Sam Snead, the old warhorse of the pro circuit, slipped to a 74 after firing an opening-round 69. Snead set the tourney record in 1953 with a 275.

Maroons Snatch Win From Tigers

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Leland Mitchell scored in the final two seconds to enable league-leading Mississippi State to shade Louisiana State 56-54 in a Southeastern Conference basketball game Saturday night.

LSU led from the start and was in front 39-35 at intermission but was cautious in the second half because of costly personals against three starters. As a result, Mississippi State steadily chopped down the LSU margin which disappeared in the final five minutes.

After MSU pulled even at 54-54 on a Mitchell field goal, the Maroons began to play the waiting game, holding possession almost the final four minutes.

LSU's George Nattin, who had four personals, lost control of the ball while swapping turns with Ellis in a pair of dribbling acts. It appeared a Mississippi State player had touched the ball and forced it out, but officials ruled the other way. Then MSU's Jack Berkshire sent a pass to Jerry Graves who whirled and passed to Mitchell with three seconds remaining. Mitchell then flipped in the game-winning basket.

Mitchell was top scorer with 19 points. Stan Jacobs paced LSU with 18, 14 of them in the first half.

LSU had the edge in field goals, 22 to 20, and the better shooting percentage, .420 to .360.

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Sam Bernardi, a 5-foot-6 entry from Winnetka, Ill., matched par Saturday and became the medalist for his age group in the 72-hole PGA Club Championship.

Bernardi's 36-hole card of 67-70—137 left him six strokes ahead of Clarence Doser, runner-up in the entries 50 years of age and older. Doser, from Gaithersburg, Md., had a 70-73—143.

After Sunday's second round for those under 50, the field will be cut to the low 125 golfers plus ties. The final 36-holes in the $10,000 event will be played Monday and Tuesday.

Following Bernardi and Doser were John Watson of South Bend, Ind., and Duke Gibson of Kansas City, Mo., at 146.

Floyd Throws Verbal Stabs At Challenger

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson threw a few light verbal jabs Saturday at Ingemar Johansson, his opponent in the championship rematch here March 13.

To the slugging Swede's demands for a foreign-born referee for the fight, Patterson retorted: "This fight is being fought in the United States. I am a U. S. citizen, and I demand a U. S. referee."

Patterson, training here, said if the fight were staged in a foreign country, he would agree to a foreign referee.

Johansson, training at Palm Beach, 80 miles distant, also called for 6-ounce rather than the 8-ounce gloves used here. Six-ounce gloves were used in the previous fights.

Ingo can choose whatever weight gloves he wants, Patterson said. It makes no difference to him, the champ added.

Paret Heavier

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Favored Benny (Kid) Paret had a five-pound advantage over Gaspar Ortega for their 10-round, nationally televised fight Saturday night at Olympic Auditorium.

Paret weighed 154½—the heaviest of his career—and Ortega 149½. The welterweight limit, 147, wasn't observed because the fight isn't a title event.

Paret took the title from Don Jordan last year. He is a 4 to 1 favorite, despite the fact that he lost a decision to Ortega two years ago.

Fullmer Picked To Top Robinson

By CHARLES MAHER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The odds are 2-to-1 or thereabouts that one of this week's biggest losers in a town full of same will be Ray Robinson.

For, if the moneychangers reckon correctly when they say Gene Fullmer will retain his NBA middleweght title Saturday night, this might easily be the last championship fight in Robinson's long and distinguished career.

The 40-year-old challenger will try to win the middleweight title for the sixth time when he meets the 29-year-old champion before a national television audience (ABC) and about 8,000 paying customers at Convention Center. The hour is 7 p.m. PST.

Robinson's great skills have diminished substantially since the days when he was called the best in his profession, pound for pound. But the odds do not seem to give him much credit for fighting Fullmer to a draw only last December in Los Angeles.

On the other hand, that fight must have been a more punishing exercise for Robinson, whose aging body took a savage flogging all night, than for the much younger Fullmer, who easily survived Robinson's brilliant but infrequent flurries.

The champion, whose atrocious style is offset by his ferocious strength and durability, will be permitted this time to indulge his bullish manners all the way. Ordinarily, manager Marv Jenson shouts instructions by the numbers from the corner. Saturday night he'll keep quiet.

"Last time," Gene said, "I felt I should be fighting a little harder. But Marv wanted me to be more cautious. This time I felt I would like to go as hard as I dared."

"I thought Gene was comfortably ahead last time," Jenson said. "The way it came out made me feel I should give him a chance to go on his own once. If he had lost because I held him back, I could never have forgiven myself."

Robinson once said Fullmer was a difficult man to fight because nobody—Fullmer included—knew what he was going to do next. The absence of Jenson's restraining direction from the corner is not likely to make Gene any more predictable.

But Ray's manager, George Gainford, says Gene was not boxing by the numbers on May 1, 1957, when Robinson regained the title by knocking out Fullmer in the fifth round at Chicago.

"Right now," Gainford said, "Ray looks to be in about the same shape as last December. The only trouble we've had is developing more punches, or rather working on punches we neglected to use last time. We've been kicking ourselves all over the place because we didn't use them.

"Frankly, I think we're going to flatten the guy this time."

But Jenson said Robinson's best punch might not do that.

"In the last fight," Jenson said, "Robinson caught Gene one or two good shots before the 7th round, and in the 11th he hit him harder than when he knocked him out in Chicago. Gene feels now Robinson can't knock him out.

"Anyway, the impact of that punch in Chicago was two-thirds Robinson and one-third Gene moving in fast toward the punch."

Gainford, noting Fullmer's manager had made the analysis, said: "Robinson has never hit Jenson, so Jenson can say anything he wants to."

This will be the fourth time Robinson and Fullmer have fought for the title. Each beat the other once before they drew last time out.

Fullmer gets a rematch within 90 days if he loses, but there is no provision for a return bout if Robinson loses. Since Ray has been beaten twice by Paul Pender—recognized as champion in New York and Massachusetts—he will be left with no visible claim to a title shot if he loses this one.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Tale of the tape for Saturday's NBA middleweight title fight between champion Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, and Ray Robinson of New York:

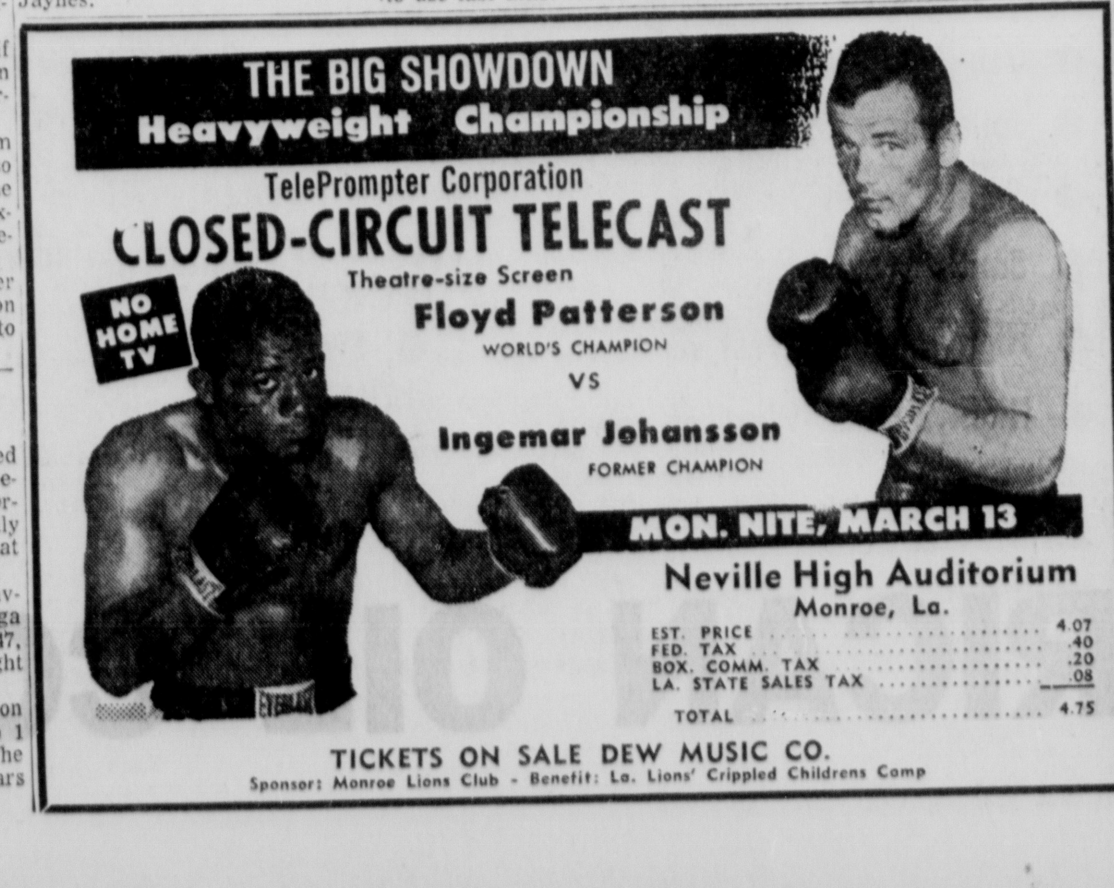
Cincinnati Sure Of At Least Tie For Loop Title

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — Cincinnati won its 16th straight game and clinched a tie for the Missouri Valley Conference title by whipping North Texas State 73-43 Saturday.

The Bearcats thus ended their Valley slate with a 10-2 record. Bradley, also with 2 losses, is the other Valley crown contender.

The Eagles were tied with Cincinnati after 8 minutes but then collapsed before an 18-point Bearcat scoring burst. The visitors played three men taller than 6-foot-8 and dominated the board. They grabbed 63 rebounds to 37 for the North Texans and outshot them from the field 40 per cent to 28 per cent.

Cincinnati's Bob Wiesenhahn and Paul Hogue led scoring with 15 points apiece. Ardie Dixon had 14 for North Texas.



$100,000 JACKPOT

Prove It Claims Santa Anita Pot

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)— Prove It, once an unsung member of the Rex Ellsworth Stable, stepped another giant stride toward fame Saturday with a remarkably easy victory in the $145,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

Bet down to odds of 2-5 by a crowd estimated at 52,500, the 4-year-old California comet rolled in to haul down the $100,000 jackpot and score his ninth win in 10 trips to the post.

Lengths behind was the Jacnot Stable hope, the hopelessly named 4-year-old Oink, with the Kerr Stable's Grey Eagle third.

It was no contest when jockey Willie Shoemaker opened the throttle on Prove It as they neared the turn for home. The winning bay won eased up by 2¼ lengths.

The time for the mile and one quarter golden gallop was an excellent 2 minutes flat. The track record is 1:59 4-5 set in this same spectacle by Round Table in 1958.

Prove It paid 40 cents on the dollar—$2.80 to win, $2.60 to place and $2.20 to show.

Oink, ridden by Milo Valenzuela, returned $7.20 and $3.60 and Grey Eagle, with Larry Gilligan aboard, $2.60 to show.

Actually, everything was just right for Prove It. He carried a wisp of 115 pounds. He had Shoemaker, many times the national riding champion, and a favored No. 4-post position.

It was then merely up to the horse to run, and he did.

It was the second $100,000 victory for Prove It at this meeting. He captured the Santa Anita Maturity in January.

The race went pretty well according to pattern, with one notable exception.

C. W. Smith's highly regarded American Comet, the third betting choice, faded as the pack raced down the back stretch and finished 11th and last.

The lightly regarded First Balcony was fourth while C. V. Whitney's Tompion, the second choice in the fancy of the patrons, came in a disappointing eighth.

Leodolter Leads

CHAMONIX, France (AP)—Guy Perillat of France won the international Grand Prix de Chamonix downhill ski race Saturday, covering the 2-mile course with its drop of 970 yards in 2 minutes, 30.5 seconds. Frenchmen also took the next four places. All members of the favored Austrian team fell during the race and did not finish.

Championship Fight To Be Viewed Here

Local fight fans can beat the no home TV ruling for the March 13 Floyd Patterson — Ingemar Johansson bout and watch the historic rubber match live over closed circuit video in the Neville High auditorium.

The 15-round heavyweight fight will come direct from Convention Hall at Miami Beach through the auspicies of the TelePrompTer Corporation and is being promoted here by the Monroe Lions' Club.

Tickets will sell for $4.75 and can be bought at the Dew Music Co.

Patterson became the first men in history of heavyweight fighting to regain the title when he knocked out Johansson in the fifth round June 20 last year. Johansson won their first meeting with a spectacular third - round kayo, June 26, 1959, for one of the greatest upsets in ring history.

Many ringsiders will be paying $100 for their seats.

"Thunder in February, frost in April" is the old saying. If the amount of thunder we had Sunday through Wednesday is any indication of how heavy the frost will be, we may expect a pretty chilly April. However, the forecast for the next thirty days is "Warm and wet", so perhaps we'll have some of the spring beauties that late cold snaps have spoiled for the last two years.

Bad weather notwithstanding, Little Theatre enthusiasts have had a red letter week. Tryouts for this year's musical, "Damn Yankees', were held Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings in the old Selman Field playhouse, which was being practically dismanteled around the ears of participants.

Several truckloads of equipment were hauled away to the Strauss Memorial Theatre on Lamy Lane, where rehearsals will be held beginning tomorrow evening. "Damn Yankees", scheduled for an April 12 opening, will be the first presentation in the new building.

Monroe may well take pride in this brick and concrete realization of a long - standing dream. The Little Theatre, surrounded by ample parking area, is situated on a beautifully wooded lot on Lamy Lane, just off Louisville Avenue. A front and side entrance opens into the spacious lobby extending the width of the building. Fixed floor - to -ceiling panels of glass look out on the drive and planter - beds, empty now, but hopeful of future shrubbery.

Terrazzo flooring is used in the lobby, where the box office counter will be situated. An oil portrait of Pap Strauss will hang in the lobby. Names of those making major gifts to the building fund are inscribed on concrete plaques facing the entrance.

Doors into the auditorium are of gum, which material is also used to face the stage apron. Seats are red plush chairs, designated by seat and row number for handling of reservations. The stage is breathtakingly ample, to casts and crews accustomed to cramped quarters. Stairs lead up to dressing rooms at each side. There is a Green Room for the cast; work room for scenery crews; and fabulous equipment in the light control booth above the back of the auditorium. Behind the main building is a storeroom, where flats, chairs, and boxes of properties accumulated through the years are already stacked.

Honoring a new neighbor, DORCAS WARREN invited a group of ladies on her block over for coffee, EILEEN BAUR was guest of honor at the party, held on Dorcas' lanai Friday afternoon. Flowering quince and spring bulbs were used in the centerpiece. About twelve neighbors gathered to meet Eileen and nibble on cinnamon sticks, pecan slices, cheese surprises, and coffee.

APOLOGIES ARE IN ORDER. Your reporter was so busy describing the costumes of the Dixieland Band at Mardi Gras last week that she neglected to say who wore them: ESTHER and LOUIS MASUR, JEAN and SAUL MINTZ:, PEGGY and JIM GREENBAUM . . . And then the Masur's daughter, LYNN, though listed in the story, was not identified in the ribbonbearers' picture. We hereby make such amends as possible.

On the most spring - like day of the week, Thursday, JEAN GENTRY invited a group of friends for dessert and coffee at her home. Flowers in the living room were Hermes camellias. A floor - length pink cloth covered the dining table, which was centered with a pair of china cupids holding Professor Sergeant camellias. A ring of ivy and red blossoms encircled the base of the figurines. IMOGENE RATLIFF poured coffee. Those assisting with the service were ELSIE M'KAY, JEAN HUENEFELD, and LINDA LAINE. Ruby Elliott and Barbara Gentry assisted in greeting guests at the door.

Another refreshment table, centered with an arrangement of greenery and grapes, was set up in the den. Those who served in this room were WINNIE NAGLE, MARY ANN WHIPKEY, RUTH ARMSTRONG, and LILLIAN SMITH. About forty ladies who attended were offered a choice of Chocolate angel pie, devil's food cake with cocoanut icing, chocolate cup cakes, cherry tarts, German chocolate cake, lemon tarts, and cherry cake.

An interesting new home is that built by newcomers BETTY and JACK MABRAY on the corner of Loop road and Oak Drive. An early American feeling is carried out in old brick construction with white wrought iron trim. Even the mail box is placed on an old turned post, an antique brought from the family's former home in Newellton.

Flooring in the entrance hall is of white marble, with a green marble border. The paper, white with gold borders, is hung like paneling above the white wainscoting.

To the left is the living room, with the dining room to the right. White wainscoting continues into the latter, with white flocked paper above. Draperies in both rooms are sheer flesh - colored silk, with a trace of pattern in black and white lines. Carpets are a pale, pale beige called "doeskin". The same white marble used in the entry is repeated in the living room fireplace. A large bay window frames a magnificent old magnolia tree in the yard outside.

In the library behind the living room is brick flooring, which is also seen in the hall beginning behind the entrance and extending to the bedroom wing. Gum paneling and a hooked rug before an open fire contribute to the homelike atmosphere of this room.

A sliding door connects the library directly with a short hall to the master bedroom, dressing room and bath. Sauterne is the color of the flocked wallpaper, with sheer draperies printed with pale yellow butterflies . . . On past the master room is the guest room, furnished with white and gold French provincial furniture. Shutters are used to "curtain" the windows . . . At the end of the hall is a room designed for sons PAT and JOHN. It is paneled in ash and decorated in shades of brown and beige. The boys share their bath with the guest room.

Directly across from the master bedroom is a blue suite for daughters MALINDA and MARY AMANDA. White organdy cottage curtains are crisp and gay against blue walls and carpeting. Maple tester beds are covered in a tiny blue provincial print. The girls have a study - dressing room, also blue, and their own white tile bath.

Opening off the hall between library and playroom is the powder room — a real conversation piece. Carpeting is red, and woodwork white, framing panels of red flocked wallpaper set like brocade. A Victorian screen, painted white and decorated with the red paper, divides the room. The basin is set in a white marble counter beneath a wall - sized mirror. The light fixture is a china Cupid on a swing, surrounded by bulbs.

The children's playroom, behind the dining room, is floored with tessaro and paneled with blue spruce. Browns and yellows are used in the furniture, and draperies are Seaspray linen. One wall of cabinets holds books, games, television, and record playing equipment, and a built - in barbecue pit. A divider of old brick and a turned post, mate to the one in the yard, divide playroom and breakfast area.

Kitchen and breakfast room are papered in a provincial green and brown paper, with paneling of blue spruce. Curtains of the same print frame shutters at the windows. Needlepoint covers seats of the ladder - back maple chairs. Betty's collection of antique plates is displayed on the hutch.

Here's a poem, entitled "Love Song", signed Pegasus Buchanan:

I was long in love with summer,
And should weep to see it go;
But now autumn comes a-courting,
And I know
I am much too youthful -hearted
To lament the dear departed,
And my lost love's charms seem drear
And far ago.
I am so in love with autumn
Like a child I run to meet it,
Seeking country lanes to greet it.
This is frivolous, I know,
For when winter comes a-flying,
Star-flakes on my lashes lying,
I will leave the autumn dying
In the snow.
I'll be long in love with winter,
Finding carefree songs to sing
By the snowy slopes and valleys
Where I take my breathless fling.
Then, when springtime comes a-calling,
Oh, but that's another thing.
Everyone attuned to living
Falls in love with spring!

"Thunder in February, frost in April" is the old saying. If the amount of thunder we had Sunday through Wednesday is any indication of how heavy the frost will be, we may expect a pretty chilly April. However, the forecast for the next thirty days is "Warm and wet", so perhaps we'll have some of the spring beauties that late cold snaps have spoiled for the last two years.

Bad weather notwithstanding, Little Theatre enthusiasts have had a red letter week. Tryouts for this year's musical, "Damn Yankees', were held Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings in the old Selman Field playhouse, which was being practically dismanteled around the ears of participants.

Several truckloads of equipment were hauled away to the Strauss Memorial Theatre on Lamy Lane, where rehearsals will be held beginning tomorrow evening. "Damn Yankees", scheduled for an April 12 opening, will be the first presentation in the new building.

Monroe may well take pride in this brick and concrete realization of a long - standing dream. The Little Theatre, surrounded by ample parking area, is situated on a beautifully wooded lot on Lamy Lane, just off Louisville Avenue. A front and side entrance open into the spacious lobby extending the width of the building. Fixed floor - to -ceiling panels of glass look out on the drive and planter - beds, empty now, but hopeful of future shrubbery.

Terrazzo flooring is used in the lobby, where the box office counter will be situated. An oil portrait of Pap Strauss will hang in the lobby. Names of those making major gifts to the building fund are inscribed on concrete plaques facing the entrance.

Doors into the auditorium are of gum, which material is also used to face the stage apron. Seats are red plush chairs, designated by seat and row number for handling of reservations. The stage is breathtakingly ample, to casts and crews accustomed to cramped quarters. Stairs lead up to dressing rooms at each side. There is a Green Room for the cast; work room for scenery crews; and fabulous equipment in the light control booth above the back of the auditorium. Behind the main building is a storeroom, where flats, chairs, and boxes of properties accumulated through the years are already stacked.

Honoring a new neighbor, DORCAS WARREN invited a group of ladies on her block over for coffee, EILEEN BAUR was guest of honor at the party, held on Dorcas' lanai Friday afternoon. Flowering quince and spring bulbs were used in the centerpiece. About twelve neighbors gathered to meet Eileen and nibble on cinnamon sticks, pecan slices, cheese surprises, and coffee.

APOLOGIES ARE IN ORDER. Your reporter was so busy describing the costumes of the Dixieland Band at Mardi Gras last week that she neglected to say who wore them: ESTHER and LOUIS MASUR, JEAN and SAUL MINTZ:, PEGGY and JIM GREENBAUM . . . And then the Masur's daughter, LYNN, though listed in the story, was not identified in the ribbonbearers' picture. We hereby make such amends as possible.

On the most spring - like day of the week, Thursday, JEAN GENTRY invited a group of friends for dessert and coffee at her home. Flowers in the living room were Hermes camellias. A floor - length pink cloth covered the dining table, which was centered with a pair of china cupids holding Professor Sergeant camellias. A ring of ivy and red blossoms encircled the base of the figurines. IMOGENE RATLIFF poured coffee. Those assisting with the service were ELSIE M'KAY, JEAN HUENEFELD, and LINDA LAINE. Ruby Elliott and Barbara Gentry assisted in greeting guests at the door.

Another refreshment table, centered with an arrangement of greenery and grapes, was set up in the den. Those who served in this room were WINNIE NAGLE, MARY ANN WHIPKEY, RUTH ARMSTRONG, and LILLIAN SMITH. About forty ladies who attended were offered a choice of Chocolate angel pie, devil's food cake with cocoanut icing, chocolate cup cakes, cherry tarts, German chocolate cake, lemon tarts, and cherry cake.

An interesting new home is that built by newcomers BETTY and JACK MABRAY on the corner of Loop road and Oak Drive. An early American feeling is carried out in old brick construction with white wrought iron trim. Even the mail box is placed on an old turned post, an antique brought from the family's former home in Newellton.

Flooring in the entrance hall is of white marble, with a green marble border. The paper, white with gold borders, is hung like paneling above the white wainscoting.

To the left is the living room, with the dining room to the right. White wainscoting continues into the latter, with white flocked paper above. Draperies in both rooms are sheer flesh - colored silk, with a trace of pattern in black and white lines. Carpets are a pale, pale beige called "doeskin". The same white marble used in the entry is repeated in the living room fireplace. A large bay window frames a magnificent old magnolia tree in the yard outside.

In the library behind the living room is brick flooring, which is also seen in the hall beginning behind the entrance and extending to the bedroom wing. Gum paneling and a hooked rug before an open fire contribute to the homelike atmosphere of this room.

A sliding door connects the library directly with a short hall to the master bedroom, dressing room and bath. Sauterne is the color of the flocked wallpaper, with sheer draperies printed with pale yellow butterflies . . . On past the master room is the guest room, furnished with white and gold French provincial furniture. Shutters are used to "curtain" the windows . . . At the end of the hall is a room designed for sons PAT and JOHN. It is paneled in ash and decorated in shades of brown and beige. The boys share their bath with the guest room.

Directly across from the master bedroom is a blue suite for daughters MALINDA and MARY AMANDA. White organdy cottage curtains are crisp and gay against blue walls and carpeting. Maple tester beds are covered in a tiny blue provincial print. The girls have a study - dressing room, also blue, and their own white tile bath.

Opening off the hall between library and playroom is the powder room — a real conversation piece. Carpeting is red, and woodwork white, framing panels of red flocked wallpaper set like brocade. A Victorian screen, painted white and decorated with the red paper, divides the room. The basin is set in a white marble counter beneath a wall - sized mirror. The light fixture is a china Cupid on a swing, surrounded by bulbs.

The children's playroom, behind the dining room, is floored with tessaro and paneled with blue spruce. Browns and yellows are used in the furniture, and draperies are Seaspray linen. One wall of cabinets holds books, games, television, and record playing equipment, and a built - in barbecue pit. A divider of old brick and a turned post, mate to the one in the yard, divide playroom and breakfast area.

Kitchen and breakfast room are papered in a provincial green and brown paper, with paneling of blue spruce. Curtains of the same print frame shutters at the windows. Needlepoint covers seats of the ladder - back maple chairs. Betty's collection of antique plates is displayed on the hutch.

Here's a poem, entitled "Love Song", signed Pegasus Buchanan:

I was long in love with summer,
And should weep to see it go;
But now autumn comes a-courting,
And I know
I am much too youthful -hearted
To lament the dear departed,
And my lost love's charms seem drear
And far ago.
I am so in love with autumn
Like a child I run to meet it,
Seeking country lanes to greet it.
This is frivolous, I know,
For when winter comes a-flying,
Star-flakes on my lashes lying,
I will leave the autumn dying
In the snow.
I'll be long in love with winter,
Finding carefree songs to sing
By the snowy slopes and valleys
Where I take my breathless fling.
Then, when springtime comes a-calling,
Oh, but that's another thing.
Everyone attuned to living
Falls in love with spring!

[P]atsy Cook [I]s Bride Of Troy Lynch

In a candlelight ceremony performed at 6:30 p.m. Friday February 10 in Rocky Springs Baptist church at Lisbon, Miss Patsy Elizabeth Cook became the bride of Troy Chester Lynch of West Monroe. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Gussie Cook and the late Anth Cook of Lisbon and Mr. Lynch is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Natha W. Lynch, West Monroe.

Rev. W. E. Spencer, pastor of Mount Vernon Baptist church of West Monroe, performed the double ring ceremony before a large number of guests.

The chancel of the church was beautifully transformed into a bridal bower of greenery and white flowers. Palms formed a background for two floor baskets of white gladioli and numerous lighted white candles.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, Billy Cook of Lisbon, who gave her in marriage. Her gown of antique satin was styled with a sculptured bodice featuring a deep yoke of Chantilly lace, encrusted in seed pearls. Pearl studded lace motifs appliqued the sleeves and her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place by a scalloped coronet of seed pearls. She carried a purple-throated white orchid atop a white Bible.

Mrs. Bobby Cook of Lisbon was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Annie Laura Suggs, Lisbon and Miss Lonnie Evelyn Stone of Spearsville. All were dressed identically in lavendar satin brocade frocks, fashioned with rounded necklines, fitted bodices and softly pleated skirts. Their headpieces, mitts and pumps were in matching shade and they carried heart-shaped bouquets of white chyrsanthemums and satin streamers.

Miss Cindy Cook, niece of the bride, wearing a white organdy frock with matching headband, served as flower girl.

Nolyeon Lynch of West Monroe, attended his brother as best man and groomsmen were Jessie Ray Price and Glen Price, who also lighted the candles. James Balance of Arcadia and Herbie Whitman of Homer, served as ushers.

Preceding the exchange of vows Mrs. William D. McDonald of Lisbon, presented a program of nuptial music at the organ and accompanied Mrs. Grady Saulters as she sang "I Love You Truly," and "Always."

Mrs. Cook chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of embroidered silk with matching accessories and a cymbidium orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Lynch wore a pink faille dress with gray accessories and a cymbidium orchid corsage.

A reception in the social room of the church followed the ceremony. The bride's table, covered in lavender satin with net overskirt held a center arrangement of white chrysanthemums, carnations and greenery. A tiered wedding cake, decorated in lavendar roses and lily of the valley sprays, was placed at one end opposite the punch bowl. Assisting with reception hospitalities were Mrs. Murry Greer of Athens; Mrs. James T. Owens and Miss Sandra Suggs, both of Homer and Miss Barbara Suggs of Lisbon. Mrs. Nolyeon Lynch presided at the guest book.

When the couple left on a wedding trip the bride was wearing a blue wool ensemble with black accessories. Upon their return they will be at home in West Monroe. A graduate of Lisbon High school, the bride attended Northeast Louisiana State college. Mr. Lynch is a graduate of West Monroe High school.

Guests from West Monroe attending the wedding in addition to members of the bridal party were Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lynch, grandparents of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Jorden, Fay and Ray; Mrs. Lena Price, Miss Dovie Murphy, Miss Sue Caples, and Mrs. W. E. Spencer.

Crumb Topping

Broiled tomatoes are delicious when they have a topping of bread crumbs mixed with butter; they're extra-delicious when you add a little grated cheddar, Parmesan or Romano cheese to the crumb combination.

SEW SIMPLE

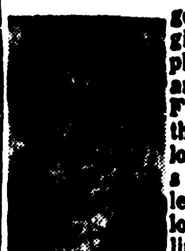
By Eunice Farmer

"Dear Eunice,

"How can I alter a cotton bowling skirt so the gabardine skirt tail will 'stay in' and look as neat as possible during bowling?"

Mrs. M.J.P.

Dear Mrs. M.J.P.:



The best suggestions I can give you will apply to the shirt and not the skirt. First, be sure the shirt tail is long enough. It should be at least 5 inches below the waistline. The following instructions will tell you how to apply a casing to the shirt for a tie.

1. Tie a string very tightly around your waistline, over the blouse.

2. Raise your arms up and down, also stretch them forward as you would when you are bowling. This will release the extra fabric you will need for comfortable ease and action.

3. Mark just below the string, with pins or white marking chalk, this will be your waistline guide.

4. After you have removed the blouse, baste over the waistline marks so they will appear on the wrong side.

5. Machine stitch a ½" strip of cotton bias - binding to the blouse, top edge of binding will just touch the basting guide line. The bias strip should begin at the outer edge of the blouse on the right front, and stop about 1½" from the outer edge of the Left Front.

This bias - strip has now formed a casing. You can thread a small cord or string through the casing and tie it in front. This actually will work beautifully with blouses of all types that have a tendency to slip out.

HALF SIZE DEFINED

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"What is meant by a half-size pattern?"

Mrs. C.S.

A half - size pattern is designed for the woman with a more mature figure. They are shorter waisted, and have more allowance for ease. These patterns are designed with the most becoming lines possible to make a woman look slender.

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"One of the things I like most about your column is that you help beginners like me as well as women who have done a lot of sewing. I have trouble just pinning the parts of the dress together before I sew it on the sewing machine. What is the best way to make the pieces match each other and the ends to come out even?"

Mrs. S.J.K.

LAP BOARD

Dear Mrs. S.J.K.:

One of the most important steps to remember in making a garment is to use a FLAT surface when pinning or assembling any parts of your garment. Often a table isn't convenient, so we find ourselves using our lap or some cramped space. A perfect solution to this is the use of a lap board. To me it is indispensable because it can be kept close to your sewing machine and when you need a flat surface, you merely push yourself back from the machine and place this board on your lap. Since this item is not available on the commerical market, I am giving you complete instructions for one.

The lap board should be cut out of ⅛" fiber board, any other type material would be too heavy. If you make a paper pattern from the sketch given below, you may be able to get a lumber company to cut it out for you — or maybe you have a handy husband.

For added convenience, cover the board on one side with felt. This will keep the fabric from slipping. The felt should be cut about ¾" larger than the board. It can be glued on with household glue. Be sure to notch out the excess felt on all OUTER CURVES and to slip to the edge of the board on all INNER CURVES. Now glue these outer edges of the felt to the other side of the board. Please let me know how you like it.

Founders' Day was observed by Sherrouse Parent - Teacher Association Thursday evening, February 16, with a review of the history of P.-T. A. in Louisiana by Miss Eloise Cann.

"Through the Years" was the topic chosen by Miss Cann, legislative chairman of the Monroe City Council of the Parent-Teacher Association and principal of Plum Street School. She cited achievements of the Louisiana P.-T. A. through legislation concerned with promoting the welfare of children.

Group singing of patriotic songs led by R. N. Ballenger, expressed theme of the preliminary session, "We Honor Our Country." A flag ceremony was conducted by three local Boy Scouts, Newby McNeil, David Stanhope and Warren Klam.

Elected to the nominating committee during the business session conducted by Mrs. W. L. Allen, president, were Mrs. Lee Estes, Mrs. E. H. Allen and Mrs. E. W. Miller.

Girl Scout News

Brownie Scouts of Troop 10, Mrs. Walter Bell, leader, are cherishing a picture of the troop and a record of one of their songs, both souvenirs of their visit to the sheriff's office at the Ouachita Parish courthouse. Learning about citizenship first hand was a happy experience, and fingerprinting fascinated the girls, the leaders say. All were impressed by the way officials took time to show them around and to explain some of the workings of government.

Ten Senior Scouts of Troop 1 attended a Senior Conference in New Orleans this week end at the invitation of the Southeast Louisiana Council. They are Elaine Butler, Carol Culpepper, Connie Davis, Jane Edwards, Milann Gannaway, Diane Halley, Robbie Hicks, Becky Middleton, Becky Parkerson, Dean Parrish, accompanied by Mrs. N. L. Huckabee and Miss Annie Klie. En route home the group will stop in Baton Rouge for a visit to the capitol.

Of interest, to Senior Scouts, older Intermediates and their parents is the meeting Tuesday evening at the Ouachita Parish Public Library,. Louis Locke Room, at which time the film on the '59 Senior Roundup will be shown and information given on qualifications and plans for the '62 Roundup. Mrs. Charles Overton, in charge of Roundup plans for our council, explains that is very important for parents of older Scouts to attend this meeting. Any interested girl or adult is invited, according to Mrs. Overton.

Troop 35, gave a Thinking Day program, to which they invited the three Brownie Scout troops at Plum Street School. Thinking Day, February 22, is a day in the Girl Scout calendar set aside for learning more about our sister Scouts around the world. The day was chosen because it is the birthday of Lord and Lady Baden-Powell, founders of Boy Scouting and Girl Guiding in England. Lady Baden - Powell is still living. Called the World Chief Guide, she devotes her time to the work of the World Association.

The program opened with a flag ceremony and concluded with the showing of a film "Wonderful World." Brownie troops invited were Troop 103, Mrs. Quitman Hudnall, leader; Troop 45, Mrs. H. M. Nolan, leader; Troop 106, Mrs. W. A. Agin and Mrs. J. C. Coon. Mrs. Harold Fike is leader of Troop 35.

Two troops whose members have visited back and forth and enjoyed making new friends are Troop 23, Highland School and Troop 37, Mitchell School. Mrs. B. B. McWhorter and Mrs. Morris Chambless are leaders of the troops, which are now working together on a choral reading to present on their neighborhood birthday program at Crosley School on Sunday, March 12.

Some sort of record was set when every fly-up troop was represented by at least one adult at the training session held last week. "Flying up" from Brownie to Intermediate Scouting is a milestone the fourth graders are planning for by buying the new handbooks and working on Tenderfoot requirements.

Miss Gregory Guest Speaker For Lenwil PTA

Miss Gertrude Gregory was guest speaker of Lenwil Parent-Teacher Association for its founders day program on February 16 in the school cafeteria. Mrs. Dan Hemphill, who had charge of the program arrangements, presented a corsage of white chrysanthemums to Miss Gregory.

In her discussion Miss Gregory presented statistics and conditions of the first national P-TA that became long - time objectives of that organization. Along with the first founding people were mentioned prominent publishers and politicians, stressing the value of public awareness of youth.

In conclusion she pointed out how parents and teachers under present world duress can train children for tomorrow's world. Rev. A. T. Mitchell gave the benediction.

Room count was won by classes of Mrs. Jewel Jones and Mrs. Frances Rader. It was announced that Mrs. J. T. Waldrip will direct the summer round - up program for pre - school children.

California Fashions Offer Columnar Silhouette, New Lines For Spring

AP Newsfeatures

The favored silhouette is columnar; the drape is oblique.

This may sound like the leaning tower of Pisa, but there's nothing antique about the 1961 resort and spring California fashions being shown in Los Angeles.

They're as modern and forward looking as the tomorrow they're designed for.

The columnar silhouette is an example. It pervades swimwear, sportswear, dresses and suits — but there are enough variations, especially in softened lines, to please practically everybody. The overblouse is loose, torso line longer.

The column look even injects a controversy: a skirt with width just above or at the knee that tightens at the base to give a slightly hobbled effect. It's called the "parentheses skirt line."

As for the oblique slant, the current trend is toward the asymetrical line and bias fabric cut. This is executed in many ways: pulling fabric off center, placing founces at one side of a dress, side - draping, off center closing, baring a shoulder to reveal the diagonal slant of another neckline.

Other fashion emphases:

The T - square top, usually sleeveless, with squared neckline.

Necklines are cowled, cuffed or square.

Skirts may be pleated or gored, and even the slim sheaths have a new ease.

Fabrics are silks that look even silkier, cottons that look like silk, lightweight wools and manmade fiber blends. Prints are brilliant florals, stripes run rampant and, solids are rich pastels or clear colors that depart sharply from the fall smoky tones.

Evening clothes are lavish, feminine and varied.

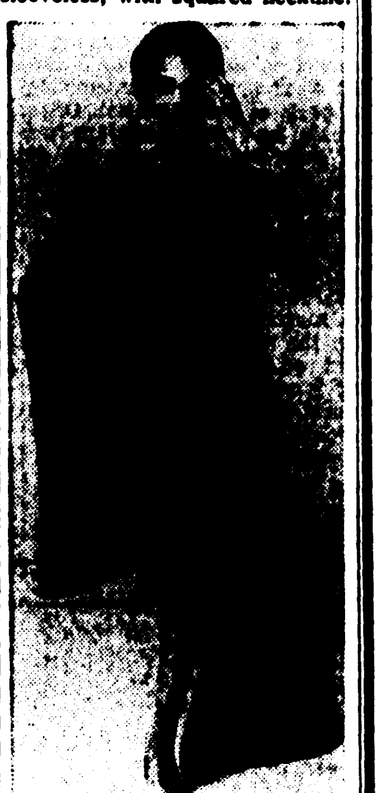
In sportswear, fabric and cut are of predominant importance. Divided skirts are becoming increasingly popular, but sleek, fitted pants are still top favorites.

Shorts often have loose, outer tops worn with them.

At home fashions in patio skirts or hostess culottes teach a new elegance for formal occasions.

Travel trends have influenced costumes that peel off layer by layer, to provide whole wardrobes. Packability and easy care are not overlooked.

In swimsuits California won't give an inch. And this year the movement is toward up-in-front, down - in - back suits. Many, many are the two - piece numbers — bikini brief or providing somewhat more generous coverage.



DANCEABLE — Silk linen sheath by Mr. Blackwell flaunts a flamenco flourish in its large bustline bow, draped panels to be worn as stole or floating panels.

TAKE OFF — Convertible travel costume in dacron and cotton by Designer Jim Church features sleeveless striped overblouse which peels off to reveal a sheath dress.

Hairdresser Says Balloon Coif Is Gone

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Tab Hunter-type of young man breezed up to my desk Sunday to proclaim that:

—He is perhaps the fastest-working hairdresser in the business.

—His customers include the top drawer names in the society and movie set.

—He has a "fantastic eye" for the coiffure which best suits a woman.

—He is only 22 years old, but already one of the top 10 hair stylists in the world.

—And, give him "five more years" and he will be THE number one stylist.

George Masters was his name. His address, Los Angeles. Masters, a slim young man with blue eyes, straight blonde hair and an all-American boy look, made New York a stopover after Washington, where he went to do coiffures for some of his customers invited to the inaugural festivities.

OTHERS TOOK ADVANTAGE

Master said that actually only one client hired him to fly to Washington — The others just took advantage of his presence. This client, a one - time movie queen, paid him $1,000 plus expenses for his five days in the capital, he said.

"I don't get anything less than $100 if I go to a star's home to do her hair," said Masters.

The hairdresser is director of the Saks Beverly Hills Beauty Salon, with a staff of some 35 assisting him.

'I don't do any of the messy work like shampooing," he said. "All I do is style and comb. I can give a superb haircut in one and one-half minutes."

Masters, a native of Los Angeles, trained with the famous Antoine, the French hairdresser; worked for Claude, the New Yorker whose customers include the Duchess of Windsor, and directed the Elizabeth Arden Salon in New York before he returned three years ago to his home town.

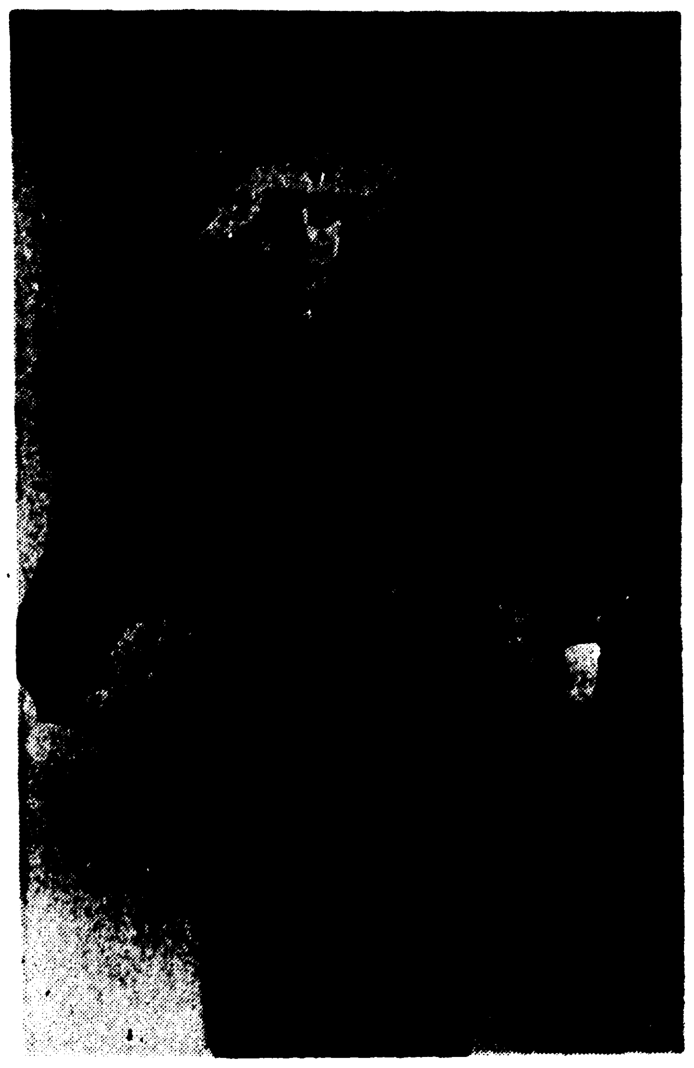
JOB IS EASY

"I don't like hairdressing," he said with a candor rare in any field. "Matter of fact, I can't stand it. But I do it so well. I would prefer to be out riding, swimming or skiing. But this job is so much easier than learning how to do something else."

I asked him what he thought we women generally would be wearing in the way of hairdos in the months ahead.

"The balloon coiffure is gone," he said. "I see the ears exposed, hair fitted at the nape of the neck, cap-like to create a small head look; some lift on top. No Part, because a part in the hair makes a woman look dowdy and aged.

"Within a year, every woman will be using some sort of coloring. There won't be a virgin head left in the country."



FASHIONABLE ADDENDA to anyone's wardrobe around the year is the coat that's a dress that's a coat. In fabulous double-knit worsted, this double-breasted coat and or dress is brass buttoned and sashed for continental dash, while remaining soft, feminine and chic.

FELTMAN BROS. OFFERS The Palace THEIR BEST WISHES ON THEIR 58th ANNIVERSARY

Spring Sports, Leisure Wear Adopts Kookie Look

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — What's "kooking" in fashion these days? Why the "kookie" look to clothes of course.

The kookie look is a definite one in sports and leisure wear, and best described as one fashion observer put it, as "accepted, but off-beat."

Its major characteristics are the no waist silhouette, very much a reminder of the chemise of several seasons ago; unconventional color combinations such as mauve and apple green or orange and pink, the latter a combination once worn by Mrs. John F. Kennedy before she became first lady; for the beach, dresses chopped off above the knees; and all hours of the day, stretch pants, stretch tops, stretch sheaths, and stretch swim suits.

BEMOANS USE OF WORD

Terry Mayer, fashion director of the Amos Parrish and Co. buying office, bemoaned the use of the word "kookie" to describe the non-conventional in sportswear.

"Actually," she said, "it's a silhouette which looks wonderful on any boyish figure and will take pounds off a heavier woman like Matrecal. The look will outlast the term, which started with the beatniks in San Francisco and New York's Greenwich Village.

Women's Wear Daily, the fashion trade publication, called "kookie" the "beatnik moved uptown, all scrubbed up, and refined very, very individual."

"Kookie clothes like the people who wear them are non-conformists," said the publication. "They take the relaxed route, via figure-skimming shapes, are casual, and never messy."

PUBLISHES GUIDE

Women's Wear published a guide to things besides clothes which are kookie and non-kookie with a foreword stating that "there is absolutely nothing wrong with being a non-kook. Non-kooks make up a majority of the pillars of the community, the PTA, bankers, den mothers, business executives. . .

"Kooks are found among art directors, models, photographers, and movie love goddesses."

The publication's list of things kookie included beach dresses, cool jazz, rat pack, big beads, cooking lessons, stretch pants, whist, any place named Joe's, Bill's, or Sammy's, Ingmar Bergman (the Swedish director), Dilly Beans, old fur coats, and Harper's Bazaar.

Its non-kookie list included Bermuda shorts, Dixieland, dyed-to-match, singing lessons, canasta, new fur coats, any place named Fonda del Sol, Four Seasons or the Hemisphere Club, Ingrid Bergman, checkers, and Vogue.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. G. S. Tarleton Sr., who gave the thought for the day. Mrs. F. D. Luton gave the nutrition leaders report and Mrs. Stockwell gave the family life report in absence of Mrs. J. T. Bennett. Mrs. Tarleton announced a nutrition leaders training course to be held March 30 and the council meeting on March 24.

Mrs. Abercrombie was welcomed as a visitor and invited to join the club. A social hour followed the business meeting and the club adjourned to meet in March at the home of Mrs. Emmitt Lee in Bosco with Mrs. Hamp Faust and Mrs. Teddy Lee, cohostesses.

Leather Belts, Gloves Brighten Spring Costumes

Belts are in for a fashion boost as Spring's new silk and organza coat-dresses call for the finishing touches of a wide soft leather sash belt.

Bright leather string belts, in one color hue or in a combination of colors are used to pick up a print motif. These handsome belts are weighted with coins, or beads for daytime, and often are jewelled with colored stones or brilliants for evening. For more casual wear, the "dog leash" type of string belts are most popular.

The long and short of gloves is just that this Spring, as new leather gloves appear in shorty versions, mid - length and long-pull-ons. The Musketaire style — the 12 - 16 button length glove — is returning to new popularity.

Pupils Review Shady Grove PTA History

Founders' Day was celebrated by Shady Grove Parent - Teacher Association Thursday night, February 16 in the school cafeteria, with a special program.

During the business session conducted by Mrs. Dan Ryals, president, plans were made for a spaghetti supper to be held March 17.

Mrs. Edna Crotwell, Founders' Day chairman, reviewed the history of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers and stressed the meaning of founders' day. Mrs. Crotwell pointed out the special significance of the current year to Shady Grove School, as the first class enrolled in the school since its opening in 1955 will graduate in May. She presented seven members of the graduating class, Sharon Anderson, Pamela Fontana, Linda Roberts, Gloria Campbell, Linda Masters, Wanda McGowen and Martha Helm, who recounted the achievements of the P.-T. A. during the six years since its organization.

Past presidents present who received special recognition were Mrs. Lea Facundus Jr., Mrs. R. L. Moody, Mrs. Troy Little, and Mrs. Dan Ryals, who is serving a second term. Mrs. J. H. Gallaspy, who served for the year 1958-59, has moved to another state.

Refreshments were served by the hospitality committee at conclusion of the program. Room count was won by Miss Jeannette Womack's sixth grade.

Spring Sports, Leisure Wear Adopts Kookie Look

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — What's "kooking" in fashion these days? Why the "kookie" look to clothes of course.

The kookie look is a definite one in sports and leisure wear, and best described as one fashion observer put it, as "accepted, but off-beat."

Its major characteristics are the no waist silhouette, very much a reminder of the chemise of several seasons ago; unconventional color combinations such as mauve and apple green or orange and pink, the latter a combination once worn by Mrs. John F. Kennedy before she became first lady; for the beach, dresses chopped off above the knees; and all hours of the day, stretch pants, stretch tops, stretch sheaths, and stretch swim suits.

BEMOANS USE OF WORD

Terry Mayer, fashion director of the Amos Parrish and Co. buying office, bemoaned the use of the word "kookie" to describe the non-conventional in sportswear.

"Actually," she said, "it's a silhouette which looks wonderful on any boyish figure and will take pounds off a heavier woman like Matrecal. The look will outlast the term, which started with the beatniks in San Francisco and New York's Greenwich Village.

Women's Wear Daily, the fashion trade publication, called "kookie" the "beatnik moved uptown, all scrubbed up, and refined very, very individual."

"Kookie clothes like the people who wear them are non-conformists," said the publication. "They take the relaxed route, via figure-skimming shapes, are casual, and never messy."

PUBLISHES GUIDE

Women's Wear published a guide to things besides clothes which are kookie and non-kookie with a foreword stating that "there is absolutely nothing wrong with being a non-kook. Non-kooks make up a majority of the pillars of the community, the PTA, bankers, den mothers, business executives. . .

"Kooks are found among art directors, models, photographers, and movie love goddesses."

The publication's list of things kookie included beach dresses, cool jazz, rat pack, big beads, cooking lessons, stretch pants, whist, any place named Joe's, Bill's, or Sammy's, Ingmar Bergman (the Swedish director), Dilly Beans, old fur coats, and Harper's Bazaar.

Its non-kookie list included Bermuda shorts, Dixieland, dyed-to-match, singing lessons, canasta, new fur coats, any place named Fonda del Sol, Four Seasons or the Hemisphere Club, Ingrid Bergman, checkers, and Vogue.

Logtown PTA To Purchase Library Books

Founders' Day was observed by Logtown Parent - Teacher Association when it met Thursday in the school cafeteria, with Mrs. Doug Moore presiding.

A history of Logtown school was given by Mrs. Marvin Shipp, following which a picture of the school was presented the principal, Miss Marie Filhoil.

It was voted to purchase books for the new school library with proceeds from the spaghetti supper.

First and fifth grades tied for room count. At conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served by fifth grade room mothers, Mrs. Talmadge Stout and Mrs. Ray Soignier. Centerpiece for the refreshment table was an arrangement of red and white flowers, flanked by miniature dolls, whose formal skirts were adorned with red hearts.

New Member Invited Into Logtown HD Club

February meeting of Logtown Home Demonstration club was held in the home of Mrs. W. F. Ramsey in Buckhorn Bend with Mrs. C. C. Scharff, co-hostess.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. G. S. Tarleton Sr., who gave the thought for the day. Mrs. F. D. Luton gave the nutrition leaders report and Mrs. Stockwell gave the family life report in absence of Mrs. J. T. Bennett. Mrs. Tarleton announced a nutrition leaders training course to be held March 30 and the council meeting on March 24.

Mrs. Abercrombie was welcomed as a visitor and invited to join the club. A social hour followed the business meeting and the club adjourned to meet in March at the home of Mrs. Emmitt Lee in Bosco with Mrs. Hamp Faust and Mrs. Teddy Lee, co-hostesses.

Hairdresser Says Balloon Coif Is Gone

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Tab Hunter-type of young man breezed up to my desk Sunday to proclaim that:

—He is perhaps the fastest-working hairdresser in the business.

—His customers include the top drawer names in the society and movie set.

—He has a "fantastic eye" for the coiffure which best suits a woman.

—He is only 22 years old, but already one of the top 10 hair stylists in the world.

—And, give him "five more years" and he will be THE number one stylist.

George Masters was his name. His address, Los Angeles. Masters, a slim young man with blue eyes, straight blonde hair and an all-American boy look, made New York a stopover after Washington, where he went to do coiffures for some of his customers invited to the inaugural festivities.

OTHERS TOOK ADVANTAGE

Master said that actually only one client hired him to fly to Washington — The others just took advantage of his presence. This client, a one - time movie queen, paid him $1,000 plus expenses for his five days in the capital, he said.

"I don't get anything less than $100 if I go to a star's home to do her hair," said Masters.

The hairdresser is director of the Saks Beverly Hills Beauty Salon, with a staff of some 35 assisting him.

'I don't do any of the messy work like shampooing," he said. "All I do is style and comb. I can give a superb haircut in one and one-half minutes."

Masters, a native of Los Angeles, trained with the famous Antoine, the French hairdresser; worked for Claude, the New Yorker whose customers include the Duchess of Windsor, and directed the Elizabeth Arden Salon in New York before he returned three years ago to his home town.

JOB IS EASY

"I don't like hairdressing," he said with a candor rare in any field. "Matter of fact, I can't stand it. But I do it so well. I would prefer to be out riding, swimming or skiing. But this job is so much easier than learning how to do something else."

I asked him what he thought we women generally would be wearing in the way of hairdos in the months ahead.

"The balloon coiffure is gone," he said. "I see the ears exposed, hair fitted at the nape of the neck, cap-like to create a small head look; some lift on top. No Part, because a part in the hair makes a woman look dowdy and aged.

"Within a year, every woman will be using some sort of coloring. There won't be a virgin head left in the country."

FASHIONABLE ADDENDA to anyone's wardrobe around the year is the coat that's a dress that's a coat. In fabulous double-knit worsted, this double-breasted coat and or dress is brass buttoned and sashed for continental dash, while remaining soft, feminine and chic.

Finger-Wave Due Revival In Hair Styles

By SOLANGE BERTRAND

Hair styles change more slowly than fashions, but in their own leisurely way they do finally catch up. After five years of the waistless silhouettes, which are largely based on the clothes of the Twenties, we have finally come to the hairdos of the Twenties. This year will see the short, smooth cut with the cheek spit curls.

But fashion trends indicate that the cycle will move on to the look of the Thirties. Bias cuts and asymmetrical lines are a minor but solid spring trend, and when everyone suddenly gets really sick of all the vertical lines, the bias look will undoubtedly come in with a rush, perhaps by next fall.

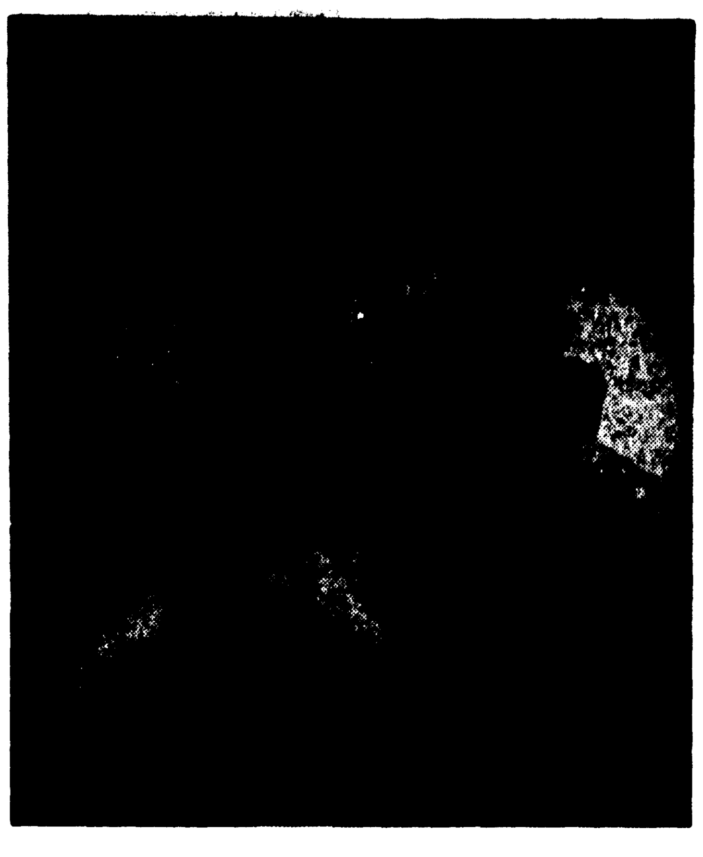
And that makes me wonder if the finger wave will be next? All during the Thirties the finger wave rippled about women's heads. Looking at the fashion pictures in "Life's" twenty-fifth anniversary edition, I couln't help noticing that the finger-waved heads no longer seemed old - fashioned.

Only last year they would have seemed impossible. For at least five years we've been living in an era of bubbly hair. The Italian cut, the bouffant, the gamine, the beehive — all were bursting bombshells of hair.

Now with the sleek, Twenties cap, the bubble era has collapsed. It seems only a matter of time until a revival of the finger wave.

For the benefit of those who came in after that time, the finger wave was the hairdressers' first step away from the marcel wave. The marcel was done with a hot curling iron, and was a deep, but narrow wave with an understandably rigid look.

With the advent of wave set lotions, operators could put waves in with their fingers, varying the depth and width. By contrast to the marcel, they were the essence of softness and naturalness.



MISS SANDRA KAY PETERS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Peters, has for the second consecutive year been elected "Outstanding Member" of Delta Kappa Pi high school social sorority. Also serving her second term as president of the sorority, Miss Peters was chosen for the honor on the basis of her record as a sorority member, and her leadership in charity and social work. Presentation of the trophy was made by Miss Sharon Crew at an annual sorority dance Februry 17 t the Paragon club.

Coterie Has Reelection Of Officers

Officers of the Musical Cote[rie] were reelected for the ensui[ng] year at the annual business mee[t]ing held February 17 in the hom[e] of Mrs. B. D. Allbritton.

The officers, who were reelected by acclamation include Mrs. James G. Caldwell, president; Miss Gertrude Sandrock, vice-president; Mrs. LeRoy Anspach, secretary; Mrs. Elmer Marshall, treasurer; Miss Jonnie Bankhead, historian and Mrs. Kedwick Martin, reporter.

Program topic, "American Music," was discussed by Mrs. Felix Willey, who featured the life and work of Charles Ives, whose music was termed far more radical than composers who lived 50 years later. Selections which illustrated the day's topic included "Rural Elegy," by Smit, played by Mrs. Grayson Guthrie, pianist; "Song," by Sammond, sung by Mrs. Jerry Thomas; "Four Anniversaries," by Leonard Bernstein, played by Mrs. James G. Caldwell, pianist; "Duo Concertato," by Norman Dello Joio, played by Mrs. Eloise Stanhope, pianist and Mrs. Kedwick Martin, cellist.

Refreshments were served to the members and guests who included Mrs. Bruce Seeber, a former member; Mrs. Rodney Pitts, former Junior Coterie member and Ronnie Brothers, pianist, who accompanied Mrs. Jerry Thomas, and Mrs. F. V. Allison, Mrs. LeRoy Anspach, Miss Jonnie Bankhead, Miss Emy-Lou Biedenharn, Mrs. James G. Caldwell, Mrs. Grayson Guthrie Jr., Mrs. W. M. Harper, Mrs. Edward Hayward Jr., Mrs. Elmer Marshall, Mrs. Kedwick Martin, Mrs. Hugh Gibson McDonald, Mrs. James Murphy, Mrs. Phanor Perot, Mrs. Eloise Stanhope, Mrs. Briscoe Trousdale Jr. and Mrs. Felix Willey.

The next meeting will be on March 3 at 3:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Allison.

Trends In New Furniture Are Softer, More Subdued

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Modern is a little softer in its lines... elegance is more subdued.

These are trends in new furniture shown at the Los Angeles Home Furnishings Mart during the annual January Winter Market Week.

The trend to elegance in furniture shown at the Los Angeles ago, a mart spokesman says, and got out of hand; too lush. Now the swing is back. The elegance is there but in a subdued manner.

Modern furniture has new designs and finishes, with more graceful and flowing curves. There is a touch of Italian classic. California contemporary still goes strong for Danish and Swedish.

Perhaps a hint of the future is seen in designer Shelby Willis' "freeway" coffee table. This large rectangular coffee table derives its design from a freeway bridge. It's curves are inspired by freeway arches. There is an inlaid top with eight pieces of matched-grain travertine meeting at the center.

FABRICS TOUGHER

Colonial pieces are less heavy but the fabrics are richer, with wider color ranges. Reclining chairs are slimmer with a broader selection of coverings.

Fabrics are more durable. Some fabrics have a lifetime no-fade guarantee. And a couple of new vinyls have a heat-sealed tinted vinyl overlay on printed vinyl to give extra scuff resistance.

More careful designing and detailing is noticed in patio furniture. There is an increasing use of plastic cord, this year a wider type. One line of outdoor pieces combines steel tubing and redwood in contemporary design.

DOUBLE LIFE

Among the outdoor offerings is a gin rummy piece — a table flanked by two attached chairs.

Designer John Keal presents in American black walnut a dining-game grouping. The square table, extending to 78 inches, has a plastic surface. It serves as a combination dining, card and game table.

Signs Of Changing Tines

By VIVIAN BROWN
(AP) Newsfeatures Writer

If you're a buffet buff, you'll be happy to know that the fork is no longer what it was.

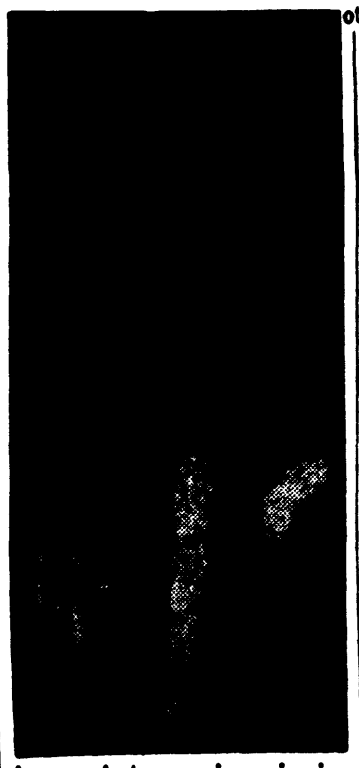
Tired of balancing plate, knife, fork, spoon and cup on your knee? Then you'll be interested in the modern fork that you can do about anything with except eat soup.

Samuel Ayres, Massachusetts industrial designer and one of 22 award winners in a recent silver flatware design competition, explains why the modern fork is so versatile:

"Fork tines are shorter, the the bowl is more pronounced and the edges of the fork ars slightly sharper, not to the point of being knife edge, but useful in cutting some meats."

This change has been brought about, Ayres believes, because of the popularity of outdoor eating and buffet dining.

"It just wouldn't be possible to wield a knife as well as handle a plate, fork, napkin and beverage on one' laps as some hostesess expect. The result is that foods that are easily cut with the fork are more often served. Steak knives are used with heavy cuts of meat," he says.



Ayres Art, a prize-winning design.

Ayres' design was shown at the "International Design Competition" exhibition at the Museum of Contemporary Crafts, along with the other award winners and some centuries - old eating utensils. It has high ornamentation, a stylized snow flake, in a process known as damaskeen.

"It is not new," he says. "I traced the technique back many centuries. But the shaft and shape of the piece are contemporary."

Ayres does not like silver that has a stark look.

"It is all right for stainless steel, because we do not use it for formal service or special occasions. But why take silver, a precious metal, and give it that stark appearance?" he asks, "I'd like to see more inlays and other materials used with silver in newer designs."

The silver flatware service has shrunk considerably, he points out.

"We used to have dozens of pieces available in most silver patterns — oyster forks, luncheon knives and forks, dinner knives and forks, dessert spoons, cream soup spoons, bouillion spoons. Few people want or need these pieces any more," he says.

Some jewelers limit their place settings to five pieces — knife, fork, tea spoon, dessert spoon, salad fork. The butter knife is now skipped in many place settings, he says, and if more silver is bought it is usually extra forks.

"But silver should be used, not only to keep it from tarnishing, but to develop a patina. People pay fortunes for old Georgian silver because it has developed a beautiful patina from use. We can get that patina by using our own silver more often."

He sees a return to ornamentation on silver because "we've gone the full cycle on functional silver. It all looks alike. Decoration is one cultural expression of fine things, and we were weaned away from it in silver when machine age ornamentation took over. The trouble is, we tossed out some excellent ornamentation along with the vulgar designs. We threw out the baby with the bath water."

St. John, home management leader, during which various types of cooking ware were shown along with the best methods for cleaning each.

Following a recreation period, luncheon was served to the members and two guests, Mrs. W. M. Cooper and Mrs. J. F. Arnold. This year will see the short, smooth cut with the cheek spit curls.

But fashion trends indicate that the cycle will move on to the look of the Thirties. Bias cuts and asymmetrical lines are a minor but solid spring trend, and when everyone suddenly gets really sick of all the vertical lines, the bias look will undoubtedly come in with a rush, perhaps by next fall.

And that makes me wonder if the finger wave will be next? All during the Thirties the finger wave rippled about women's heads. Looking at the fashion pictures in "Life's" twenty-fifth anniversary edition, I couldn't help noticing that the finger-waved heads no longer seemed old - fashioned.

Only last year they would have seemed impossible. For at least five years we've been living in an era of bubbly hair. The Italian cut, the bouffant, the gamine, the beehive — all were bursting bombshells of hair.

Now with the sleek, Twenties cap, the bubble era has collapsed. It seems only a matter of time until a revival of the finger wave.

For the benefit of those who came in after that time, the finger wave was the hairdressers' first step away from the marcel wave. The marcel was done with a hot curling iron, and was a deep, but narrow wave with an understandably rigid look.

With the advent of wave set lotions, operators could put waves in with their fingers, varying the depth and width. By contrast to the marcel, they were the essence of softness and naturalness.

Trends In New Furniture Are Softer, More Subdued

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Modern is a little softer in its lines... elegance is more subdued.

These are trends in new furniure shown at tne Los Angeles Home Furnishings Mart during the annual January Winter Market Week.

The trend to elegance in furniture shown at the Los Angeles ago, a mart spokesman says, and got out of hand; too lush. Now the swing is back. The elegance is there but in a subdued manner.

Modern furniture has new designs and finishes, with more graceful and flowing curves. There is a touch of Italian classic. California contemporary still goes strong for Danish and Swedish.

Perhaps a hint of the future is seen in designer Shelby Willis' "freeway" coffee table. This large rectangular coffee table derives its design from a freeway bridge. It's curves are inspired by freeway arches. There is an inlaid top with eight pieces of matched-grain travertine meeting at the center.

FABRICS TOUGHER

Colonial pieces are less heavy but the fabrics are richer, with wider color ranges. Reclining chairs are slimmer with a broader selection of coverings.

Fabrics are more durable. Some fabrics have a lifetime no-fade guarantee. And a couple of new vinyls have a heat-sealed tinted vinyl overlay on printed vinyl to give extra scuff resistance.

More careful designing and detailing is noticed in patio furniture. There is an increasing use of plastic cord, this year a wider type. One line of outdoor pieces combines steel tubing and redwood in contemporary design.

DOUBLE LIFE

Among the outdoor offerings is a gin rummy piece — a table flanked by two attached chairs.

Designer John Keal presents in American black walnut a dining-game grouping. The square table, extending to 78 inches, has a plastic surface. It serves as a combination dining, card and game table.

Refreshments were served at close of the meeting by the hostess to Mrs. Robert Ingram, Mrs. Harry Maxey, Mrs. Leon Caldwell, Mrs. Reginald Futch, Mrs. Aubrey Gaston, Mrs. Joe Rodgers, Mrs. James Terral, Mrs. Don Wills, Mrs. Frank Wimberly, Mrs. Bennie Thigpen.

Signs Of Changing Tines

By VIVIAN BROWN
(AP) Newsfeatures Writer

If you're a buffet buff, you'll be happy to know that the fork is no longer what it was.

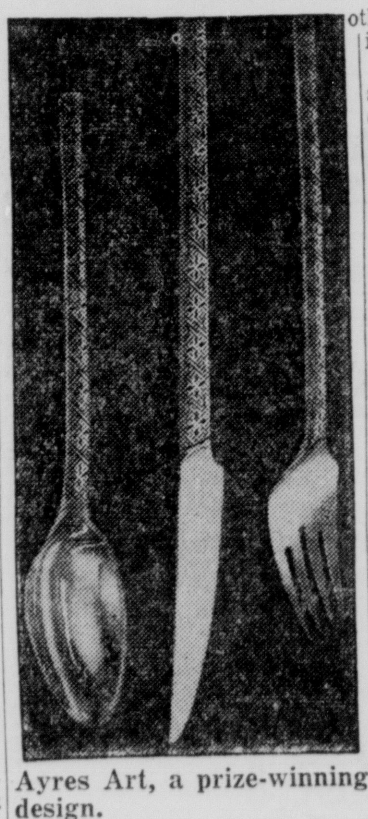
Tired of balancing plate, knife, fork, spoon and cup on your knee? Then you'll be interested in the modern fork that you can do about anything with except eat soup.

Samuel Ayres, Massachusetts industrial designer and one of 22 award winners in a recent silver flatware design competition, explains why the modern fork is so versatile:

"Fork tines are shorter, the the bowl is more pronounced and the edges of the fork ars slightly sharper, not to the point of being knife edge, but useful in cutting some meats."

This change has been brought about, Ayres believes, because of the popularity of outdoor eating and buffet dining.

"It just wouldn't be possible to wield a knife as well as handle a plate, fork, napkin and beverage on one' laps as some hostesess expect. The result is that foods that are easily cut with the fork are more often served. Steak knives are used with heavy cuts of meat," he says.



Ayres Art, a prize-winning design.

Ayres' design was shown at the "International Design Competition" exhibition at the Museum of Contemporary Crafts, along with the other award winners and some centuries - old eating utensils. It has high ornamentation, a stylized snow flake, in a process known as damaskeen.

"It is not new," he says. "I traced the technique back many centuries. But the shaft and shape of the piece are contemporary."

Ayres does not like silver that has a stark look.

"It is all right for stainless steel, because we do not use it for formal service or special occasions. But why take silver, a precious metal, and give it that stark appearance?" he asks, "I'd like to see more inlays and other materials used with silver in newer designs."

The silver flatware service has shrunk considerably, he points out.

"We used to have dozens of pieces available in most silver patterns — oyster forks, luncheon knives and forks, dinner knives and forks, dessert spoons, cream soup spoons, bouillion spoons. Few people want or need these pieces any more," he says.

Some jewelers limit their place settings to five pieces — knife, fork, tea spoon, dessert spoon, salad fork. The butter knife is now skipped in many place settings, he says, and if more silver is bought it is usually extra forks.

"But silver should be used, not only to keep it from tarnishing, but to develop a patina. People pay fortunes for old Georgian silver because it has developed a beautiful patina from use. We can get that patina by using our own silver more often."

He sees a return to ornamentation on silver because "we've gone the full cycle on functional silver. It all looks alike. Decoration is one cultural expression of fine things, and we were weaned away from it in silver when machine age ornamentation took over. The trouble is, we tossed out some excellent ornamentation along with the vulgar designs. We threw out the baby with the bath water."

Swartz HD Club Has Luncheon At Arnold Home

Mrs. E. R. Arnold was hostess to the Swartz Home Demonstration Club on February 17, when members met in her home for a regular meeting and covered dish luncheon.

Mrs. J. B. Corder, president, had charge of the business during which a detailed report of the February 10 council meeting was given by Mrs. Guy Armstrong. Mrs. George Speir gave a nutrition report and in the absence of the family life leader a general discussion was led by Mrs. Corder.

Mrs. S. C. Hixon, club historian, presented ideas and suggestions for this year's scrap book. "Use and Care of Kitchen Utensils," was the demonstration given by Mrs. W. J. St. John, home management leader, during which various types of cooking ware were shown along with the best methods for cleaning each.

Following a recreation period, luncheon was served to the members and two guests, Mrs. W. M. Cooper and Mrs. J. F. Arnold. Members present were Mrs. Arnold, Mrs. Corder, Mrs. Hixon, Mrs. Speir, Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. St. John, Mrs. D. A. Mears, Mrs. Sidney Rogers, Mrs. J. W. Glenn, Mrs. Floyd Glenn, Mrs. A. J. Pink Is Leading Spring Color In Clothes, Makeup

By SOLANGE BERTRAND

I've got roses on my hat, pink lipstick on my mouth and a pink chiffon blouse for my spring suit. And that's not going to be the end of pink by a long shot.

Pink is THE color for spring this year. A better beauty choice has surely never been made. Pink is the one color that flatters women from six to sixty. It makes the young glow, the mature look younger. It brightens the eyes, softens the features and gives the complexion radiance.

Notable for spring in both clothes and makeup is the very wide range of pinks, and the mixture of different shades of pink. If pink has always meant a pastel to you, abandon the concept.

This year's pinks are positive. Pale pink is generally used only in conjunction with deep pink, as in a rosy pink tweed suit with a paler pink chiffon blouse.

If you're tall, see what a casually brimmed hat of pale pink straw will do for you, especially when it's wrapped with deeper pink chiffon that trails into a long scarf to be looped about the shoulders.

If you're short, try a straight-rising toque whose sides are overlaid with flat pink roses. Whether hats are turbans, sailors, doll-type or large-brimmed, they're everywhere pink, the prettiest hats we've had in seasons.

Makeup, too, goes definitely pink for spring. As in clothes, there are many varieties, so that every complexion can find its own special shade of flattering pink, ranging from pale to deep.

Complexions should be toned to complement all these lovely pinks. The ivory or olive skin should use a foundation of rosy beige to impart a faintly pink tone. Fair complexions with plenty of their own color should use a neutral beige foundation. Try pink makeup now to find the most becoming shades, and be ready for the lovelier pink spring ahead!

Eureka HD Club Has Discussion On Food Facts

Monthly meeting of the Eureka Home Demonstration club was held Wednesday, February 15 in the home of Mrs. Carl Jordan, who presided over the afternoon session.

Mrs. Earl Garland talked on "Food Information, True and False," citing the vast amount of misleading matter that is given the public by radio and television on food supplements and drugs.

Mrs. Roy Wuest, family life leader, gave an interesting paper on two exemplary mothers, Mrs. Susanna Wesley and Mrs. Charles Jones Soong, and on the life of Benjamin Franklin, showing the work and service of one man after the age of retirement.

Those present were Mrs. Leon Leonard, Mrs. Earl Garland, Mrs. Osa Avant, Miss Bessie Aulds, Mrs. Roy Wuest, Mrs. Ellis Aulds, Mrs. Clyde Garland and the hostess...

Sheered Seal Introduced As Spring Fur

AP Newsfeatures

Fur seal got a butch haircut for spring.

The result is lakoda, a sheer, lightweight fur introduced recently by the fur seal industry to compete with cloth coats in mild weather, too.

Jealous of the silkiness and drapability of some fabrics spring wraps are made of, pelt-makers sheered the Alaskan seal to give it a flat, silky and golden irridescent appearance.

Since the new fur has reached the market, designers have fashioned it into jackets, capes and three quarter length coats.

Patriotic Hues Lead In Spring Footwear Parade

NEW YORK — It's three cheers for the red, white and blue as fashion's favorite footwear passes in review this Spring.

Leading the parade of leather shoes seen at the Press Week preview of Spring shoe styles at Leather Industries of America were a variety of reds, white and blues in polished, suede, grained and patent leathers. And right alongside them in the ranks, marched spectators, pumps, moccasins and flats in subtle bone, tan, ecru and olive green. Also represented were vivid bronzes, yellows and lilacs — in gleaming luster leather, nappy brushed leather, supple smooth calf and kid and shining patent leather.

Popular red leather tones — chiefly for daytime wear — include strawberry, pink and regatta red (scarlet). For evening wear, the reds grow deeper and blend toward plum in soft, supple suedes and handsome smooth leathers. This year's blues tend to sparkle — bright Acapulco blue, periwinkle (purplish) blue, and foam blue. Whites run the tonal gamut from sharp gleaming white of polished leather to the subtle off - whites blending into bone in grained, smooth and lustered leather.

Many styles, particularly the town pump and the spectator show white in patriotic combination with red or blue — as an insert or collar and heel trim. Mixing leather textures as well as colors adds another dimension to fashionable footwear For example, a white grained leather spectator with a strawberry suede leather collar trim adds a touch of elegance to a classic shoe.

Stepping out in the Easter parade will be black patents and white luster leathers — putting a brilliant footnote under fashionable hounds tooth check suits or a black tissue wool coat. With soft, flexible leather uppers and thin, lightweight leather soles, this year's crop of fashion footwear is as easy on the foot as on the eye.

The season ahead promises to be colorful as fashion borrow's Spring's brushes and wields them freely. For the woman who likes bright color accent, there are a wealth of high key colors to choose from, including: orange, lavender and the palest of pale yellows.

Another development new this year is the variety of browns which are attempting to gain a foothold on the Spring scene. Chiefly seen as an autumn basic in recent years, brown will be popular this Spring in soft caramel tones, impressive bronzes and warm red mixtures in every rich, pleasing leather texture.

Color is also used this Spring to give an assist to the pointed toe, fashion's favorite shoe silhouette. Often, the elongated toe of the shoe is tipped in a contrasting color or the same tone in a different leather texture to emphasize the whittled shape.

Going-Away Party Fetes Mrs. Carman

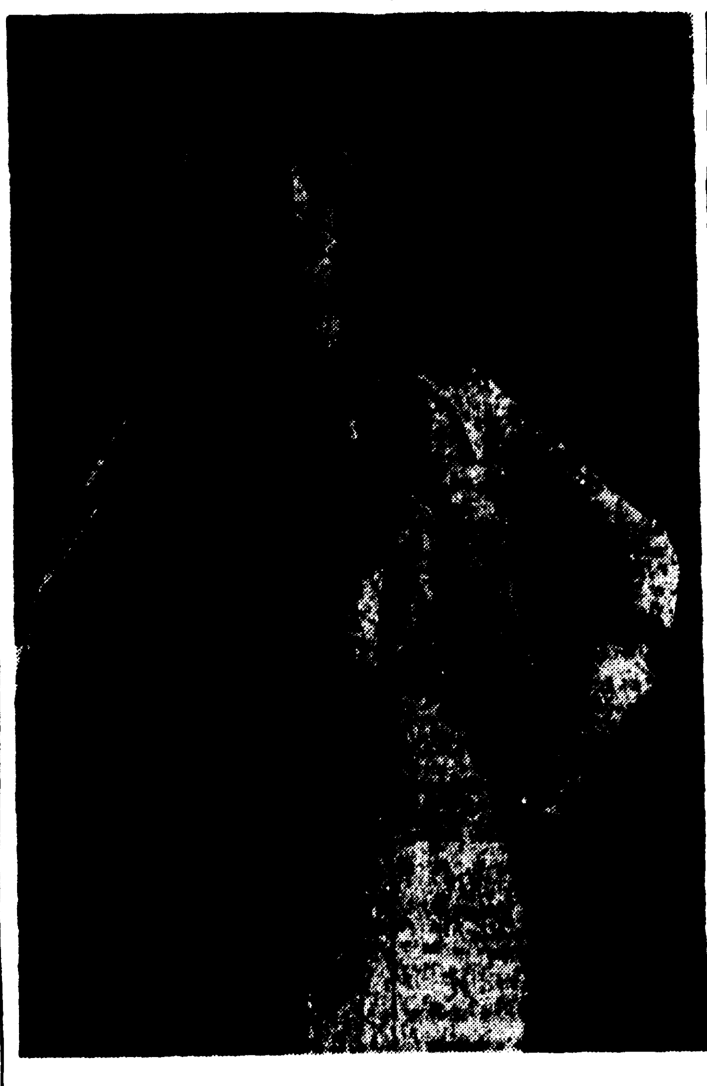
Another in the series of parties honoring Mrs. R. J. Carman, prior to her departure for Texas to establish a home, was a neighborhood coffee given Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. L. Murdock Jr., 2321 DeBastrop Drive.

Co - hostesses at the farewell fete were Mrs. Nils Borgkvist and Mrs. W. T. Nettles.

An arrangement of camellias graced the table where Mrs. Ethel Trice and Mrs. F. M. Bradley Jr. alternated at the coffee service.

Hostess gift to the honoree was a silver cream and sugar set to complete her silver coffee service.

Guests included Mrs. G. C. Bedenbender, Mrs. C. L. Christian, Mrs. A. A. Kemp Jr., Mrs. L. C. Leake, Mrs. J. A. Liljeberg, Mrs. W. E. Lindley, Mrs. N. A. Lloyd, Mrs. F. R. Malone, Mrs. O. P. Thompson Jr., Mrs. J. C. Thrower, and Mrs. L. M. Webb.



NOW AMERICA'S favorite shape, the cardigan jacket cover-up for a two-piece sleeveless overblouse dress — designed for spring into summer. Nothing, but nothing will travel so well as this double-knit worsted ensemble, the jacket for which can be shed in hot weather.

Questions And Answers On Interior Decorating

By BETTY PEPIS

Q.—I am about to buy a new French Provincial living - room suit. I would like advice on the wood finish to choose. My dining room has new French Provincial furniture in golden bisque finish. Must I match the new furniture in the living room to the dining furniture, or could I use antique white finish?

A.—In the first place, I would prefer related furniture rather than a matching suite which tends to give an unoriginal, somewhat dated look to a room. Stick to pieces in the French style you like, make sure that they are related in scale and you will have more interesting effect. You could use antique white, but I would advise limiting it to one or two smaller pieces. Larger wood pieces in fruitwood would be a nice foil for the painted light finishes.

Q. —I am partially redecorating my living room. Carpet in rose-beige tweed will stay, as will walls papered in a pale gray and silver tweed paper. Sofa is dark brown. I have an odd chair to be re-covered. What color would you suggest for this and for new draperies? I have seen a black white, turquoise and sandalwood tweed which I like. Would you advise this or is my room too tweedy now?

A.—The use of textured materials rather than patterened is almost a hallmark of the contemporary interior. Care must be taken, however, to contrast rough with smooth, bold with subtle. You have all subtle tweeds now. I would like a very nubby linen or strong woven texture in pale gray, white or turquoise for draperies. Brighter turquoise bark cloth or similar fabric for the chair. Pale citron yellow, sharp green or burnt orange accessories.

Q.—My bathroom is pale gray and coral. What third color for bath mats and towels would be interesting and different?

A.—A brilliant red-orange such as tangerine would be wonderful. Or you might use several closely related shades such as pale orange, tangerine and pure red. In either case, use a few touches of white for clarity. Milkglass jars and soap dish, perhaps.

Q.—My living room walls and carpet are light green, sofa is olive. One chair is pale gray and another coral. Would deep red be good for draperies?

A.—Color distribution is good so far, but the red draperies would be too strong a color. I am afraid they would be tiring. If you want red, use it in a print on white or pale beige.

Select Versatile Clothes When Planning Trip

Clothes selection and packing are very important elements in the planning of a trip. Not having the right outfits for the right occasion is as awkward as toting unnecessary baggage. Keeping in mind weight allowances, multi-stop itineraries, a special wardrobe is recommended to assure extra enjoyment for fashionable travelers. The following basic wardrobe suggested for a 17-day excursion trip is compact, practical and versatile. Space saved allows room for favorite accessories and personal items which express the individual woman.

To facilitate shopping and packing, the wardrobe has been divided into three categories, clothes, accessories, and lingerie suitable for a 17-day journey.

Three basic ensembles should make up the central part of the wardrobe. One should be a suit, another a knit dress and the last, an ensemble to be worn under a travel coat. To make the most of a limited number of ensembles, careful choice of complementing colors is essential. Neutral, dark and bright shades permit interchanging parts of ensembles. Also include a dressy coat, perhaps reversible, and thus adaptable for afternoon or evening wear.

Two sweaters should be taken, as they are especially practical for travel, useful in most climates, take little space, and resist wrinkling. Plain or dressy, they complement blouses and pair perfectly with skirts. Take three blouses, among which a sleeveless blouse will have dual use, as it can be worn under a suit or as part of evening separates. One in white, preferably "drip dry," will add a crisp note to ensembles.

This year's blues tend to sparkle — bright Acapulco blue, periwinkle (purplish) blue, and foam blue. Whites run the tonal gamut from sharp gleaming white of polished leather to the subtle off - whites blending into bone in grained, smooth and lustered leather.

Many styles, particularly the town pump and the spectator show white in patriotic combination with red or blue — as an insert or collar and heel trim. Mixing leather textures as well as colors adds another dimension to fashionable footwear For example, a white grained leather spectator with a strawberry suede leather collar trim adds a touch of elegance to a classic shoe.

Stepping out in the Easter parade will be black patents and white luster leathers — putting a brilliant footnote under fashionable hounds tooth check suits or a black tissue wool coat. With soft, flexible leather uppers and thin, lightweight leather soles, this year's crop of fashion footwear is as easy on the foot as on the eye.

The season ahead promises to be colorful as fashion borrow's Spring's brushes and wields them freely. For the woman who likes bright color accent, there are a wealth of high key colors to choose from, including: orange, lavender and the palest of pale yellows.

Another development new this year is the variety of browns which are attempting to gain a foothold on the Spring scene. Chiefly seen as an autumn basic in recent years, brown will be popular this Spring in soft caramel tones, impressive bronzes and warm red mixtures in every rich, pleasing leather texture.

Color is also used this Spring to give an assist to the pointed toe, fashion's favorite shoe silhouette. Often, the elongated toe of the shoe is tipped in a contrasting color or the same tone in a different leather texture to emphasize the whittled shape.

Going-Away Party Fetes Mrs. Carman

Another in the series of parties honoring Mrs. R. J. Carman, prior to her departure for Texas to establish a home, was a neighborhood coffee given Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. L. Murdock Jr., 2321 DeBastrop Drive.

Co - hostesses at the farewell fete were Mrs. Nils Borgkvist and Mrs. W. T. Nettles.

An arrangement of camellias graced the table where Mrs. Ethel Trice and Mrs. F. M. Bradley Jr. alternated at the coffee service.

Hostess gift to the honoree was a silver cream and sugar set to complete her silver coffee service.

Guests included Mrs. G. C. Bedenbender, Mrs. C. L. Christian, Mrs. A. A. Kemp Jr., Mrs. L. C. Leake, Mrs. J. A. Liljeberg, Mrs. W. E. Lindley, Mrs. N. A. Lloyd, Mrs. F. R. Malone, Mrs. O. P. Thompson Jr., Mrs. J. C. Thrower, and Mrs. L. M. Webb.

NOW AMERICA'S favorite shape, the cardigan jacket cover-up for a two-piece sleeveless overblouse dress — designed for spring into summer. Nothing, but nothing will travel so well as this double-knit worsted ensemble, the jacket for which can be shed in hot weather.

Questions And Answers On Interior Decorating

By BETTY PEPIS

Q.—I am about to buy a new French Provincial living - room suit. I would like advice on the wood finish to choose. My dining room has new French Provincial furniture in golden bisque finish. Must I match the new furniture in the living room to the dining furniture, or could I use antique white finish?

A.—In the first place, I would prefer related furniture rather than a matching suite which tends to give an unoriginal, somewhat dated look to a room. Stick to pieces in the French style you like, make sure that they are related in scale and you will have more interesting effect. You could use antique white, but I would advise limiting it to one or two smaller pieces. Larger wood pieces in fruitwood would be a nice foil for the painted light finishes.

Q. —I am partially redecorating my living room. Carpet in rose-beige tweed will stay, as will walls papered in a pale gray and silver tweed paper. Sofa is dark brown. I have an odd chair to be re-covered. What color would you suggest for this and for new draperies? I have seen a black white, turquoise and sandalwood tweed which I like. Would you advise this or is my room too tweedy now?

A.—The use of textured materials rather than patterened is almost a hallmark of the contemporary interior. Care must be taken, however, to contrast rough with smooth, bold with subtle. You have all subtle tweeds now. I would like a very nubby linen or strong woven texture in pale gray, white or turquoise for draperies. Brighter turquoise bark cloth or similar fabric for the chair. Pale citron yellow, sharp green or burnt orange accessories.

Q.—My bathroom is pale gray and coral. What third color for bath mats and towels would be interesting and different?

A.—A brilliant red-orange such as tangerine would be wonderful. Or you might use several closely related shades such as pale orange, tangerine and pure red. In either case, use a few touches of white for clarity. Milkglass jars and soap dish, perhaps.

Q.—My living room walls and carpet are light green, sofa is olive. One chair is pale gray and another coral. Would deep red be good for draperies?

A.—Color distribution is good so far, but the red draperies would be too strong a color. I am afraid they would be tiring. If you want red, use it in a print on white or pale beige.

Select Versatile Clothes When Planning Trip

Clothes selection and packing are very important elements in the planning of a trip. Not having the right outfits for the right occasion is as awkward as toting unnecessary baggage. Keeping in mind weight allowances, multi-stop itineraries, a special wardrobe is recommended to assure extra enjoyment for fashionable travelers. The following basic wardrobe suggested for a 17-day excursion trip is compact, practical and versatile. Space saved allows room for favorite accessories and personal items which express the individual woman.

To facilitate shopping and packing, the wardrobe has been divided into three categories, clothes, accessories, and lingerie suitable for a 17-day journey.

Three basic ensembles should make up the central part of the wardrobe. One should be a suit, another a knit dress and the last, an ensemble to be worn under a travel coat. To make the most of a limited number of ensembles, careful choice of complementing colors is essential. Neutral, dark and bright shades permit interchanging parts of ensembles. Also include a dressy coat, perhaps reversible, and thus adaptable for afternoon or evening wear.

Two sweaters should be taken, as they are especially practical for travel, useful in most climates, take little space, and resist wrinkling. Plain or dressy, they complement blouses and pair perfectly with skirts. Take three blouses, among which a sleeveless blouse will have dual use, as it can be worn under a suit or as part of evening separates. One in white, preferably "drip dry," will add a crisp note to ensembles.

IN INDIA

Church Mergers Decision Pending

Methodists in India, through their 11 annual (regional) conferences, will be deciding during the next two years whether they will merge with six other Protestant denominations to form a new United Church of North India and Pakistan.

The highest legislative body of Indian Methodism, the Southern Asia Central Conference, approved with only one dissenting vote the proposed merger as contained in the Plan of Union, developed by the seven negotiating denominations. Meeting in Hyderabad in January, the Central Conference voted to send the Plan of Union down to the 11 annual conferences.

OUTLOOK

If during the next two years, the plan is approved by two-thirds of the voting members (lay and clerical) of each conference, the Methodist General Conference of 1964 will be asked for an enabling act to permit Indian Methodism to unite with the other denominations. Among them are Anglicans, Baptists and Presbyterians.

The momentous vote by 147 delegates on the Plan of Union was the highlight of the Central Conference. The Methodists of India, numbering about 500,000, constitute the largest unit in the Methodist Church outside the United States. So far as is known, the merger if consummated will involve the first United Church in which Methodist and Anglican bishops would serve together. (Methodists who merged into the United Church of Canada and the Church of South India were of British Methodist background and did not have bishops.)

If the annual conferences give approval to the Plan of Union and if an enabling act is granted by the 1964 General Conference, the 1964 Southern Asia Central Conference may take whatever steps are necessary for consummating the union. Nine of the annual conferences presumably would enter the United Church of North India and Pakistan, while the two southern conferences, Hyderabad and South India, presumably would negotiate for merger into the Church of South India.

REPORT

The Rev. Dr. Robert V. Marble of Neosho, Mo., missionary and special news correspondent, wrote that in presenting to the Central Conference the report of its Commission on Church Union, the Rev. E. C. Reddy said:

"Whereas the Episcopal Address of our bishops stated 'the Churches must become the Church,' we must move from the exploration of possibilities of union to the Creator of the spirit and structure of union. We believe Our Lord is calling upon us to unite.

"Be it resolved that the Central Conference commends the Plan of Union (third revised edition) formulated by the patient and painstaking endeavor of the accredited representatives of seven negotiating churches over a period of 31 years to the annual conferences for a 'yes' or 'no' vote before 1963, so that the Methodist Church in Southern Asia be prepared for consummating the union."

Observance Of Purim Is Planned Here

One of the most joyous Jewish holidays, Purim, the Festival of Lots, will be observed by the Jews of Monroe with a service in the Temple at 400 Jackson Street, beginning 7:00 P.M., Wednesday.

Festive in spirit, the celebration marks a successful struggle in ancient Persia against the forces of religious bigotry. The story of Purim is recorded in the Megillah, a scroll containing the Book of Esther, found in the Bible.

This biblical tale relates the Persian Queen Esther's fight against Haman and his attempts to persecute the Jews. The story tells how Haman, the prime minister, tried to force the Jews to bandon their form of worship and prostrate themselves before men or face extinction.

STRUGGLES

Current struggles by all people against similar discrimination in the world today take on stronger meaning as this initial resistance against religious persecution is remembered, church officials said.

In modern Temples the holiday is marked by sermons stressing religious liberty, prayers of thanksgiving, reading of the Megillah, gay musical selection and special social activities.

Children find a particular delight in this holiday. During the reading of the Book of Esther the youngsters are provided with noise makers to drown out the name of Haman each time it is uttered.

The Youth Group of Temple B'Nai Israel is sponsoring a Purim Carnival to take place, Sunday, March 5th in the Temple Annex. Special delight is taken in the eating of Hamantashen, a triangular pastry especially baked for the holiday.

IN INDIA

Church Mergers Decision Pending

Methodists in India, through their 11 annual (regional) conferences, will be deciding during the next two years whether they will merge with six other Protestant denominations to form a new United Church of North India and Pakistan.

The highest legislative body of Indian Methodism, the Southern Asia Central Conference, approved with only one dissenting vote the proposed merger as contained in the Plan of Union, developed by the seven negotiating denominations. Meeting in Hyderabad in January, the Central Conference voted to send the Plan of Union down to the 11 annual conferences.

OUTLOOK

If during the next two years, the plan is approved by two-thirds of the voting members (lay and clerical) of each conference, the Methodist General Conference of 1964 will be asked for an enabling act to permit Indian Methodism to unite with the other denominations. Among them are Anglicans, Baptists and Presbyterians.

The momentous vote by 147 delegates on the Plan of Union was the highlight of the Central Conference. The Methodists of India, numbering about 500,000, constitute the largest unit in the Methodist Church outside the United States. So far as is known, the merger if consummated will involve the first United Church in which Methodist and Anglican bishops would serve together. (Methodists who merged into the United Church of Canada and the Church of South India were of British Methodist background and did not have bishops.)

If the annual conferences give approval to the Plan of Union and if an enabling act is granted by the 1964 General Conference, the 1964 Southern Asia Central Conference may take whatever steps are necessary for consummating the union. Nine of the annual conferences presumably would enter the United Church of North India and Pakistan, while the two southern conferences, Hyderabad and South India, presumably would negotiate for merger into the Church of South India.

REPORT

The Rev. Dr. Robert V. Marble of Neosho, Mo., missionary and special news correspondent, wrote that in presenting to the Central Conference the report of its Commission on Church Union, the Rev. E. C. Reddy said:

"Whereas the Episcopal Address of our bishops stated 'the Churches must become the Church,' we must move from the exploration of possibilities of union to the Creator of the spirit and structure of union. We believe Our Lord is calling upon us to unite.

"Be it resolved that the Central Conference commends the Plan of Union (third revised edition) formulated by the patient and painstaking endeavor of the accredited representatives of seven negotiating churches over a period of 31 years to the annual conferences for a 'yes' or 'no' vote before 1963, so that the Methodist Church in Southern Asia be prepared for consummating the union."

Observance Of Purim Is Planned Here

One of the most joyous Jewish holidays, Purim, the Festival of Lots, will be observed by the Jews of Monroe with a service in the Temple at 400 Jackson Street, beginning 7:00 P.M., Wednesday.

Festive in spirit, the celebration marks a successful struggle in ancient Persia against the forces of religious bigotry. The story of Purim is recorded in the Megillah, a scroll containing the Book of Esther, found in the Bible.

This biblical tale relates the Persian Queen Esther's fight against Haman and his attempts to persecute the Jews. The story tells how Haman, the prime minister, tried to force the Jews to bandon their form of worship and prostrate themselves before men or face extinction.

STRUGGLES

Current struggles by all people against similar discrimination in the world today take on stronger meaning as this initial resistance against religious persecution is remembered, church officials said.

In modern Temples the holiday is marked by sermons stressing religious liberty, prayers of thanksgiving, reading of the Megillah, gay musical selection and special social activities.

Children find a particular delight in this holiday. During the reading of the Book of Esther the youngsters are provided with noise makers to drown out the name of Haman each time it is uttered.

The Youth Group of Temple B'Nai Israel is sponsoring a Purim Carnival to take place, Sunday, March 5th in the Temple Annex. Special delight is taken in the eating of Hamantashen, a triangular pastry especially baked for the holiday.

THE HOME SHIFT

Many Lovely Flowers Here

By MILDRED SWIFT

The camellia season is here. The cold killed many blossoms, but there are still so many, some rare, some common, but I can truthfully say I've never seen an ugly one.

The A. D. Bernhardt's, Loop Road, have as fine a collection of camellia plants as you'll find in any southern garden. Both are good gardeners and take excellent care of their plants. Diehlman has done a lot of grafting, using his seedlings as understock. Stop by and see their camellia garden, unless there's a heavy freeze between the writing of this column and today. The heavy rains have also taken a heavy toll.

FEB. GARDEN JOBS

Keep Dithane Z-78, parzate or thylate on hand for spraying azaleas for fungus disease petal blight. Flowers look as though they have been scalded when hit by this fungus. Rains, fogs and heavy dews are conductive to development of petal blight. Follow directions on the container. Spray two or three times a week; before or just after the blight starts.

Fertilize azaleas after they bloom. Prune long limbs during the blooming period and you can use these in your church.

Plant gladiolus, montbretia and dahlia bulbs. Prune roses, spray with recommended leaf spot insecticide. Spray stems, leaves and ground after removing mulch. Fertilize roses. Plant new roses.

Finish pruning evergreens and summer flowering shrubs. Divide and reset perennials which bloom after June. Keep dead blooms cut from bulbs.

Get transplanting and planting done (trees and shrubs.) Fertilize native iris. Feed pansies.

Spray camellias, azaleas and evergreens with oil emulsion as soon as danger of frost is over.

Don't plant caladium bulbs or hibiscus yet. It's too early.

When fertilizing don't forget Easter lilies and amaryllis. Put bone meal around spring blooming bulbs as they cease blooming.

Visit your favorite nursery or seed store and see what they have in the way of spring blooming perennials. Buy plants now.

Get beds ready for planting nasturtiums, zinnas, marigolds and other summer blooming annuals.

EVERGREENS

Since we have only a few weeks more of shrub planting time, let me remind you of a few more evergreen plants you may want to buy. Fotsia is a lovely broadleaf plant that can't be depended on to go through our coldest winters, unless in a well protected spot.

Podocarpus (Japanese Yew), has an upright growth, very fine leaves. Magnolia grandifloria, is a beautiful' evergreen tree. Give it plenty of room. This is fine to plant on the north side for a wind break.

Magnolia fuscata or the banana plant shrub is a handsome large plant. It is evergreen and is famous for the crop of small magnolias it produces in the spring. They have a heavy fragrance, suggestive of bananas.

Sweet Olive is another evergreen with fragrance. The flowers are tiny and almost concealed by large leaves. It can be depended on to bloom 10 months out of the year.

Mahonia holly (it isn't a true holly), or mahonia bealei, is a leggy plant, large leafed and will grow 12 feet high.

Abelia is an evergreen of fine texture that has landscape interest, especially in the fall when the foliage takes on a copper cast. It is easy to grow.

The Japanese plum has leaves shaped like magnolia grandifloria, but they are rough instead of glossy. This grows into a small tree.

Never overlook your nandina that is so easy to grow and so inexpensive. The camphor tree is a broadleaf evergreen. It sheds in the spring, but the new leaves are out before the old ones have all fallen, so it is seldom naked.

The youpons, both large and dwarf are evergreens that produce red berries in the winter, and are easy to grow. Boxwood has been used for many years and there are many varieties. I've barely touched the subject of evergreen plants. Visit your nurseries and see what they have.

PRUNING ROSES

Your roses should be pruned by now. If not - get busy. The purpose of pruning roses is to force the bush to put on vigorous growth terminating in finer flowers with long healthy stems Actually, if bush roses weren't pruned you'd have more flowers, and the plant would be just as healthy, but the flowers would not be as choice and the stem quality would suffer, too.

Now, why do we wait until late February to prune? If you pruned earlier, say January or December, during a warm spell the plants would sprout. Then the freezes would kill all that new growth. The idea then is to prune as late as possible before spring growth would normally begin.

In pruning roses, use a sharp instrument, and cut just above a bud. Keep all stout canes, leaving them as high as they're stout. All weak, spindly stems should be removed. If you have two canes that rub against each other, remove one of them.

SPRING COLORS

One of the greatest fashion ideas since black is this news: the new whites in coats, dresses and suits — to be worn this minute. Along with these white and near white clothes is this news too — white worn with toupe, bright red, green, parsley, gold or blue.

The powerful pink coat is one of the most bracing things that could happen to a wardrobe. This is especially true this spring, a season when pink will be packing real fashion power.

TIPS

Hard - to - clean lingerie shoulder straps and shirt collars become extra white when a thick coat of soap or detergent suds is applied before washing. Allow the garment to soak about five minutes.

Many of the new type suede and kid gloves are the washable type. There are several good prepared glove washes on the market, often sold at the glove counter. Use carefully according to instructions. All gloves are not washable — some must go to the cleaners.

Be sure to read the labels when you buy clothes for children as well as adults. The information contained in the labels is vital to the life and care of the togs.

Elastic waistbands in children's underwear often wear out before the rest of the garment. When this happens, thread a darning needle with elastic thread and run twice through the center of stitches and pull the thread to the desired size.

Allow nail polish remover to soak for a few minutes on hardened paint spots on floors — rub off with a cloth and wash.

Take good care of your furs so they'll look better and last longer. Don't comb or brush them—shake them out. Don't hang damp furs in a closet. Instead, hang them in a cool place with circulating air. Don't pin flowers or jewelry where they will rub against fur.

Today's beauty hint comes from hair experts, who say that well shaped, properly colored eyebrows are important, whether you wear your hair swept back from your face, or brought down until your forehead is almost buried in bangs. Don't pluck them to a fine line — just remove straggly hairs so the brow line has a clean sweep. If they're light, pencil them.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Proper Plant Use Important

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Successful landscaping depends largely upon using plants that fit the different exposures on the land. Plants grow best in the exposure they like. They also look best when you use the kinds that grow naturally together in the same exposure. The broadleaf evergreens grow mostly in shade, while cactuses and succulents come from dry and sun drenched habitats.

Even on the average city lot, there is a surprising number of areas with entirely different exposures. Usually, the north side of the house is cold and shady — just the place for the real shade loving broadleaf evergreens like aucubas, and for ferns. There, you can grow also many of the deep woods wild flowers in a leaf moldy soil, and all of these things look natural together.

DIFFERENT COMMUNITY

If you have a very, very dry area in a sun baked section of your property, you can create an entirely different community of plants — and one which is just as attractive in its way as the shady area. Where there is enough room, you may use a few yuccas and, perhaps some prickly pears. Petunias, portulacas, Mexican prickly poppy (Argemone), gaillardias and many Western and South African annuals and perennials will give color.

In somewhat less dry sections, lavender, rosemary and the numerous herbs will thrive. One of the rarest Texas plants, the so-called pink yucca (hesperaloe parviflora) is a choice succulent not to be overlooked.

The drouth and heat loving plants are very useful if you have a lot with no trees on it. While the trees are growing into shade, you can use these interesting, sometimes dazzling sun - lovers. Then you can begin to grow shade lovers underneath the trees.

To make your landscaping successful, make a little exposure map of your lot, marking the degrees of sun and shade of moist and dry and of cold and warm. Most of us usually discover these thing about a lot by trial and error. We might save ourselves many a lost plant by sort of laying out our properties according to exposure. Of course, many plants have a great range of tolerance for different exposures, but they never look quite right when combined with species from different living conditions.

Beautiful New Stamps Point To Solomons

The British Solomon Islands commemorates its new constitution by issuing three beautifully illustrated stamps. This British protectorate comprises a scattered archipelago stretching about 900 miles in a southeasterly direction north of Australia.

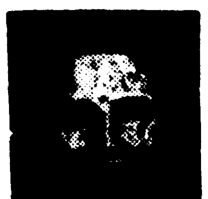
Established as a protectorate at the end of the 19th Century, the islands are administered by a commissioner for the Western Pacific. The new constitution was brought into operation on Oct. 18, 1960. It establishes a legislative council and an executive council and has considerable constitutional development, reports the British Crown Agents.

The 2 pence green and black, 3 pence red and black, and the 9 pence purple and black have a common design — a portrait of Queen Elizabeth, the St. Edward's Crown and a frigate bird in flight. The frigate bird is seen flying frequently around the Solomon Islands and is considered the most completely aerial of sea birds.

Argentina has issued a 1 peso carmine and black stamp dedicated to "The Boy Scouts Jamboree." The design features the symbol and emblem of the Argentine Scouts. The designer was Horacio Alvarez Boero.

The United Nations Postal Administration reports that approximately 274 million United Nations stamps and items of postal stationery have been printed by the U.N. since the establishment of its Postal Administration in 1951.

In addition to focusing attention on the work of the U. N. and its specialized agencies, the stamps have contributed to the financial support of the organization. Gross revenue from philatelic sales since 1951 has reached almost 10 million dollars. Gross revenue anticipated for 1961 is $1.5 million.



The U. S. Post Office Department has announced that the dates for the Inter - American Conference scheduled to be held in Quito, Ecuador, are indefinite. The department said it will issue its previously announced 10-cent commemorative air mail stamp when the conference actually takes place. Meantime, all first day cover requests for this stamp already sent to the Washington, D. C. post office will continue to be held pending a definite date.

The specialized 19th Century France collection of the late Dr. Carroll Chase of Milford, N. H. will be sold by Harmer, Rooke & Co., Inc., of New York in a two day auction to be held Feb. 23-24.

Dr. Chase was one of this country's greatest philatelists. His collection reflects his scientific approach to the hobby and the high quality of his philatelic practice. The collection includes all issues up to 1900.

YOUNG MIDDLE AGE

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — A University of Illinois professor says middle age begins at 26.

Thomas H. Cureton Jr., says that's the age at which the powers of the body start to decline if a person allows himself to go on living as usual.

Dr. Cureton, Jr., an instructor of physical education for men, said the youthful period is over at 14 for boys and 17 for girls, followed by adulthood which is a leveling off period.

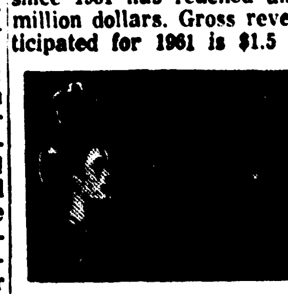
Pruning Time Slipping By



By AUDREY DAWSON

February is almost gone, and if we have not done our pruning, it's time to get busy. The plants that need attention now are the kinds that bloom in summer on shoots that begin to develop this spring as the butterfly bush, crape myrtle, oleanders, and roses.

Spring flowering shrubs and trees, which bear their flowers on shoots produced last year, should not be pruned now - however if they are really overgrown or not in good condition, it may be worth while to sacrifice some or even most of the spring flowers to get them back to the size you desire and in good condition.

Furthermore if the bushes are infested with scale, insects or other pests, a good thinning will give opportunity to apply spray more effectively and economically. But be sure to remember not to apply oil spray when temperature is below 45 degrees.

I like to prune evergreens just before new growth begins, then the cut ends are quickly hidden by new growth and too the plant does not look so strange. This is especially true of good old standby, the nandina plant. Trees, shrubs and vines that are espaliered against walls may be pruned now if they are the kind that flower on new shrubs, if they produce their blossoms on last year's shoots, delay pruning until after they bloom.

If you want to add roses to your landscape this year, now is the time to visit your nurserymen to select them and get them planted.

A THOUGHT

Do you know of a single heart rejoicing over what you did or said this past week?

Winter Relaxing

During these winter days it's good to sit in the warm comfort of your favorite room, reading, quietly talking with friends or just reflecting to your soul's content. An aid to this kind of deep relaxation is a sturdy, easily cleaned coffee table, where you may set cups, saucers, glasses, and cream and sugar containers. If the coffee table is covered with ceramic tile, you need fear no heat burns or beverage stains.

Carelessness Is Costly To Camera Fans

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

A couple of recent experiences revealed anew how momentary carelessness can be costly to camera fans.

The occasion was a camera club dinner and as guest speaker, I was preparing my part in the program. My valise was on a table and I began to remove some of the equipment. The official club photographer came over to talk to me.

While we were chatting, I found I needed more room on the table, so I moved the valise.

DISCOVERY

Crash!

That was how I learned the photographer had left his expensive 4 x 5 press camera behind my valise near the edge of the table.

It was a mighty punishing fall we later found out. To replace the broken parts meant taking the camera apart and putting it together again, a time consuming job for a craftsman. The repair estimate: $139.

But that wasn't all.

Another young chap took pictures that evening and a few days later showed me a set of contact prints. The pictures rated a pat on the back but he still looked unhappy. He told me why.

"I was impatient to see the results," he said, "so I drove back to the office darkroom and processed the films that night.

"When I got back to the car, I found some one had broken into it and had taken the camera which had been left on the back seat.

"To make matters worse, it wasn't even my camera. I had borrowed it."

In hindsight, it's easy to see how both of these mishaps could have been prevented.

MISTAKE

In the first case, it was a mistake not to keep the camera in plain view. In the second instance, it was a mistake not to put the camera out of sight.

There is a bright side to this picture and it's called "insurance." But, while it relieves financial set - backs, insurance can't overcome the anguish that accompanies the discovery that something valuable has been broken or stolen. Nor can it produce pictures in the interval during which a damaged camera is being repaired or a lost camera is replaced.

We can all exercise more care in handling our valuable equipment.

I recall how I used to leave my camera on the seat beside me as I drove my auto. Then one day I had to slam on the brakes. There were no brakes on the camera, however, and it bounced to the floor, hitting a vital spot. Result: A visit to the photo doctor.

Now the camera is firmly anchored or left in the camera case on the car floors.

But I never leave the camera or case in the car when it is parked. Everything is packed in the trunk, out of sight. Even an empty flashbulb carton left in sight might suggest to a prowling sneak thief that the trunk contains camera equipment.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

'Birds At Home,' Theme Of Show

By GLADYS M. KULCKE
Guest Writer

The Jonesboro - Hodge Garden Club chose the theme, "Birds at Home in the Home," for their interesting show in the Garden Center last week. Mrs. Paul Bourg staged a one - man show for her club.

All the arrangements in this show were long - lasting, in that Mrs. Bourg used figurine birds and the plant material was either cured or plastic.

She used a snarled grape root anchored on a brown wood base to form the vertical line of an informal composition. Glycerinized fern, dark brown in color, was placed fan shaped at the base of the root. A blue parakeet perched on the root just above the fern emphasized the focal area.

SUITABLE FOR DEN

This composition was suitable for the den or patio of the home. Gold dominated in the composition made for the living room. A gilded manzanita branch was fastened in a vertical position on a square gilded board with two gold roses at its base. Green vines circled the branch. A red bird and a blue bird was perched on the branch.

Mrs. Bourg placed a white pained branch in a diagonal position on a white base. Yellow and green bird figurines were attached to the branch. Plastic material was used in this composition. A large white fern frond followed the vertical line. A cluster of lily - of - the - valley with their green foliage was placed at the base of this branch. A composition suitable for a girls room.

For the boys room Mrs. Bourg placed a moss covered tree limb in a rough textured vase, resembling a tree trunk. Figurine wrens were attached in natural positions to the limb. A bird nest was nestled in the bend of the limb near the top. A mother wren was perched just above looking into the nest.

In horticulture Mrs. Wilbur C. McDonald exhibited a pussy willow (salix) Mrs. W. O. Corley and Mrs. D. A. Alberti exhibited a beautiful collecton of camellias.

The Board of Directors of the Louisiana Garden Club Federation which met in Alexandria in January, approved a series of flower show schools to be held in the Fifth Garden Club District.

This series of schools will be under the sponsorship of the Council of Ruston and the Twin Cities Garden Council of Monroe and West Monroe. The schools will be held alternately in Monroe and Ruston and will begin in the fall of 1961. Mrs. V. S. Garnett of Monroe and John Wright of Ruston will serve as co-chairmen for the series.

Flower show schools are under the direction of the National Council of State Garden Clubs and are designed not only to train flower show judges, but also to inform those that exhibit in flower shows and those that attend flower shows.

A series consists of five, three-day sessions with two schools being held each year until the five courses are completed. At least two instructors are required for each school and the subjects taught include horticulture, flower arrangement, flower show practice, landscape design and the judging of horticultural specimens and flower arrangements.

One need not be interested in becoming a judge to find these schools both interesting and profitable. Every garden club member should make her plans now to attend school No. 1 which will be held early next fall.

THE HOME SHIFT

Many Lovely Flowers Here

By MILDRED SWIFT

The camellia season is here. The cold killed many blossoms, but there are still so many, some rare, some common, but I can truthfully say I've never seen an ugly one.

The A. D. Bernhardt's, Loop Road, have as fine a collection of camellia plants as you'll find in any southern garden. Both are good gardeners and take excellent care of their plants. Diehlman has done a lot of grafting, using his seedlings as understock. Stop by and see their camellia garden, unless there's a heavy freeze between the writing of this column and today. The heavy rains have also taken a heavy toll.

FEB. GARDEN JOBS

Keep Dithane Z-78, parzate or thylate on hand for spraying azaleas for fungus disease petal blight. Flowers look as though they have been scalded when hit by this fungus. Rains, fogs and heavy dews are conductive to development of petal blight. Follow directions on the container. Spray two or three times a week; before or just after the blight starts.

Fertilize azaleas after they bloom. Prune long limbs during the blooming period and you can use these in your church.

Plant gladiolus, montbretia and dahlia bulbs. Prune roses, spray with recommended leaf spot insecticide. Spray stems, leaves and ground after removing mulch. Fertilize roses. Plant new roses.

Finish pruning evergreens and summer flowering shrubs. Divide and reset perennials which bloom after June. Keep dead blooms cut from bulbs.

Get transplanting and planting done (trees and shrubs.) Fertilize native iris. Feed pansies.

Spray camellias, azaleas and evergreens with oil emulsion as soon as danger of frost is over.

Don't plant caladium bulbs or hibiscus yet. It's too early.

When fertilizing don't forget Easter lilies and amaryllis. Put bone meal around spring blooming bulbs as they cease blooming.

Visit your favorite nursery or seed store and see what they have in the way of spring blooming perennials. Buy plants now.

Get beds ready for planting nasturtiums, zinnas, marigolds and other summer blooming annuals.

EVERGREENS

Since we have only a few weeks more of shrub planting time, let me remind you of a few more evergreen plants you may want to buy. Fotsia is a lovely broadleaf plant that can't be depended on to go through our coldest winters, unless in a well protected spot.

Podocarpus (Japanese Yew), has an upright growth, very fine leaves. Magnolia grandifloria, is a beautiful' evergreen tree. Give it plenty of room. This is fine to plant on the north side for a wind break.

Magnolia fuscata or the banana plant shrub is a handsome large plant. It is evergreen and is famous for the crop of small magnolias it produces in the spring. They have a heavy fragrance, suggestive of bananas.

Sweet Olive is another evergreen with fragrance. The flowers are tiny and almost concealed by large leaves. It can be depended on to bloom 10 months out of the year.

Mahonia holly (it isn't a true holly), or mahonia bealei, is a leggy plant, large leafed and will grow 12 feet high.

Abelia is an evergreen of fine texture that has landscape interest, especially in the fall when the foliage takes on a copper cast. It is easy to grow.

The Japanese plum has leaves shaped like magnolia grandifloria, but they are rough instead of glossy. This grows into a small tree.

Never overlook your nandina that is so easy to grow and so inexpensive. The camphor tree is a broadleaf evergreen. It sheds in the spring, but the new leaves are out before the old ones have all fallen, so it is seldom naked.

The youpons, both large and dwarf are evergreens that produce red berries in the winter, and are easy to grow. Boxwood has been used for many years and there are many varieties. I've barely touched the subject of evergreen plants. Visit your nurseries and see what they have.

PRUNING ROSES

Your roses should be pruned by now. If not - get busy. The purpose of pruning roses is to force the bush to put on vigorous growth terminating in finer flowers with long healthy stems Actually, if bush roses weren't pruned you'd have more flowers, and the plant would be just as healthy, but the flowers wouldnot be as choice and the stem quality would suffer, too.

Now, why do we wait until late February to prune? If you pruned earlier, say January or December, during a warm spell the plants would sprout. Then the freezes would kill all that new growth. The idea then is to prune as late as possible before spring growth would normally begin.

In pruning roses, use a sharp instrument, and cut just above a bud. Keep all stout canes, leaving them as high as they're stout. All weak, spindly stems should be removed. If you have two canes that rub against each other, remove one of them.

SPRING COLORS

One of the greatest fashion ideas since black is this news: the new whites in coats, dresses and suits — to be worn this minute. Along with these white and near white clothes is this news too — white worn with toupe, bright red, green, parsley, gold or blue.

The powerful pink coat is one of the most bracing things that could happen to a wardrobe. This is especially true this spring, a season when pink will be packing real fashion power.

TIPS

Hard - to - clean lingerie shoulder straps and shirt collars become extra white when a thick coat of soap or detergent suds is applied before washing. Allow the garment to soak about five minutes.

Many of the new type suede and kid gloves are the washable type. There are several good prepared glove washes on the market, often sold at the glove counter. Use carefully according to instructions. All gloves are not washable — some must go to the cleaners.

Be sure to read the labels when you buy clothes for children as well as adults. The information contained in the labels is vital to the life and care of the togs.

Elastic waistbands in children's underwear often wear out before the rest of the garment. When this happens, thread a darning needle with elastic thread and run twice through the center of stitches and pull the thread to the desired size.

Allow nail polish remover to soak for a few minutes on hardened paint spots on floors — rub off with a cloth and wash.

Take good care of your furs so they'll look better and last longer. Don't comb or brush them—shake them out. Don't hang damp furs in a closet. Instead, hang them in a cool place with circulating air. Don't pin flowers or jewelry where they will rub against fur.

Today's beauty hint comes from hair experts, who say that well shaped, properly colored eyebrows are important, whether you wear your hair swept back from your face, or brought down until your forehead is almost buried in bangs. Don't pluck them to a fine line — just remove straggly hairs so the brow line has a clean sweep. If they're light, pencil them.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday, Donna Moore will cover hats; Tuesday, J. J. Joyce will show us how to fertilize plants; Wednesday, flower arrangements with Gladys Kulcke; Thursday and Friday, marketing with Mildred.

See you next Sunday.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Proper Plant Use Important

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Successful landscaping depends largely upon using plants that fit the different exposures on the land. Plants grow best in the exposure they like. They also look best when you use the kinds that grow naturally together in the same exposure. The broadleaf evergreens grow mostly in shade, while cactuses and succulents come from dry and sun drenched habitats.

Even on the average city lot, there is a surprising number of areas with entirely different exposures. Usually, the north side of the house is cold and shady — just the place for the real shade loving broadleaf evergreens like aucubas, and for ferns. There, you can grow also many of the deep woods wild flowers in a leaf moldy soil, and all of these things look natural together.

DIFFERENT COMMUNITY

If you have a very, very dry area in a sun baked section of your property, you can create an entirely different community of plants — and one which is just as attractive in its way as the shady area. Where there is enough room, you may use a few yuccas and, perhaps some prickly pears. Petunias, portulacas, Mexican prickly poppy (Argemone), gaillardias and many Western and South African annuals and perennials will give color.

In somewhat less dry sections, lavender, rosemary and the numerous herbs will thrive. One of the rarest Texas plants, the so-called pink yucca (hesperaloe parviflora) is a choice succulent not to be overlooked.

The drouth and heat loving plants are very useful if you have a lot with no trees on it. While the trees are growing into shade, you can use these interesting, sometimes dazzling sun - lovers. Then you can begin to grow shade lovers underneath the trees.

To make your landscaping successful, make a little exposure map of your lot, marking the degrees of sun and shade of moist and dry and of cold and warm. Most of us usually discover these thing about a lot by trial and error. We might save ourselves many a lost plant by sort of laying out our properties according to exposure. Of course, many plants have a great range of tolerance for different exposures, but they never look quite right when combined with species from different living conditions.

Beautiful New Stamps Point To Solomons

The British Solomon Islands commemorates its new constitution by issuing three beautifully illustrated stamps. This British protectorate comprises a scattered archipelago stretching about 900 miles in a southeasterly direction north of Australia.

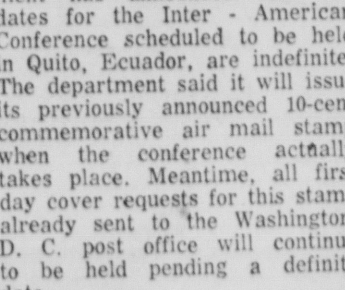
Established as a protectorate at the end of the 19th Century, the islands are administered by a commissioner for the Western Pacific. The new constitution was brought into operation on Oct. 18, 1960. It establishes a legislative council and an executive council and has considerable constitutional development, reports the British Crown Agents.

The 2 pence green and black, 3 pence red and black, and the 9 pence purple and black have a common design — a portrait of Queen Elizabeth, the St. Edward's Crown and a frigate bird in flight. The frigate bird is seen flying frequently around the Solomon Islands and is considered the most completely aerial of sea birds.

Argentina has issued a 1 peso carmine and black stamp dedicated to "The Boy Scouts Jamboree." The design features the symbol and emblem of the Argentine Scouts. The designer was Horacio Alvarez Boero.

The United Nations Postal Administration reports that approximately 274 million United Nations stamps and items of postal stationery have been printed by the U.N. since the establishment of its Postal Administration in 1951.

In addition to focusing attention on the work of the U. N. and its specialized agencies, the stamps have contributed to the financial support of the organization. Gross revenue from philatelic sales since 1951 has reached almost 10 million dollars. Gross revenue anticipated for 1961 is $1.5 million.



The U. S. Post Office Department has announced that the dates for the Inter - American Conference scheduled to be held in Quito, Ecuador, are indefinite. The department said it will issue its previously announced 10-cent commemorative air mail stamp when the conference actually takes place. Meantime, all first day cover requests for this stamp already sent to the Washington, D. C. post office will continue to be held pending a definite date.

The specialized 19th Century France collection of the late Dr. Carroll Chase of Milford, N. H. will be sold by Harmer, Rooke & Co., Inc., of New York in a two day auction to be held Feb. 23-24.

Dr. Chase was one of this country's greatest philatelists. His collection reflects his scientific approach to the hobby and the high quality of his philatelic practice. The collection includes all issues up to 1900.

Crash!

That was how I learned the photographer had left his expensive 4 x 5 press camera behind my valise near the edge of the table.

It was a mighty punishing fall we later found out. To replace the broken parts meant taking the camera apart and putting it together again, a time consuming job for a craftsman. The repair estimate: $139.

But that wasn't all.

Another young chap took pictures that evening and a few days later showed me a set of contact prints. The pictures rated a pat on the back but he still looked unhappy. He told me why.

"I was impatient to see the results," he said, "so I drove back to the office darkroom and processed the films that night.

"When I got back to the car, I found some one had broken into it and had taken the camera which had been left on the back seat.

"To make matters worse, it wasn't even my camera. I had borrowed it."

In hindsight, it's easy to see how both of these mishaps could have been prevented.

MISTAKE

In the first case, it was a mistake not to keep the camera in plain view. In the second instance, it was a mistake not to put the camera out of sight.

There is a bright side to this picture and it's called "insurance." But, while it relieves financial set - backs, insurance can't overcome the anguish that accompanies the discovery that something valuable has been broken or stolen. Nor can it produce pictures in the interval during which a damaged camera is being repaired or a lost camera is replaced.

We can all exercise more care in handling our valuable equipment.

I recall how I used to leave my camera on the seat beside me as I drove my auto. Then one day I had to slam on the brakes. There were no brakes on the camera, however, and it bounced to the floor, hitting a vital spot. Result: A visit to the photo doctor.

Now the camera is firmly anchored or left in the camera case on the car floors.

But I never leave the camera or case in the car when it is parked. Everything is packed in the trunk, out of sight. Even an empty flashbulb carton left in sight might suggest to a prowling sneak thief that the trunk contains camera equipment.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

'Birds At Home,' Theme Of Show

By GLADYS M. KULCKE
Guest Writer

The Jonesboro - Hodge Garden Club chose the theme, "Birds at Home in the Home," for their interesting show in the Garden Center last week. Mrs. Paul Bourg staged a one - man show for her club.

All the arrangements in this show were long - lasting, in that Mrs. Bourg used figurine birds and the plant material was either cured or plastic.

She used a snarled grape root anchored on a brown wood base to form the vertical line of an informal composition. Glycerinized fern, dark brown in color, was placed fan shaped at the base of the root. A blue parakeet perched on the root just above the fern emphasized the focal area.

SUITABLE FOR DEN

This composition was suitable for the den or patio of the home. Gold dominated in the composition made for the living room. A gilded manzanita branch was fastened in a vertical position on a square gilded board with two gold roses at its base. Green vines circled the branch. A red bird and a blue bird was perched on the branch.

Mrs. Bourg placed a white pained branch in a diagonal position on a white base. Yellow and green bird figurines were attached to the branch. Plastic material was used in this composition. A large white fern frond followed the vertical line. A cluster of lily - of - the - valley with their green foliage was placed at the base of this branch. A composition suitable for a girls room.

For the boys room Mrs. Bourg placed a moss covered tree limb in a rough textured vase, resembling a tree trunk. Figurine wrens were attached in natural positions to the limb. A bird nest was nestled in the bend of the limb near the top. A mother wren was perched just above looking into the nest.

In horticulture Mrs. Wilbur C. McDonald exhibited a pussy willow (salix) Mrs. W. O. Corley and Mrs. D. A. Alberti exhibited a beautiful collecton of camellias.

The Board of Directors of the Louisiana Garden Club Federation which met in Alexandria in January, approved a series of flower show schools to be held in the Fifth Garden Club District.

This series of schools will be under the sponsorship of the Council of Ruston and the Twin Cities Garden Council of Monroe and West Monroe. The schools will be held alternately in Monroe and Ruston and will begin in the fall of 1961. Mrs. V. S. Garnett of Monroe and John Wright of Ruston will serve as co-chairmen for the series.

Flower show schools are under the direction of the National Council of State Garden Clubs and are designed not only to train flower show judges, but also to inform those that exhibit in flower shows and those that attend flower shows.

A series consists of five, three-day sessions with two schools being held each year until the five courses are completed. At least two instructors are required for each school and the subjects taught include horticulture, flower arrangement, flower show practice, landscape design and the judging of horticultural specimens and flower arrangements.

One need not be interested in becoming a judge to find these schools both interesting and profitable. Every garden club member should make her plans now to attend school No. 1 which will be held early next fall.

U.S. Plans Big Overseas Troops Test

WASHINGTON (AP)—The biggest U. S. overseas training deployment of a combined ground-air strike force is planned for late this spring.

If final approval is obtained from the White House, State Department and the countries involved, the present plan for "Exercise Long Thrust" will mean the sending of three battle groups of the Strategic Army Corps (STRAC) to Europe.

A total of about 5,000 soldiers would be airlifted across the Atlantic.

One of the primary purposes of this big-scale long-distance operation is to test U. S. ability to provide quick reinforcement for North Atlantic Treaty Organization defensive forces.

To provide air support in the far-flung exercise, the U. S. Air Force will send a composite air strike of bombers and fighters.

To airlift the STRAC groups, plus whatever other Army units are attached to them temporarily, more than 300 long-range transport planes of the Military Air Transport Service and the Tactical Air Command will be utilized.

There also is a possibility that part of the combined force—one battle group plus the composite air strike force—might be sent to Turkey.

Apparently because top government sanction and foreign permission is still being negotiated, the Defense Department would make only brief answer to questions about Exercise Long Thrust.

"The "Department of Defense is considering participating in a possible NATO exercise which may be conducted late this spring. The location and extent of the exercise is not known at this time. If the NATO command decides to conduct the exercise, announcement will be made later," the department said.

Atomic Works Strike Feared

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Government officials voiced concern Saturday over a labor-management dispute that threatens to hurt production of plutonium, an explosive used in atomic bombs.

The AFL-CIO Atomic Metal Trades Council has warned that it may strike in mid-March at the billion-dollar atomic works in Hanford, Wash., operated by General Electric Co. unless the firm improves its settlement offer.

GE, which runs the plant under contract with the Atomic Energy Commission, has rejected recommendations proposed by a government panel.

The AFL-CIO council, an alliance of 19 unions which represent 3,200 workers at Hanford, has accepted the panel's proposal and has asked President Kennedy to persuade the company to do the same.

Teacher Council Schedule Meet At Alexandria

The Louisiana Council of Teachers of English will hold their fifteenth state - wide annual spring conference in Alexandria, it was announced by Mrs. Lavinia McNeely, Supervisor, English and Language Arts, of the Sate Department of Education.

The one-day meeting of Louisiana English teachers will be welcomed to the city by Mr. C. R. Sanders, Superintendent, Rapides Parish School Board.

The featured speaker will be Dr. Robert C. Pooley, professor of English at the University of Wisconsin. He will address the group on the subject of "Some Thoughts on the Art of Writing."

A discussion on "Composite Composition" will be held by a group of Louisiana school and college English teachers. Members of the panel will include Mrs. Felicia McClure, Dalton Elementary School, Mrs. Alice Kees, Pineville Elementary School, Mrs. Lerlind Hanchey, Ruston Elementary School, Dr. Katye Lee Posey of the Caddo Parish School Board.

Also Mrs. Margaret I. Cowsar, Central High School, Mrs. Leo Shelby, University High School, Mrs. Doris Hunter, Baton Rouge High School, Mrs. Kathleen Levingston, Calcasieu Parish School Board, Miss Mary McEniry, Northwestern State College, and Miss Barbara Barnes of LSU Alexandria.

The luncheon speaker will be Miss Blanche Trezevant of Florida State University. Her topic will be "Planning Writing Experiences in the Unit of Instruction."

More than five hundred English teachers and others are expected to attend the conference.

Defectors Join Rebels In Cuba

HAVANA (AP)—Insurgents in increasing numbers are active in Oriente Province's mountains but most—if not all—appear to be defectors from Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime rather than arrivals from abroad.

Qualified observers who toured Oriente, Cuba's easternmost province, reported Saturday they found no direct confirmation of reports widely circulated in Cuba of "landings" by rebels in several areas of eastern Cuba.

But the observers reported they learned reliably that up to 600 opposition men had fled into the hills between Baracoa on the northern coast and Guantanamo on the southern coast to fight the Castro regime.

Of all ages, races and colors—these people are victims of disaster: displacement, earthquake, poverty, famine, flood . . . war. Food is just one problem. And there are others —clothing, shelter, a lack of equipment to build lives anew.

First Astronaut May Soar Soon

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Nearly a century after it was conceived, the nearest thing so far to Jules Verne's manned moon gun may be mounted for firing within the next 60 days at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

The vehicle is a rocket instead of a gun and is designed this time to propel the man only 115 miles into space. But the differences can be considered minor. Clearing the atmosphere is about 90 per cent of the job and a rocket fuel essentially is gunpowder burning instead of exploding.

The date for the first manned launching moved much closer this week when the Mercury project chose the "final three" astronauts, one of whom will take the first rocket ride 290 lateral miles down the Cape Canaveral range.

Their selection was made after the rocket capsule, unmanned, had been put through a screaming re-entry test under conditions at least three times worse than the astronauts are expected to endure. The evidence was that the astronauts could have survived even the much more severe test.

The unmanned capsule was hurled 1,426 miles downrange at a speed of 12,850 miles per hour before successfully reentering the atmosphere. It was recovered intact Tuesday within 21 minutes after the launching.

Robert R. Gilruth, director of the half-billion-dollar Mercury project, said in an enthusiastic understatement that the test together with astrochimp Ham's nonchalant performance on a similar, though much shorter, ride Jan. 31, were enough to "give us some confidence in the integrity of the system."

Gilruth's cautious optimism generated talk of a manned launching in April. But another test firing is to be conducted in March. Should this uncover the slightest flaw, a further delay is to be expected.

President Kennedy has said in effect that, since the rocket ride, in principle at least, can be made no more dangerous than lighting a gas stove, he doesn't want to see an American in space until that stage in development has been approached.

This also is a concern to the most avid space enthusiasts because a premature failure could be a real setback. In fact, if it were not for the needling effects of the race with Russia, a series of spectacular failures involving the lives of astronauts might delay space flight another century or more.

The least concerned men in the picture are the "final three" astronauts—Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., 39, of the Marines, Capt. Virgil L. Grissom, 34, of the Air Force, and Commander Alan B. Shepard Jr., 37, of the Navy.

These are highly selected men, successful as jet test pilots and sure of themselves. That they have courage is undoubted, but their confidence is even more obvious to those who interviewed them.

After 22 months of training as astronauts, their native high confidence that nothing serious will happen to them is backed by a firm belief that, if something does go wrong, they will be able to handle the situation.

Rail Disaster Averted In Flood Area

MILSTEAD, Ala. (AP) — A major rail disaster was averted early Saturday when automatic brakes halted passenger and freight cars only feet from a floodswept ravine where two engines and a baggage car plunged.

The engineer and the fireman escaped with injuries as the diesel locomotives and baggage car of the Southern Railway's Piedmont Limited fell into the swirling torrent in a remote area near Milstead.

Only one of the 40-odd passengers required first aid. Others were shaken slightly by the sudden stop.

The New York-to-New Orleans train, already delayed more than two hours by high water, driving rain and strong wind, was traveling less than 20 miles an hour when the tracks collapsed.

At a faster speed, said an official of the Western Railway of Alabama, even the automatic braking might not have kept the other cars from following the first three units into the 40-foot hole.

The swift current submerged the second engine, covered part of the baggage car and left less than 10 feet of the lead unit above water. Only the first locomotive was occupied.

There, inching deeper into the muddy bottom every minute, engineer J. W. Smith lay trapped with a broken leg about four hours before rescuers reached the isolated wreck scene.

Emerging as the hero of the ordeal was his Negro fireman, Jack Vinson, 68. Despite injuries, he managed to get out of the water-surrounded cab, crawl up the crumbling bank of the ravine, trek two miles through rainswept terrain and summon help.

Vinson, suffering cuts and bruises, was described in good condition at a hospital in Montgomery 25 miles west of Milstead.

WHOLESALE TO EVERYONE

Rayville Site Of Federated Womens' Meet

We must make sure that "every day we join our hands to safeguard all of our freedoms," the president of the Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs told the convention yesterday.

President Mrs. Paul T. Wright spoke to the Fifth district convention of LFWC in Rayville on the topic "The Hand of Leadership."

The one day convention included a style show, the award of the GFWC Clubwoman and the CARE award plus the Louisiana Post Cards award.

Mrs. Wright pointed out that "the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world," is an almost forgotten truism. She noted that a woman's hand writes books, prepares political speeches, rings doorbells for good works, writes checks for needy causes, writes articles and college papers — "has power."

She said that a few years ago, that hand "was bound, forbidden freedom and its power was nonexistent. But now, having gained our independence, we often let slide the jobs and responsibilities that we have fought so hard to win," she said.

We cannot afford even temporary idleness, because we have two distinct responsibilities, she told the gathering. "One, to the present and future generations of women, and two, to the women who preceded us and whose hands opened the doors to freedom that were so tightly shut."

"The General Federation and our Louisiana clubs need every one of you as an interpreter to the public . . . our strongest representatives and our best messengers of good will," she said.

In closing, Mrs. Wright stated that we can only remain strong and alive if we make sure that every day we join our own hands to safeguard all of our freedoms.

NO MORE DANCING

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "No more professional dancing," vows Leslie Caron, now a dramatic star with Maurice Chevalier and Charles Boyer in the film "Fanny."

"I decided one day that dancers had to subject themselves to the discipline of nuns, and that this life was irreconcilable with my role as wife, mother and actress. So I gave away all my dancing shoes."

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Nearly a century after it was conceived, the nearest thing so far to Jules Verne's manned moon gun may be mounted for firing within the next 60 days at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

The vehicle is a rocket instead of a gun and is designed this time to propel the man only 115 miles into space. But the differences can be considered minor. Clearing the atmosphere is about 90 per cent of the job and a rocket fuel essentially is gunpowder burning instead of exploding.

The date for the first manned launching moved much closer this week when the Mercury project chose the "final three" astronauts, one of whom will take the first rocket ride 290 lateral miles down the Cape Canaveral range.

Their selection was made after the rocket capsule, unmanned, had been put through a screaming reentry test under conditions at least three times worse than the astronauts are expected to endure. The evidence was that the astronauts could have survived even the much more severe test.

The unmanned capsule was hurled 1,425 miles downrange at a speed of 12,850 miles per hour before successfully reentering the atmosphere. It was recovered intact Tuesday within 21 minutes after the launching.

Robert R. Gilruth, director of the half-billion-dollar Mercury project, said in an enthusiastic understatement that the test together with astrochimp Ham's nonchalant performance on a similar, though much shorter, ride Jan. 31, were enough to "give us some confidence in the integrity of the system."

Gilruth's cautious optimism generated talk of a manned launching in April. But another test firing is to be conducted in March. Should this uncover the slightest flaw, a further delay is to be expected.

President Kennedy has said in effect that, since the rocket ride, in principle at least, can be made no more dangerous than lighting a gas stove, he doesn't want to see an American in space until that stage in development has been approached.

This also is a concern to the most avid space enthusiasts because a premature failure could be a real setback. In fact, if it were not for the needling effects of the race with Russia, a series of spectacular failures involving the lives of astronauts might delay space flight another century or more.

The least concerned men in the picture are the "final three" astronauts—Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., 39, of the Marines, Capt. Virgil L. Grissom, 34, of the Air Force, and Commander Alan B. Shepard Jr., 37, of the Navy.

These are highly selected men, successful as jet test pilots and sure of themselves. That they have courage is undoubted, but their confidence is even more obvious to those who interviewed them.

After 22 months of training as astronauts, their native high confidence that nothing serious will happen to them is backed by a firm belief that, if something does go wrong, they will be able to handle the situation.

Rail Disaster Averted In Flood Area

MILSTEAD, Ala. (AP) — A major rail disaster was averted early Saturday when automatic brakes halted passenger and freight cars only feet from a floodswept ravine where two engines and a baggage car plunged.

The engineer and the fireman escaped with injuries as the diesel locomotives and baggage car of the Southern Railway's Piedmont Limited fell into the swirling torrent in a remote area near Milstead.

Only one of the 40-odd passengers required first aid. Others were shaken slightly by the sudden stop.

The New York-to-New Orleans train, already delayed more than two hours by high water, driving rain and strong wind, was traveling less than 20 miles an hour when the tracks collapsed.

At a faster speed, said an official of the Western Railway of Alabama, even the automatic braking might not have kept the other cars from following the first three units into the 40-foot hole.

The swift current submerged the second engine, covered part of the baggage car and left less than 10 feet of the lead unit above water. Only the first locomotive was occupied.

There, inching deeper into the muddy bottom every minute, engineer J. W. Smith lay trapped with a broken leg about four hours before rescuers reached the isolated wreck scene.

Emerging as the hero of the ordeal was his Negro fireman, Jack Vinson, 68. Despite injuries, he managed to get out of the water-surrounded cab, crawl up the crumbling bank of the ravine, trek two miles through rainswept terrain and summon help.

Vinson, suffering cuts and bruises, was described in good condition at a hospital in Montgomery 25 miles west of Milstead.

Rayville Site Of Federated Womens' Meet

We must make sure that "every day we join our hands to safeguard all of our freedoms," the president of the Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs told the convention yesterday.

President Mrs. Paul T. Wright spoke to the Fifth district convention of LFWC in Rayville on the topic "The Hand of Leadership."

The one day convention included a style show, the award of the GFWC Clubwoman and the CARE award plus the Louisiana Post Cards award.

Mrs. Wright pointed out that "the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world," is an almost forgotten truism. She noted that a woman's hand writes books, prepares political speeches, rings doorbells for good works, writes checks for needy causes, writes articles and college papers — "has power."

She said that a few years ago, that hand "was bound, forbidden freedom and its power was nonexistent. But now, having gained our independence, we often let slide the jobs and responsibilities that we have fought so hard to win," she said.

We cannot afford even temporary idleness, because we have two distinct responsibilities, she told the gathering. "One, to the present and future generations of women, and two, to the women who preceded us and whose hands opened the doors to freedom that were so tightly shut."

"The General Federation and our Louisiana clubs need every one of you as an interpreter to the public . . . our strongest representatives and our best messengers of good will," she said.

In closing, Mrs. Wright stated that we can only remain strong and alive if we make sure that every day we join our own hands to safeguard all of our freedoms.

NO MORE DANCING

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "No more professional dancing," vows Leslie Caron, now a dramatic star with Maurice Chevalier and Charles Boyer in the film "Fanny."

"I decided one day that dancers had to subject themselves to the discipline of nuns, and that this life was irreconcilable with my role as wife, mother and actress. So I gave away all my dancing shoes."

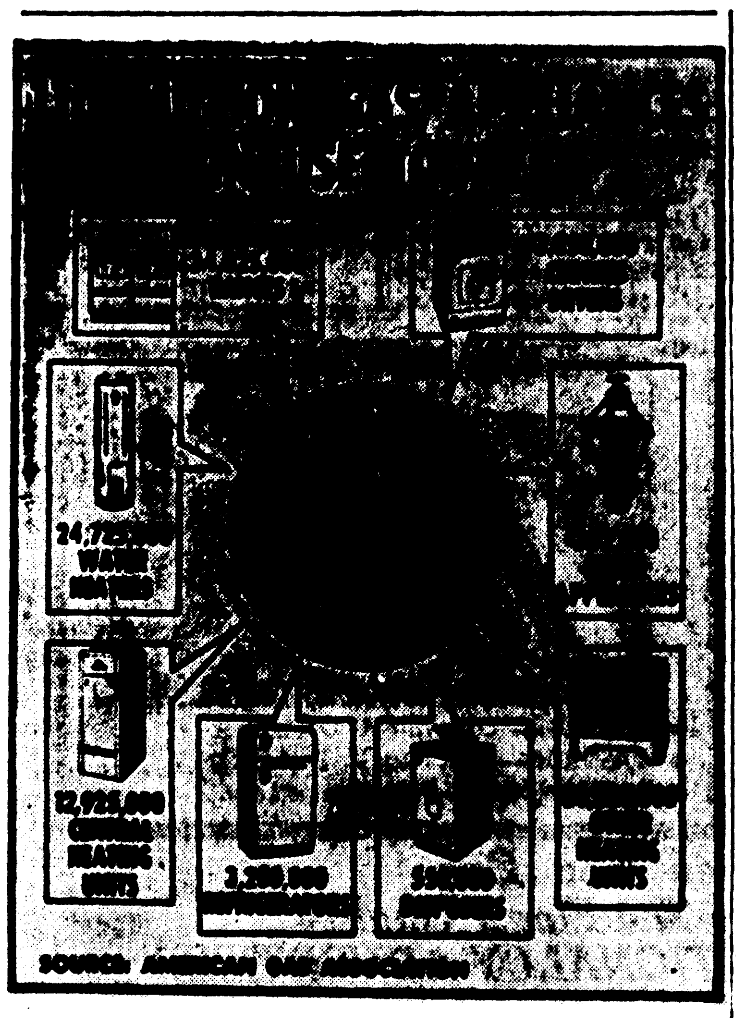
Stock Market Trading High



NEARLY 110 million gas appliances now are in daily service in homes throughout the United States. The nation's 40 million gas-using families — 31 million served by utility companies and the remainder by LP "bottled" gas — average nearly three appliances each.

Prices Churn Upward, Pace Is Quickened

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock market trading this week was at the heaviest pace since 1933 as prices churned irregularly higher, meeting increased resistance.

Because of Washington's Birthday there were only four trading sessions, so total volume was 20,696,610 shares compared with 23,021,955 for the full five-day trading week that preceded it.

Average daily trading, however, zoomed to 5,174,152 shares from 4,604,391 the prior week and this was the biggest since the week ended July 22, 1933, when the average was 5,690,590 shares.

The public's appetite for stocks was tremendous and, on top of this, there was steady buying by institutions such as mutual funds, pension funds and insurance companies, as well as trading from abroad.

HIGHEST

As the week ended, a seat on the New York Stock Exchange was sold for $165,000, the highest price paid since Feb. 19, 1936, when a seat changed hands at $174,000.

The Dow Jones industrial average this week advanced 3.93 to 655.60.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose .90 to a new historic high of 237.10.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index also closed the week at a new high of 62.59.

The Dow industrials were having trouble penetrating the rally top of 656.42 reached last June and were still substantially below their historic peak of 685.47 attained Jan. 5, 1960.

Of the 1,435 issues traded this week, 849 advanced and 457 declined.

The most active issue this week on the American Stock Exchange was Lefcourt Realty, up ¾ at 3 on 232,800 shares.

A number of U.S. government and corporate bonds sold at their highest price and lowest yield in two years this month.

UPWARD

The corporate list surged upward without interruption to make it eight straight weekly advances this year. The February gain was again the best since August, based on the AP averages. Industrials and utilities closed Friday at 1960-61 peaks and top grade investment issues were just a hair under their best.

Treasury bonds reversed January's slide to pick up as much as 2¾ or 3 points in the longest maturities with two sessions remaining in February. The improvement was almost as good as December's yearend rally. More than half the list closed a point or better above Feb. 1 quotations and many were up 1½. Half a dozen or so gained 2 although the shortest maturities slipped 1-32 to ¼.

Volume of corporate trading on the New York Stock Exchange for the holiday week fell to $29,026,000 par value from $33,464,500 but the daily average was up to $7,274,000 from $6,692,900.

New Reducing Gum

Promising to replace 900 calorie food concentrates as a new weight reducing fad is a chewing gum developed by the Thompson Medical Co., of New York City. Clinically tested for five years, with notable success, the gum embodies a control concept.

Named Slim-Mint, it contains a chemical that numbs the taste buds of the tongue. By limiting a dieter's taste sensation, it helps curb his appetite, reduces by 1-3 to ½ his normal food intake, according to clinical reports.

ONLY ONE COMPLETION

Area Oil-Gas Activity Sees Big Decrease

BY RICHARD GREENE
World Oil Editor

The heavy rains that hit the Monroe area last week brought oil and gas drilling activities to a sudden halt. As a result of flooded roads and fields there was only one new well completed and five locations staked.

Duncan S. Cook, district manager, reported a total of 14 rigs that remained active through the downpours and only two holes were plugged and abandoned in the 14-parish district.

Predictions, at this time, would be hard to make as to when weather conditions will remain favorable long enough for drilling and exploration activities to show any noticeable increase.

Olin Gas Transmission Corp.'s OGTC Fee No. 474 was completed in the Monroe field of Union Parish. The new well is expected to low 550 MCF from 2166 ft. with a rock pressure of 755 lbs.

Hearing Set On Oil Field In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Mississippi state oil and gas board has set a special hearing Monday on the McComb fieldwide unitization application.

The McComb field in Pike County was discoverd in the summer of 1960 and has over 140 producing oil wells.

Production is from the lower tuscaloosa formation at about 10,800 feet, but the field has had a continued decrease in bottom hole pressure for the past 12 months.

The unitization plan was designed to raise and keep up the bottom hole pressures.

Humble Oil and Refining Co. has completed workover operations at the May-Love No. 1, sec. 1-4n-7e, a discovery well of the recently found Johnson station oil field in Pike County.

The well was recompleted from perforations in the lower Tuscaloosa formation at 10,828-30 feet. It pumped 141 barrels of oil and 422 barrels of salt water per day. Gravity of the crude was 38 degrees.

In the Smithdale field of Amite County, Sun Oil Co. was below 7,100 feet in the Hewitt No. 1, sec. 15-4n-6e.

Two other Amite County wells were underway. Pan American Petroleum Corp. was drilling a surface hole at the Spurlock No. 1, sec. 23-3n-6e, in the McElveen Field, and Larco Drilling Co. was attempting to free stuck drill pipe in a wildcat, the Adams No. 1, sec. 15-4n-5e.

In the new Traxler oil field of Smith County, Triad Oil and Gas Co. was below 7,600 feet in a confirmation try, the USA No. 1, sec. 36-3n-6e.

The discovery well was completed in a Rodessa sand at 11,069 feet. Several paluxy oil sands were logged below 10,000 feet but were not tested for commercial worth.

In Hinds County, Texas Pacific Coal and Oil Co., was below 11,000 feet in an important wildcat, the Allen No. 1, sec. 9-5n-2w, a scheduled 12,500 foot test. The venture has logged gas shows of undetermined commercial worth at 5,046 feet.

In Yazoo County, Continental Oil Co. was below 11,100 feet in a wildcat, the Freudenberg No. 1, sec. 24-12n-2w, a 14,100 foot test.

In the new Bentonia field of Yazoo County, Humble Oil and Refining Co. shut down due to high water at the Thompson No. 2, sec. 3-9n-1w, second tt for the new area. Total depth of 6,068 feet, contract depth is 11,000 feet.

At Little Creek in Pike County, Sun Oil Co. completed the Magee-Jones No. 1, sec. 22-3n-7e, which flowed 117 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 10,882-40 feet.

In Copia Nounty, Victor Smith was below 3,200 n a wildcat, the USA No. 1 sec. 5-9n'3e.

Gulf Oil Corp. was at 16,000 feet in a closely watched Issaquena County wildcat, the Eagle Bend No. 1, sec. 8-10n-3e, a 16,500 foot try.

Badge Stolen

CHATTANOOGA (AP) — During funeral services for veteran humane officer John Henry, who spent most of his adult life helping neglected or abused children, burglars looted his home — taking the gold badge he wore for 34 years with the Humane Educational Society.

UNEMPLOYMENT AID

Plan Of Reviving Building Made

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Robert Clifton Weaver, the new boss of programs, sees his first task as reviving the ailing home building industry to reduce unemployment and give business generally a lift.

Second in his list of priorities is revitalizing the federal aspects of urban renewal—cutting red tape and getting more demoliion, rebuilding and rehabilitation actually under way in the nation's cities.

Third, Weaver wants to turn his attention to the problem of providing adequate housing for poor people who cannot afford and do not now have decent shelter.

Experienced in housing work a he federal, state and local levels, Weaver, 53, harbors no illusions about the difficulty of geting things done in big government. He well appreciates the difficulty is multiplied when one government—the federal — is trying o work ogether with lesser acthorities and get them t owork with each other.

President Kennedy's nomination of Weaver to be administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, highest housing post in Washington, ran into more opposition and snipping in the Senate than that of any of his appointees.

Weaver is a Negro and a dedicated worker for equal rights and opportunities for Negroes. His nomination amounted to a tactic renewal by Kennedy of a pledge to issue an executive order banning segregation in federally aided housing. Some home builders and some senators have expressed qualms that such an order would slow down the industry in the South.

He graduated with honors from Harvard in 1929 and went on to graduate school, where he earned master's and doctorate degrees in economics. After a brief time teaching at North Carolina Agricultural and Technical College he accepted an offer in 1933 to work for Harold L. Ickes, then secreary of interior and boss of the Works Progress Administration. From there Weaver went on to the U. S. Housing Authority and later, several wartime agencies.

In 1944-45 he held a municipal post in Chicago and in 1947-48 lectured at Northwestern University in Evanston. He has taught also at Teachers College, New York, and New York University.

Former New York Gov. Averell Harriman made Weaver deputy commissioner of housing and, subsequently, administrator of the state Housing Rent Commission. He resigned as vice chairman of the Housing and Redevelopment Board of New York City to come to Washington and took a $1,500-a-year pay cut to $21,000.

Last year he was elected board chairman of he National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, a post he also has resigned.

Because his housing experience is heavily in public housing, his selection has been criticized by the industry which is 97 per cent private home building and 3 per cent public housing. However, he is widely recognized as a man of ability and accomplishment.

He will need all the ability he can muster in his new job. It is a difficult one, especially if the battle for "open occupancy" in federally-aided housing is to be joined—and Weaver expects it will.

Cotton Futures Show Mixed On N.Y. Exchange

NEW YORK (AP)—New York cotton prices strengthened this week under the influence of higher government price props for the 1961 crop.

After Wednesday's holiday, most deliveries moved sharply higher in the wake of the U.S. Agriculture Department announcement pegging supports at 82 per cent of parity.

Gains later were pared by profit taking and hedge selling. At the close Friday, active future contracts were up 60 cents to $2.20 a bale from a week earlier.

The market had backed and filled Monday and Tuesday as traders moved cautiously in awaiting the government decision.

Under 1961 supports, a minimum of 33.04 cents a pound will apply for the middling one-inch product.

Before the late week retreat, active months from July 1961 forward reached life - of - contract highs.

State Producer Aims For Record Drilling Depth

In the steamy delta country of Louisiana, not far from where the Mississippi empties into the Gulf of Mexico, drilling crews are boring their way toward what may be the world's deepest oil well.

Located in historic Plaquemines Parish at the southeastern tip of our oil-prolific state, the well is scheduled to be drilled to at least 26,000 feet, a distance of nearly five miles down. The estimated cost will be a minimum of $2 million. The present depth record is held by a hole in Texas that was drilled to 25,340 feet at a cost of $3 million, and failed to produce.

IN NEAR FUTURE

Fiberglass Bodies Foreseen For Autos

DETROIT (UPI) — Fiberglass boats are commonplace today and the day may not be too distant when fiberglass bodies will be standard on American cars.

Chevrolet has been using a fiberglass reinforced plastic body on its Corvette since the sports car was introduced in 1953 and several truck manufacturers presently offer plastic cabs.

Reinforced plastic has numerous advantages which appeal to the auto maker.

Corrosion resistance is one of the important advantages of fiberglass since body rust has long been a problem in the auto industry.

Plastics also permit car weight reduction with no sacrifice in strength.

BODY EASILY REPAIRED

And the fiberglass body is easily repaired in the event of an accident. No bump work is required. Instead, the damaged area is rebuilt with a glass fiber cloth impregnated with resin.

Several layers of the glass fiber cloth restore the damaged area to its original shape, rough edges are smoothed with a grinder and the rebuilt section is painted.

The repair procedure is so simple, and has been so successful, that "do it yourself" fiberglass repair kits are now being sold to patch up rusted-out areas of conventional steel-body cars.

Only one thing is holding back the industry from a major swing to fiberglass auto bodies.

Molding of fiberglass bodies is not yet possible on the mass production scale which the industry demands.

The Corvette is a low volume car — 12,508 were built last year — and rapid output of bodies was not required.

OUTPUT NOT POSSIBLE

But General Motors, Ford and Chrysler demand 10 times that many bodies in a single week during normal production periods and such an output isn't possible now in existing plants.

But the plastic companies are busily engaged in research aimed at faster body building.

Meanwhile, the plastic industry continues to pick up more and more business from the auto makers in the form of parts and accessories.

However, the plastic industry isn't content with growing parts and accessory business. Its goal is plastic bodies for all American cars.

Highway Tax Take Hits Record Of $5.3 Billion

High-way user taxes collected by the states during 1960 reached a record $5.3 billion — up five per cent from 1959, according to the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads.

Of this total motor fuel taxes alone account for $3.4 billion, or 64 per cent of the revenues. Vehicle registration fees add $1.5 billion and the remaining $400 million comes from other vehicle, motor carrier and miscellaneous fees.

In addition, the federal government during 1960 collected an estimated $4.3 billion from its own highway - user taxes. However, only $2.6 billion of this went ipto the highway program. The remaining $1.7 billion was chaneled away from roads.

Second Series Of Road Plans Slated By State

The State Highway department will receive the second series of sealed proposals for some five and one-half miles of construction on the I-20 Highway, Wednesday March 22, Rep. Lawrence Gibbs said yesterday.

These sealed proposals will be for the construction of the Calhoun-West Monroe highway from Route 546 to Stella Street, he said. This series along with the 5.6 miles section from Calhoun U. S. Highway 80 to Route 546 will total 11 miles of construction to be under the project engineering of C. M. Dunlap, 1210 Stella St., West Monroe.

Gibbs said the work will include grading, drainage structures, portland cement concrete pavement, grade separation structure and other work in connection therewith.

Gibbs released this information after receiving word from Highway Director Ray Burgess.

Report On U.S. Education Is Given

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Take an inadequate number of teachers, most of whom are ill-trained for the task. Ask them to teach the most basic subject in the school curriculum, under conditions ranging from bad to impossible.

If you think that is a formula for educational disaster, you need wonder no longer why Johnny can't read, write, spell, parse or punctuate.

The reason is that he is being taught English under precisely those circumstances.

Colleges, employers, parents and others closely associated with America's high school graduates have long been aware that something was horrendously wrong with their preparation in English.

But the full dimensions of this growing crisis in literacy have only now been documented.

The documentation is a 140-page report issued by the National Council of Teachers of English.

The council is an old and prestigious organization, not given to raising false alarms. Its report is soberly worded, backed up by extensive surveys, heavily laden with statistics.

Its conclusions should be terrifying to any citizen who knows that American students spend more time on English than any other subject; that two of the "3 Rs" are included in the subject; and that a mastery of his native language is the one indispensable skill that any person should be expected to bring away from a process called education.

REMEDIAL COURSES

Just how poorly English is presently being taught in many U.S. elementary and high schools is dramatized by two statistics in the report:

1. Last year, of 600,000 high school graduates who took college entrance examinations, 150,000 flunked English.

2. More than two - thirds of America's colleges and universities now find it necessary to offer remedial courses in English to incoming freshmen.

The council pinpointed several reasons for the poor quality of English instruction.

First, there is a chronic shortage of teachers who meet state certification requirements for teaching English in high school. A survey indicated the demand for such teachers outran the supply by 37 per cent.

Second, many of the teachers who do meet state certification requirements are actually ill-prepared in English. The average state requires only 18 semester hours of college credit in English (three courses) to qualify as a high school English teacher. Sixteen states will settle for one college course beyond freshman English.

SURVEY

A survey by the council indicated that about half of the men and women now teaching English in U.S. high schools do not themselves have a college major in English. (The percentage ranged from 40 in some states to 60 in others.)

Colleges engaged in preparing teachers could help the situation by requiring more of their graduates than bare compliance with state certification standards. But the council's studies clearly indicate that few teacher-training institutes are doing a good job of preparing English teachers. To cite just one hair-raising statistic, only 17 per cent of the colleges require a course in modern grammar of graduates who are preparing to teach high school English.

Summarizing the situation, the council says that the preparation of English teachers is "seriously inadequate" and "the great body of teachers now in English classrooms" are "simply not equipped" to deal with the subject properly.

That would be bad enough. But there is more.

Even the most highly qualified English teachers are not able to teach effectively under the overcrowded conditions which exist in many U.S. schools. The average English teacher carries a "teaching load" of 150 to 200 students daily, whereas the council says 100 is a maximum for good teaching.

WEAKNESS

Perhaps the greatest single weakness, however, is the chaotic condition of the English curriculum. Thousands of separate school districts plan their own English courses, with little coordination between elementary and high schools and colleges, or even between one grade and the next.

A hodge-podge of assorted courses bear the name English (California has 217 such courses in its public schools) and the really important studies — language, literature and composition — tend to get lost in a profusion of peripheral studies.

The council concluded that the outlook is desperate, and can be relieved only by a massive national program such as Congress adopted, in the National Defense Education Act, to improve the teaching of science and mathematics.

English is surely no less important. What good is a scientist who can't read? Or a mathematician who can't write a letter?

Ghana Expects Intervention By U.S. In Congo

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — The Ghana government party newspaper Ghanaian Times said Saturday the United States is planning "strong military intervention in the Congo."

The article, which created great uneasiness here, alleges that five U. S. warships in West African waters on goodwill visits have been told to "hold themselves in readiness for emergency action in the Congo."

The newspaper names two of the warships as the Docking Landing Ship Hermitage and the Tank Landing Ship Graham County and said each was carrying 500 Marines.

According to the newspaper's political correspondent, the Pentagon has prepared "a chart of operations" which says aircraft and 80,000 men will be needed for the Congo operation. He says that for the same purpose 30 shiploads of military personnel and 64 shiploads of cargo will be required for the sealift which will cost the U. S. Treasury $10.6 million. The whole operation, the writer added, will cost the United States $31.7 million.

NEARLY 110 million gas appliances now are in daily service in homes throughout the United States. The nation's 40 million gas-using families — 31 million served by utility companies and the remainder by LP "bottled" gas — average nearly three appliances each.

UNEMPLOYMENT AID

Plan Of Reviving Building Made

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Robert Clifton Weaver, the new boss of programs, sees his first task as reviving the ailing home building industry to reduce unemployment and give business generally a lift.

Second in his list of priorities is revitalizing the federal aspects of urban renewal—cutting red tape and getting more demoliion, rebuilding and rehabilitation actually under way in the nation's cities.

Third, Weaver wants to turn his attention to the problem of providing adequate housing for poor people who cannot afford and do not now have decent shelter.

Experienced in housing work a he federal, state and local levels, Weaver, 53, harbors no illusions about the difficulty of geting things done in big government. He well appreciates the difficulty is multiplied when one government—the federal — is trying o work ogether with lesser acthorities and get them t owork with each other.

President Kennedy's nomination of Weaver to be administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, highest housing post in Washington, ran into more opposition and snipping in the Senate than that of any of his appointees.

Weaver is a Negro and a dedicated worker for equal rights and opportunities for Negroes. His nomination amounted to a tactic renewal by Kennedy of a pledge to issue an executive order banning segregation in federally aided housing. Some home builders and some senators have expressed qualms that such an order would slow down the industry in the South.

He graduated with honors from Harvard in 1929 and went on to graduate school, where he earned master's and doctorate degrees in economics. After a brief time teaching at North Carolina Agricultural and Technical College he accepted an offer in 1933 to work for Harold L. Ickes, then secreary of interior and boss of the Works Progress Administration. From there Weaver went on to the U. S. Housing Authority and later, several wartime agencies.

In 1944-45 he held a municipal post in Chicago and in 1947-48 lectured at Northwestern University in Evanston. He has taught also at Teachers College, New York, and New York University.

Former New York Gov. Averell Harriman made Weaver deputy commissioner of housing and, subsequently, administrator of the state Housing Rent Commission. He resigned as vice chairman of the Housing and Redevelopment Board of New York City to come to Washington and took a $1,500-a-year pay cut to $21,000.

Last year he was elected board chairman of he National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, a post he also has resigned.

Because his housing experience is heavily in public housing, his selection has been criticized by the industry which is 97 per cent private home building and 3 per cent public housing. However, he is widely recognized as a man of ability and accomplishment.

He will need all the ability he can muster in his new job. It is a difficult one, especially if the battle for "open occupancy" in federally-aided housing is to be joined—and Weaver expects it will.

Prices Churn Upward, Pace Is Quickened

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock market trading this week was at the heaviest pace since 1933 as prices churned irregularly higher, meeting increased resistance.

Because of Washington's Birthday there were only four trading sessions, so total volume was 20,696,610 shares compared with 23,021,955 for the full five-day trading week that preceded it.

Average daily trading, however, zoomed to 5,174,152 shares from 4,604,391 the prior week and this was the biggest since the week ended July 22, 1933, when the average was 8,480,500 shares.

The public's appetite for stocks was tremendous and, on top of this, there was steady buying by institutions such as mutual funds, pension funds and insurance companies, as well as trading from abroad.

HIGHEST

As the week ended, a seat on the New York Stock Exchange was sold for $165,000, the highest price paid since Feb. 19, 1936, when a seat changed hands at $174,000.

The Dow Jones industrial average this week advanced 3.93 to 655.60.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose .90 to a new historic high of 237.10.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index also closed the week at a new high of 62.59.

The Dow industrials were having trouble penetrating the rally top of 656.42 reached last June and were still substantially below their historic peak of 685.47 attained Jan. 5, 1960.

Of the 1,435 issues traded this week, 849 advanced and 457 declined.

The most active issue this week on the American Stock Exchange was Lefcourt Realty, up ¾ at 3 on 232,800 shares.

A number of U.S. government and corporate bonds sold at their highest price and lowest yield in two years this month.

UPWARD

The corporate list surged upward without interruption to make it eight straight weekly advances this year. The February gain was again the best since August, based on the AP averages. Industrials and utilities closed Friday at 1960-61 peaks and top grade investment issues were just a hair under their best.

Treasury bonds reversed January's slide to pick up as much as 2¾ or 3 points in the longest maturities with two sessions remaining in February. The improvement was almost as good as December's yearend rally. More than half the list closed a point or better above Feb. 1 quotations and many were up 1½. Half a dozen or so gained 2 although the shortest maturities slipped 1-32 to ¼.

Volume of corporate trading on the New York Stock Exchange for the holiday week fell to $29,026,000 par value from $33,464,500 but the daily average was up to $7,274,000 from $6,692,900.

ONLY ONE COMPLETION

Area Oil-Gas Activity Sees Big Decrease

BY RICHARD GREENE
World Oil Editor

The heavy rains that hit the Monroe area last week brought oil and gas drilling activities to a sudden halt. As a result of flooded roads and fields there was only one new well completed and five locations staked.

Duncan S. Cook, district manager, reported a total of 14 rigs that remained active through the downpours and only two holes were plugged and abandoned in the 14-parish district.

Predictions, at this time, would be hard to make as to when weather conditions will remain favorable long enough for drilling and exploration activities to show any noticeable increase.

Olin Gas Transmission Corp.'s OGTC Fee No. 474 was completed in the Monroe field of Union Parish. The new well is expected to low 550 MCF from 2166 ft. with a rock pressure of 755 lbs.

Hearing Set On Oil Field In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Mississippi state oil and gas board has set a special hearing Monday on the McComb fieldwide unitization application.

The McComb field in Pike County was discoverd in the summer of 1959 and has over 140 producing oil wells.

Production is from the lower tuscaloosa formation at about 10,800 feet, but the field has had a continued decrease in bottom hole pressure for the past 12 months.

The unitization plan was designed to raise and keep up the bottom hole pressures.

Humble Oil and Refining Co. has completed workover operations at the May-Love No. 1, sec. 1-4n-7e, a discovery well of the recently found Johnson station oil field in Pike County.

The well was recompleted from perforations in the lower Tuscaloosa formation at 10,828-30 feet. It pumped 141 barrels of oil and 422 barrels of salt water per day. Gravity of the crude was 38 degrees.

In the Smithdale field of Amite County, Sun Oil Co. was below 7,100 feet in the Hewitt No. 1, sec. 15-4n-6e.

Two other Amite County wells were underway. Pan American Petroleum Corp. was drilling a surface hole at the Spurlock No. 1, sec. 23-3n-6e, in the McElveen Field, and Larco Drilling Co. was attempting to free stuck drill pipe in a wildcat, the Adams No. 1, sec. 15-4n-5e.

In the new Traxler oil field of Smith County, Triad Oil and Gas Co. was below 7,600 feet in a confirmation try, the USA No. 1, sec. 36-3n-6e.

The discovery well was completed in a Rodessa sand at 11,069 feet. Several paluxy oil sands were logged below 10,000 feet but were not tested for commercial worth.

In Hinds County, Texas Pacific Coal and Oil Co., was below 11,000 feet in an important wildcat, the Allen No. 1, sec. 9-5n-2w, a scheduled 12,500 foot test. The venture has logged gas shows of undetermined commercial worth at 5,045 feet.

In Yazoo County, Continental Oil Co. was below 11,100 feet in a wildcat, the Freudenberg No. 1, sec. 24-12n-2w, a 14,100 foot test.

Report On U.S. Education Is Given

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Take an inadequate number of teachers, most of whom are ill-trained for the task. Ask them to teach the most basic subject in the school curriculum, under conditions ranging from bad to impossible.

If you think that is a formula for educational disaster, you need wonder no longer why Johnny can't read, write, spell, parse or punctuate.

The reason is that he is being taught English under precisely those circumstances.

Colleges, employers, parents and others closely associated with America's high school graduates have long been aware that something was horrendously wrong with their preparation in English.

But the full dimensions of this growing crisis in literacy have only now been documented.

The documentation is a 140-page report issued by the National Council of Teachers of English.

The council is an old and prestigious organization, not given to raising false alarms. Its report is soberly worded, backed up by extensive surveys, heavily laden with statistics.

Its conclusions should be terrifying to any citizen who knows that American students spend more time on English than any other subject; that two of the "3 Rs" are included in the subject; and that a mastery of his native language is the one indispensable skill that any person should be expected to bring away from a process called education.

REMEDIAL COURSES

Just how poorly English is presently being taught in many U.S. elementary and high schools is dramatized by two statistics in the report:

1. Last year, of 600,000 high school graduates who took college entrance examinations, 150,000 flunked English.

2. More than two - thirds of America's colleges and universities now find it necessary to offer remedial courses in English to incoming freshmen.

The council pinpointed several reasons for the poor quality of English instruction.

First, there is a chronic shortage of teachers who meet state certification requirements for teaching English in high school. A survey indicated the demand for such teachers outran the supply by 27 per cent.

Second, many of the teachers who do meet state certification requirements are actually ill-prepared in English. The average state requires only 18 semester hours of college credit in English (three courses) to qualify as a high school English teacher. Sixteen states will settle for one college course beyond freshman English.

SURVEY

A survey by the council indicated that about half of the men and women now teaching English in U.S. high schools do not themselves have a college major in English. (The percentage ranged from 40 in some states to 60 in others.)

Colleges engaged in preparing teachers could help the situation by requiring more of their graduates than bare compliance with state certification standards. But the council's studies clearly indicate that few teacher-training institutes are doing a good job of preparing English teachers. To cite just one hair-raising statistic, only 17 per cent of the colleges require a course in modern grammar of graduates who are preparing to teach high school English.

Summarizing the situation, the council says that the preparation of English teachers is "seriously inadequate" and "the great body of teachers now in English classrooms" are "simply not equipped" to deal with the subject properly.

That would be bad enough. But there is more.

Even the most highly qualified English teachers are not able to teach effectively under the overcrowded conditions which exist in many U.S. schools. The average English teacher carries a "teaching load" of 150 to 200 students daily, whereas the council says 100 is a maximum for good teaching.

WEAKNESS

Perhaps the greatest single weakness, however, is the chaotic condition of the English curriculum. Thousands of separate school districts plan their own English courses, with little coordination between elementary and high schools and colleges, or even between one grade and the next.

A hodge-podge of assorted courses bear the name English (California has 217 such courses in its public schools) and the really important studies — language, literature and composition — tend to get lost in a profusion of peripheral studies.

The council concluded that the outlook is desperate, and can be relieved only by a massive national program such as Congress adopted, in the National Defense Education Act, to improve the teaching of science and mathematics.

English is surely no less important. What good is a scientist who can't read? Or a mathematician who can't write a letter?

Ghana Expects Intervention By U.S. In Congo

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — The Ghana government party newspaper Ghanaian Times said Saturday the United States is planning "strong military intervention in the Congo."

The article, which created great uneasiness here, alleges that five U. S. warships in West African waters on goodwill visits have been told to "hold themselves in readiness for emergency action in the Congo."

The newspaper names two of the warships as the Docking Landing Ship Hermitage and the Tank Landing Ship Graham County and said each was carrying 500 Marines.

According to the newspaper's political correspondent, the Pentagon has prepared "a chart of operations" which says aircraft and 80,000 men will be needed for the Congo operation. He says that for the same purpose 30 shiploads of military personnel and 64 shiploads of cargo will be required for the sealift which will cost the U. S. Treasury $10.6 million. The whole operation, the writer added, will cost the United States $31.7 million.

'Ben Hur' Opens Here Wednesday

"Ben Hur", Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's production of the great novel about the Roman Empire and Christianity, opens its northeast Louisiana premiere Wednesday at the Jim Theatre here. The features will begin at 2 and 7:30 p.m. daily.

Termed by motion picture officials as the major production of any studio in the world, "Ben Hur" stars Charlton Heston, Jack Hawkins, Stephen Boyd, Hugh Griffith, Cathy O'Donnell, and introduces the Israeli beauty Haya Harareet.

EXCITING

Actually, the history of the book and later stage play and motion picture is as exciting as the three - hour plus film presentation.

When Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer decided to make "Ben-Hur" into a spectacular motion picture, it marked another milestone in the history of the world's most famous literary classic.

In fact, according to William Wyler, who directed the Academy Award-winning film, "Ben-Hur" has been making history since 1880, when it was first published as a novel by Harper & Brothers in New York.

Wyler, who has had a hand in bringing to the screen such famous novels as "Wuthering Heights" and "The Heiress," spent many months preparing "Ben-Hur" and many more in filming it. He came to know and appreciate its story as well as any man alive today.

"It's no surprise," he says, "that this story, set in ancient Jerusalem and Rome, has had such enduring popularity. It has drama, romance and significance and is as timely today as when Gen. Lew Wallace wrote it."

No less an authority than the late literary critic, Carl Van Doren, declared "Ben-Hur" did more to establish the popularity of novels in America than any other book. For more than 30 years after its publication, thousands upon thousands of Americans were reading "Ben-Hur."

RECORDS

Publishers' records reveal that by the close of 1889, an unprecedented 400,000 copies had been sold. By 1891, it had far outsold "Uncle Tom's Cabin." In addition to standard printings, the publishers brought out fourteen luxurious editions, one bound in silk and gold and selling for $30.

"By 1911," says Wyler, "more than two million authorized copies of 'Ben-Hur' had been disposed of. It was translated into German, French, Swedish, twice in Italian (the second time under direction of the Vatican), Arabic, Lithuanian and a dozen other languages. It was even printed in Braille."

In 1913, Sears Roebuck ordered and sold a million copies of a thirty-nine-cent edition (Gen. Wallace had forbidden cut-rate issues in his lifetime). Since then it has been issued in dozens of pocket editions, in special school texts and as a children's comic book, a total of over 150 different editions. It would be impossible to estimate its total sales, but it is still widely read throughout the world today.

And what of the man who started it all?

Lew Wallace, Civil War hero and later Governor of the Territory of New Mexico, was as colorful and exciting as the characters he created with his pen. Born in Brookville, Ind., April 10, 1827, he spent most of his life in his native state, but made much of his reputation elsewhere.

CHANCE MEETING

After a chance meeting with Col. Robert Ingersoll, a leading agnostic, Wallace decided to write a historical novel showing the religious and political conditions of the world at the time of Christ to demonstrate the necessity of His coming.

After six years of research, much of it done among the 250,000 volumes of the Library of Congress, Wallace began the actual writing of the book. Most of it he did in his spare time in Crawfordsville, Ind., where he was a judge. He finished the novel in New Mexico while governor of the Territory, copying the entire work over in purple ink in his crude Santa Fe office.

In March, 1880, he turned the manuscript over to Harper & Brothers. The novel had hardly hit the bookstands before Wallace was besieged by dramatists who wanted to bring it to the stage. The general resisted all such offers until the late 1890's. He finally capitulated when the theatrical firm of Klaw & Erlanger agreed the play would not show the face or figure of Christ, but would use a shaft of light to indicate His presence.

'Can-Can' Is Coming Soon To Paramount

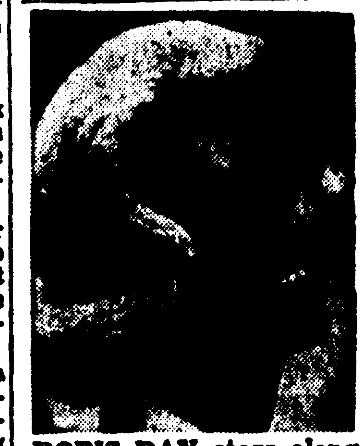
"Can - Can", the Cole Porter extravaganza starring Frank Sinatra, Shirley MacLaine, Maurice Chevalier, Louis Jourdan and Juliet Prowse, opens at the Paramount Theatre Wednesday.

The Twentieth Century - Fox CinemaScope DeLuxe color production is the intact, uncut version of the roadshow production that ran for over a year in the major cities of the world. Produced by Jack Cummings, the film was directed by Walter Lang.

Set in the lavish period of 1896, "Can-Can" revolves about an imaginary French law which forbids performances of the dazzling dance on the grounds that it is "lewd, lascivious and calculated to inflame, arouse and debase the mind, souls and moral fibre of the spectators." Defying this rule, peppery Simone Pistache (Shirley MacLaine) and her dancing partner, (played by Juliet Prowse), go right ahead with their career, under the approving eyes of their lawyer Francois Durnais (Frank Sinatra).

ATTEMPT

When two judges, (Louis Jourdan and Maurice Chevalier) attempt to stop these sinful exhibitions by arresting the can - can dancers, the dignified Jourdan falls in love with Simone and chaos engulfs the entire company.



DORIS DAY stars along with Frank Sinatra, Dorothy Malone and Gig Young in the fun-filled Technicolor hit, "Young At Heart," opening today at the Paramount Theatre.

'The Alamo' Coming To Delta Thursday

The Delta Theatre this week opens the northeast Louisiana premiere of the motion picture production of "The Alamo," which was filmed on location in Texas at a cost of $12 million and boasts a cast of thousands. Filmed in Technicolor and CinemaScope, the film tells a stroy of the battle leading up to the independance of Texas.

The picture opens Thursday for a limited engagement at the Delta.

STARRING

Starring in the production are John Wayne, Richard Widmark, Laurence Harvey, with Frankie Avalon, Pat Wayne, Linda Christal, Chill Willis and special guest star Richard Boone.

Among the highlights of the 162-minute adventure film are the vast armies of Mexico, under General Santa Anna, moving across the mountains and plains the stand of 156 men against 7000, Davy Crockett standing on the ramparts, a night rain into the heart of the enemy camp, and the unsung exploits of a midnight courier.

Produced and directed by John Wayne, "The Alamo," has been acclaimed the world over and cited as outstanding family film fare by the National Film Estimate Board and the Legion of Decency.

Curtain Call

Now that the Strauss Playhouse is so close to completion, individuals have started to inquire what items are still needed. A piano, water fountain, orchestra chairs, and the main curtain have already been offered.

It will be some time before the theatre is fully equipped to the last detail, as we did not expect to do everything at once, but a number of gifts would prove useful now.

In the lobby and Green Room, we need pedestal - type ash trays, large coat racks, benches, and additional coffee cups and saucers and coffee spoons for the coffee service. Also, tables for serving coffee. We could use electric clocks in the lobby, Green Room, and dressing rooms.

OTHER NEEDS

In the equipment area, the theatre could make good use of two more sets of battens, arbors and auxiliary items to increase our capacity to fly scenery and drops. A scaffold on wheels would be a great help in painting tall sets.

Anyone who would like to give any of these items (or others that may come to mind as convenient or necessary) may call Miss Lallage Feazel at Fairfax 2-6336, or Mrs. Carl McHenry at FAirfax 2-6858, or our architect, Paul F. Stewart, at FAirfax 2-0713.

The building fund is still about $10,000 short of the total amount which we are committed to spend. Cash contributions would be most welcomed to make up this deficit. We still have 10 seats left, for which subscriptions can be accepted and name plates affixed.

Richard Clark, our director, announces that the services of Elvie McGehee of New Orleans have been obtained for the choreography for our musical, "Dam Yankees."

McGehee did the choreography for "Anything Goes," and "Tonight at Eight - Thirty," at Le Petite Theatre in New Orleans. Also, he was choreographer for "Bells Are Ringing," at The Gallery Circle Theatre. He has danced and choreographed for television stations in Baton Rouge and New Orleans. Our own Curtis Rape will be his assistant. McGehee arrives in Monroe to begin work on "Dam Yankees," March 6th.

REHEARSALS

Richard reminds all that rehearsals start Wednesday, March 1, at The Strauss Playhouse promptly at 7:30 p.m. This ambitious group will be rehearsing on the brand new stage each Monday through Friday plus one afternoon during the week - end.

Last Saturday a group of dedicated theatre lovers braved the elements and put in a day's work packing and moving scenery, props, furniture, etc., from the Selman Field Playhouse to the new Strauss Playhouse on Lamy Lane.

Our sincerest thanks go to the following: Betro McRaney, Caroline McRaney, Bob Smith, Ruth Shipman, Larry Shipman, Sandy Stevens, Brian White, Beryl Franklin, Bob Claridge, Maynard Sayles, Jan Evans, Pat Clark, Duane May, Bud Henry, Bob Evans, Judy Evans, and T. In the equipment area, the theatre could make good use of two more sets of battens, arbors and auxiliary items to increase our capacity to fly scenery and drops. A scaffold on wheels would be a great help in painting tall sets.

Anyone who would like to give any of these items (or others that may come to mind as convenient or necessary) may call Miss Lallage Feazel at Fairfax 2-8336, or Mrs. Carl McHenry at FAirfax 2-6858, or our architect, Paul F. Stewart, at FAirfax 2-0713.

The building fund is still about $10,000 short of the total amount which we are committed to spend. Cash contributions would be most welcomed to make up this deficit. We still have 10 seats left, for which subscriptions can be accepted and name plates affixed.

Richard Clark, our director, announces that the services of Elvie McGehee of New Orleans have been obtained for the choreography for our musical, "Dam Yankees."

McGehee did the choreography for "Anything Goes," and "Tonight at Eight - Thirty," at Le Petite Theatre in New Orleans. Also, he was choreographer for "Bells Are Ringing," at The Gallery Circle Theatre. He has danced and choreographed for television stations in Baton Rouge and New Orleans. Our own Curtis Rape will be his assistant. McGehee arrives in Monroe to begin work on "Dam Yankees," March 6th.

REHEARSALS

Richard reminds all that rehearsals start Wednesday, March 1, at The Strauss Playhouse promptly at 7:30 p.m. This ambitious group will be rehearsing on the brand new stage each Monday through Friday plus one afternoon during the week - end.

Last Saturday a group of dedicated theatre lovers braved the elements and put in a day's work packing and moving scenery, props, furniture, etc., from the Selman Field Playhouse to the new Strauss Playhouse on Lamy Lane.

Our sincerest thanks go to the following: Betro McRaney, Caroline McRaney, Bob Smith, Ruth Shipman, Larry Shipman, Sandy Stevens, Brian White, Beryl Franklin, Bob Claridge, Maynard Sayles, Jan Evans, Pat Clark, Duane May, Bud Henry, Bob Evans, Judy Evans, and T. D. members Jim Fitch, Elbert Lozes, Ross Ford, Robert Wing, and Tommy Ryland.

Body Of Fourth Plane Disaster Victim Is Found

AIKEN, S.C. (UPI)—The body of the fourth victim of a light plane crash that dug a 20-foot crater near here late Friday was recovered Saturday as the Federal Agency launched an investigation.

Two FAA inspectors were on the scene when the body of Clifford Bryant of Jacksonville, Fla., was found. Three other victims were found and identified Friday before darkness and stormy weather halted the search.

They were identified as Harold C. Ivens, 28, or Orlando, Fla., formerly of Knoxville, Tenn., pilot of the plane; and John Z. Fletcher, 34, and Earl Douglas Taylor, 22, both of Jacksonville.

Ivens was employed by a Knoxville garbage disposal firm and was recently transferred to Florida. Fletcher was president of a Jacksonville waste disposal firm and Taylor and Bryant were Negro employes.

Witnesses said Taylor, a former paratrooper, leaped or fell from the plane at about 1,000 feet. A wing section was found two miles from the crash scene, indicating it broke loose before the crash.

Satellite Orbit Hopes Fade Out

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Space scientists Saturday abandoned a slim hope that orbit was achieved by the "radio brain" satellite launched from this spaceport Friday night.

The 75-pound sphere was hurled skyward in the nose of a four-stage Juno II rocket. Its mission was to study the effect on communications of the ionosphere, an electrically charged region which surrounds the earth.

Radio contact was lost with the vehicle 20 or 30 seconds after first-stage burnout. But throughout the night tracking stations around the world scanned the skies on the slight chance an orbit was achieved.

Berserk Father Kills Infant Son

NEW YORK (AP) —A missile technician, who recently suffered a mental breakdown, stabbed his baby son with a butcher knife Saturday, then carried the child to the roof of their tenement home and flung him to his death.

The wife of Alexander Simek, 40, told police he recently had been discharged as cured from a private sanitarium.

She said he had been working since as a television repairman, having been unable to get back his former government job as an electronics technician, working on the Polaris missile program.

The wife, Emily, 33, had left Simek with 11-month-old Stephen and Peter Paul, 2, while she went to a nearby shop.

When she returned she found Simek, his clothing blood-stained, standing over the dead child. Stephen had landed on an outside stairway four floors below the roof.

Police said the boy also had been stabbed once in the stomach with the butcher knife.

Simek, too incoherent to be questioned, was taken under guard to Bellevue Hospital.

Floods Take Heavy Toll In Alabama

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Central Alabama prepared for perhaps its worst flooding in 40 years Saturday as rivers continued to rise after a week of steady rain.

The rain had stopped in most of Alabama, and the Weather Bureau said there was little chance of any more, at least through Sunday.

But immediate relief for stricken areas of Alabama was not in sight.

Temperatures plunged from the balmy readings of the past week to subfreezing in some areas of north Alabama and Mississippi, light snow began to fall. None of it stuck, but the runoff added to the swollen rivers.

The Coosa, Tallapoosa and Alabama rivers continued their rampage.

Thousands of acres of property, many miles of roads, and hundreds of homes were inundated in central Alabama.

The Alabama Power Co. said all reservoirs at the company's dams on the river system north of Montgomery are filled and overflowing.

Flood gates at six dams have been opened, but the company said this would make little difference on the amount of water flowing southward. The flood gates control the water surface at the top of the dams.

Before the rain slackened, a final deluge added to the flooding, with rainfall exceeding seven inches reported at numerous Southern areas.

Within the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. Saturday, West Point, Ga., reported 7.65 inches; La Grange, Ga., 7.82 inches; Frisco City in south Alabama, 7.31 inches, and Miller Ferry in central Alabama, 8.27 inches.

Atlanta received .70 of an inch in 15 minutes and 5.67 inches for the 24-hour period.

Rainfall at Birmingham since Feb. 1 has totaled 17.51 inches, already a record for the month.

Montgomery, where the Alabama River stood at 53 feet Saturday and was expected to crest at 56 feet within 48 hours, received 5.54 inches of rain in 24 hours.

The Alabama's crest at 56 feet would equal the record set in 1919. Flood stage is 35 feet.

Man Being Held In Investigation

Ouachita Parish sheriff's officials took a 63-year-old man into custody to investigate an alleged shooting yesterday.

Jake B. Blackwell, 1212 Winnsboro Road, was arrested in the home of a neighbor. He had a .22 caliber rifle in his possession at the time. He was reported to have shot at his wife.

Mrs. Blackwell said that she and her son, Roy, had fled from their home early yesterday morning when they became afraid of Blackwell. She said that neighbors told her that her husband had fired at her car as she drove away.

Sheriff's officials said that they had picked up Blackwell for investigation of attempted homicide.

LOOKING OVER the more than 3,000 blooms at the Northeast Louisiana Camellia show in progress at the Central Savings Bank yesterday are officers of the club. They include left to right, James Jones, treasurer; R. W. Cretney, director; K. L. Weldin, secretary; Grayson Guthrie, show chairman; and Frank Spivey, president. PROSECUTOR SILENT

Witness Claims Jail Kidnaping

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Robert L. Russell was released from a hospital Saturday after reportedly telling a fantastic story of abduction, attempted murder and harrowing escape.

Atlantic County Prosecutor Augustine A. Repetto would neither confirm nor deny that Russell—the state's star witness in the Vincent Blaney murder—had told such a story about his departure from the Absecon city jail Friday night.

Repetto said the witness, in the hospital at nearby Somers Point since shortly after midnight, had not yet been questioned when he was transferred to the county jail at Mays Landing Saturday.

However, a police officer who asked that his name not be used told The Associated Press Russell claims he was kidnaped from the Absecon jail by three men who bound his wrists with three feet of insulated wire, drove him to a boat and took him out into Sculls Bay.

Russell was quoted as saying he jumped overboard and ran back to shore in shallow water while the abductors fired at him in the foggy darkness.

Asked whether Russell had told this story, Repetto said: "We have not yet questioned Russell. We will do so at a later time when we feel his physical condition will permit it."

Repetto said he does not yet know the circumstances under which Russell "left" the Absecon jail where he was being held for his own protection.

He said the circumstances of Russell's "leaving"—the prosecutor never used the word "escape"—were still under investigation by his office, Somers Point police and the state police.

Asked to comment on Asst. County Prosecutor Morgan Thomas' earlier statement that there was a "strong possibility" Russell had been taken from the jail, Repetto would only repeat again that the witness had not yet been questioned.

He said Russell had been brought to the hospital with contusions, a scalp cut which required three sutures to close and other cuts and brush burns.

In Philadelphia, meanwhile, Magistrate George Levin revoked the bail under which one of three persons indicted for the Blaney slaying had been held.

Levin ordered Lillian Reis held in jail until another hearing March 24. The attractive 32-year-old divorcee and owner of Philadelphia's Celebrity Room night club had been free in $10,000 bail.

Under indictment with Miss Reis are John Berkery, 27, of Haddon Township, and John Joseph Dillon, 23, a Philadelphian now being held in the San Diego, Calif., jail on a burglary charge.

It was at least in part on the strength of Russell's testimony that Repetto obtained a murder indictment against the three from the county grand jury.

The prosecutor said Saturday he is "fully confident Russell told the truth" about the Blaney murder.

Russell allegedly witnessed the killing early on the morning of Aug. 3. Blaney was to have testified for the state in a half-million dollar Pottsville, Pa., burglary. His chained and weighted body was fished from the sea off Margate Aug. 23.

Miss Reis and Berkery are among the defendants in the Pottsville burglary.

Russell has been under arrest since Oct. 11 as a burglary suspect.

Pollock Service Held Saturday

COLLINSTON (Special) — Funeral services were held yesterday at 10:30 a.m. in Shreveport for Mrs. Katherine B. Pollock of Collinston who died Tuesday afternoon in a New Orleans hospital.

Services for the native of Bossier Parish were held in the Osborn Funeral Home chapel and burial was in the Bernice Cemetery in Bernice.

Survivors include three sisters, Mrs. Mack K. Happer, Mrs. Walter J. Thomas and Mrs. Claude H. Ferguson, all of Shreveport; one brother, Russell M. Bass, San Francisco, Calif.

Pallbearers were Tom Linzay, Torrie Eldridge, Arthur Harper, Carl Norsworthy, Bryant Jones and Walter Thomas.

Two Burglaries Reported Friday

Monroe police reported that Faletta's Grocery, 1601 Breard St., and the home of Reverend H. L. Sampson, 1001 Civic St., were burglarized Friday night.

Six bottles of whiskey and less than one dollar were taken from Faletta's Grocery. The building was broken into through a window on the east side of the building. It was unlocked and the top section lowered, then the thief of thieves crawled through.

The money was taken from the cash register which was unlocked.

Seven $100 bonds and an $85 watch were taken from Sampson's home. The burglary occurred between 6:40 and 9:15 p.m. Police said that Sampson reported that all drawers and cabinets in the home were entered.

Entry to the house was gained through a door from the carport.

John M. Barr's Services Set

RUSTON (Special) — Funeral services will be held today for John M. Barr, 75-year-old retired Lincoln Parish schoolteacher, who died Saturday morning in a Shreveport hospital.

The Rev. Harold Shirley will officiating at the services at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the Temple Baptist Church. Burial will be in the Mount Lebanon Cemetery near Gibson under the direction of Spears Funeral Home of Ruston.

He is survived by his widow, and two sons, John B. Barr of Shreveport, and Warren M. Barr, Monroe; one daughter, Mrs. H. J. Larson, New Iberia; and five grandchildren.

QUAKE ROCKS TOKYO

TOKYO (AP) — A slight quake rocked Tokyo and parts of central and northern Japan Saturday. There was no immediate report of damage.

PERSONAL OVERSIGHT

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Columnist R. G. Miller, who writes about Oklahoma's scenic spots, admits he had a red face recently.

He received a letter asking where "Recognition Monument and Park" was located. Not recalling it, he called on the public to furnish the answer.

The word came quickly: It is a southeastern Oklahoma monument to men who have boosted that scenic region.

And, one of the men honored is R. G. Miller.

Floods Take Heavy Toll In Alabama

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Central Alabama prepared for perhaps its worst flooding in 40 years Saturday as rivers continued to rise after a week of steady rain.

The rain had stopped in most of Alabama, and the Weather Bureau said there was little chance of any more, at least through Sunday.

But immediate relief for stricken areas of Alabama was not in sight.

Temperatures plunged from the balmy readings of the past week to subfreezing in some areas of north Alabama and Mississippi, light snow began to fall. None of it stuck, but the runoff added to the swollen rivers.

The Coosa, Tallapoosa and Alabama rivers continued their rampage.

Thousands of acres of property, many miles of roads, and hundreds of homes were inundated in central Alabama.

The Alabama Power Co. said all reservoirs at the company's dams on the river system north of Montgomery are filled and overflowing.

Flood gates at six dams have been opened, but the company said this would make little difference on the amount of water flowing southward. The flood gates control the water surface at the top of the dams.

Before the rain slackened, a final deluge added to the flooding, with rainfall exceeding seven inches reported at numerous Southern areas.

Within the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. Saturday, West Point, Ga., reported 7.65 inches; La Grange, Ga., 7.82 inches; Frisco City in south Alabama, 7.31 inches, and Miller Ferry in central Alabama, 8.27 inches.

Atlanta received .70 of an inch in 15 minutes and 5.67 inches for the 24-hour period.

Rainfall at Birmingham since Feb. 1 has totaled 17.51 inches—already a record for the month.

Montgomery, where the Alabama River stood at 53 feet Saturday and was expected to crest at 56 feet within 48 hours, received 5.54 inches of rain in 24 hours.

The Alabama's crest at 56 feet would equal the record set in 1919. Flood stage is 35 feet.

Mrs. Bailey was a native of Winnfield, member of the First Methodist Church, a member of the Order of the Eastern Star and was a charter member of the Methodist Women's WSCS.

Man Being Held In Investigation

Ouachita Parish sheriff's officials took a 63-year-old man into custody to investigate an alleged shooting yesterday.

Jake B. Blackwell, 1212 Winnsboro Road, was arrested in the home of a neighbor. He had a .22 caliber rifle in his possession at the time. He was reported to have shot at his wife.

Mrs. Blackwell said that she and her son, Roy, had fled from their home early yesterday morning when they became afraid of Blackwell. She said that neighbors told her that her husband had fired at her car as she drove away.

Sheriff's officials said that they had picked up Blackwell for investigation of attempted homicide.

PROSECUTOR SILENT

Witness Claims Jail Kidnaping

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Robert L. Russell was released from a hospital Saturday after reportedly telling a fantastic story of abduction, attempted murder and harrowing escape.

Atlantic County Prosecutor Augustine A. Repetto would neither confirm nor deny that Russell—the state's star witness in the Vincent Blaney murder—had told such a story about his departure from the Absecon city jail Friday night.

Repetto said the witness, in the hospital at nearby Somers Point since shortly after midnight, had not yet been questioned when he was transferred to the county jail at Mays Landing Saturday.

However, a police officer who asked that his name not be used told The Associated Press Russell claims he was kidnaped from the Absecon jail by three men who bound his wrists with three feet of insulated wire, drove him to a boat and took him out into Sculls Bay.

Russell was quoted as saying he jumped overboard and ran back to shore in shallow water while the abductors fired at him in the foggy darkness.

Asked whether Russell had told this story, Repetto said: "We have not yet questioned Russell. We will do so at a later time when we feel his physical condition will permit it."

Repetto said he does not yet know the circumstances under which Russell "left" the Absecon jail where he was being held for his own protection.

He said the circumstances of Russell's "leaving"—the prosecutor never used the word "escape"—were still under investigation by his office, Somers Point police and the state police.

Asked to comment on Asst. County Prosecutor Morgan Thomas' earlier statement that there was a "strong possibility" Russell had been taken from the jail, Repetto would only repeat again that the witness had not yet been questioned.

He said Russell had been brought to the hospital with contusions, a scalp cut which required three sutures to close and other cuts and brush burns.

In Philadelphia, meanwhile, Magistrate George Levin revoked the bail under which one of three persons indicted for the Blaney slaying had been held.

Levin ordered Lillian Reis held in jail until another hearing March 24. The attractive 32-year-old divorcee and owner of Philadelphia's Celebrity Room night club had been free in $10,000 bail.

Under indictment with Miss Reis are John Berkery, 27, of Haddon Township, and John Joseph Dillon, 25, a Philadelphian now being held in the San Diego, Calif., jail on a burglary charge.

It was at least in part on the strength of Russell's testimony that Repetto obtained a murder indictment against the three from the county grand jury.

The prosecutor said Saturday he is "fully confident Russell told the truth" about the Blaney murder.

Russell allegedly witnessed the killing early on the morning of Aug. 3. Blaney was to have testified for the state in a half-million dollar Pottsville, Pa., burglary. His chained and weighted body was fished from the sea off Margate Aug. 23.

Miss Reis and Berkery are among the defendants in the Pottsville burglary.

Russell has been under arrest since Oct. 11 as a burglary suspect.

Two Burglaries Reported Friday

Monroe police reported that Faletta's Grocery, 1601 Breard St., and the home of Reverend H. L. Sampson, 1001 Civic St., were burglarized Friday night.

Six bottles of whiskey and less than one dollar were taken from Faletta's Grocery. The building was broken into through a window on the east side of the building. It was unlocked and the top section lowered, then the thief of thieves crawled through.

The money was taken from the cash register which was unlocked.

Seven $100 bonds and an $85 watch were taken from Sampson's home. The burglary occurred between 6:40 and 9:15 p.m. Police said that Sampson reported that all drawers and cabinets in the home were entered.

Entry to the house was gained through a door from the carport.

PERSONAL OVERSIGHT

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Columnist R. G. Miller, who writes about Oklahoma's scenic spots, admits he had a red face recently.

He received a letter asking where "Recognition Monument and Park" was located. Not recalling it, he called on the public to furnish the answer.

The word came quickly: It is a southeastern Oklahoma monument to men who have boosted that scenic region.

And, one of the men honored is R. G. Miller.

James W. Moore, President of the Kellogg Oil Company, stands by as a Shell tank truck is loaded with today's Super Shell. These trucks are kept busy supplying Shell dealers with this top performance gasoline.

BULLETIN:

On Wednesday, Jimmy Moore's Kellogg Oil stations will have remarkable Super Shell gasoline with 9 ingredients—to give your car top performance

James W. Moore, President of the Kellogg Oil Company, becomes the Monroe area Shell man March 1.

This means you'll be able to buy today's Super Shell gasoline, Shell oils, fuels, lubricants, and other fine Shell petroleum products at his stations.

Read why this well-known Louisiana oil marketer decided to switch to Shell and how his decision will bring you top performance.

JAMES MOORE's decision to switch his service stations to Shell was not a snap judgment.

Moore is a petroleum expert. He has been written up in the National Petroleum News on three different occasions in the past few years.

He studied many oil companies before he selected Shell Oil—a world-famous company with a reputation for scientific and technical achievement. Shell, he knew, had the largest research staff of any petroleum company. Here were people who were constantly developing better products to make cars run better.

Moore realized—as you realize—that any gasoline can make cars go. But he knows—as you will soon learn—that today's Super Shell can give cars top performance.

Shell Research developed today's Super Shell

On Wednesday, you will be able to try Super Shell. It contains nine ingredients to give your car top performance. Here they are and here's what they do:

Ingredient #1 is TCP for power, mileage and longer plug-life.

Ingredient #2 is "cat-cracked" gasoline for power with a purr.

Ingredient #3 is Alkylate, noted for knock control in hot engines.

Ingredient #4 is anti-knock mix for extra resistance to knocks.

Ingredient #5 is Butane for quick starts on cold mornings.

Ingredient #6 is Pentane mix for fast warm-ups on cold days.

Ingredient #7 is an "anti-icer" to help check cold-weather stalling.

Ingredient #8 is gum preventive to help keep carburetors clean inside.

Ingredient #9 is Platformate for extra energy, more mileage.

Jimmy Moore discusses final plans for switching to Shell with Drex Martin, Shell District Manager. Moore has been working closely with key Shell officials in New Orleans.

Moore has a sixth sense about petroleum products

It's not surprising that Jimmy Moore was so selective in his choice of oil companies. He's been in the oil business since 1939 and is today one of Louisiana's best-known oil marketers.

Moore began his career as assistant manager of a service station in Monroe. He left the station in 1941 to become manager of a larger service station at Camp Livingston.

In 1942, Moore was drafted into the Army as a Private. He was discharged in 1946 with the rank of 2nd Lieutenant.

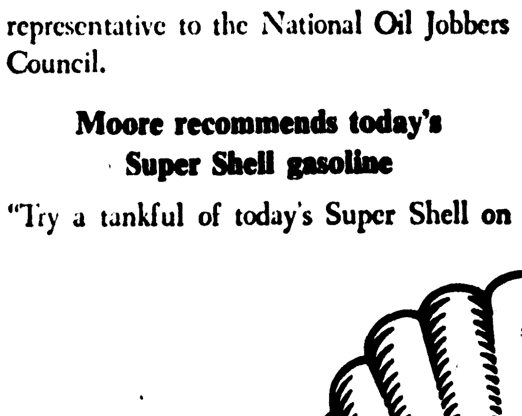
Moore returned to his first love—the oil business—in 1948. He was hired by Walter Kellogg as Tires-Battery-Accessories Representative for the Kellogg Oil Company.

Company grows rapidly under Moore's guidance

Moore's skill and knowledge soon made him Manager of Kellogg Oil. Under his guidance, the company grew from a 90,000-gallon-a-month operation in 1949 to over a half million gallons a month presently.

During this period, Moore was promoted to Vice President and General Manager. Today, he is President.

In 1956, Jimmy Moore was elected President of the Louisiana Oil Marketers Association, and in 1958 he was elected Louisiana's representative to the National Oil Jobbers Council.



Shell Service Station personnel are thoroughly trained in all phases of service and lubrication. These professionals will help Monroe area motorists get top performance from their cars.

Moore recommends today's Super Shell gasoline

"Try a tankful of today's Super Shell on Wednesday at your nearest Kellogg station," says Moore. "I promise you top performance."

Kellogg Oil Company invites Monroe area residents to a free movie—today, tomorrow and Tuesday

Save the Shell emblem in the lower right-hand corner—it's your ticket of admission.

The Kellogg Oil Company is now holding its Pre-Grand Opening Celebration.

You're invited to see "Young at Heart" starring Frank Sinatra, Doris Day, Dorothy Malone and Gig Young.

It's free—including the popcorn. Just take the Shell emblem and bring it to the Paramount Theatre, 301-309 Desiard Street, Monroe. There will be five shows today.

Join in the fun of the Kellogg Pre-Grand Opening Celebration. Make plans now to see "Young at Heart."

WOT CAN I DO FOR YOU COLONEL, SOR?
ANYBODY IN EAST FREDELLEN YOU'D LIKE MUSCLED-UP? —IN A NICE WAY, OF COURSE!
NO, KATE, NOW THAT THE 'SPIRITS' ARE NOT AGAINST ME — I'LL GO OUT TO THE RADAR SITE AND GET TO WORK
'ERE! 'OP ON ME BACK-I'LL CARRY YOU OVER THE MOOR!
WHY-AH, NO THANK YOU... I'LL WALK!
...I'LL-AH-SEE YOU AROUND SOMETIME, KATE...
BUT AS STEVE WALKS TOWARD THE RADAR SITE, KATE THE CROWD RACES AHEAD OVER A SHORT CUT...
COLONEL, WE GOT A BREAK! WE'LL MAKE UP THE DIGGING TIME WE LOST IN THE WALKOUT —THIS NEW CHARACTER CAN DO THE WORK OF 10 MEN!

SIGH I'M AFRAID I'M GETTING JADED.
TO THINK OF THE FUN I USED TO HAVE WITH THESE BLOCKS.
BUT THERE'S ONLY SO FAR YOU CAN GO WITH THESE THINGS. THERE'S NO CHALLENGE.
NOW, THERE'S A REAL TOY— IT HAS MOVING PARTS— IT MAKES NOISE—
OOPS! I NEVER CAN KEEP THIS TOY ALL TOGETHER!
BUT I KNOW HOW TO WORK THE CIRCLES...
HELLO?
IGRATZ SNIGGLE BYE BYE CHOO CHOO DRYNX!!
IT SOUNDED LIKE THE OLD MAN RAISING CANE AT THE STUDIO. I'D BETTER RUN BACK TO TOWN.
I LIKE THAT TOY. IT'S FUN!

BUT, COL. CANYON, THAT-AH-AMAZONIAN CALLED KATE THE CROWD COMMITTED AN ASSAULT UPON YOUR PERSON!
WHY, SERGEANT, YOU CAN'T EXPECT ME TO BRING A CHARGE AGAINST A-AH-PLAYFUL YOUNG LADY- NOW CAN YOU?
KATE ONLY DID WHAT HER MOTHER TOLD HER—IN ORDER TO STOP THE CONSTRUCT-ION OF THE RADAR EQUIPMENT...
...SO THE LOCAL SPOOKS WOULD NOT FLY AWAY AND RUIN THE OLD GIRL'S WITCH TRADE!
KATE, THE POLICE CAN'T ARREST THE ENTIRE POPULATION OF EAST FREDELLEN FOR COVERING UP FOR YOU...
AND COLONEL CANYON RE-FUSES TO BRING CHARGES AGAINST YOU, SO YOU MAY GO!
I KNEW THE COLONEL WAS ALL 'EART...
...AND BESIDES, 'IS SHAVING LOTION SMELLS SO GOOD!
WOT CAN I DO FOR YOU COLONEL, SOR?
ANYBODY IN EAST FREDELLEN YOU'D LIKE MUSCLED-UP? -IN A NICE WAY, OF COURSE!

LEAPIN' LIZARDS! RADAR EARS, LIKE MINE, PICK UP A LOT O' WORDS! PUT 'EM TOGETHER, IT BEGINS TO ADD UP!
"BUSINESS DEAL," JOHNNY WAS 'ON, EH? HAH! WHAT A "DEAL"! OLD JUDGE GUFFY IS IN JAIL, FOR TRYIN' T'MURDER HIM! THEN, TH' WAY I GET IT, JOHNNY TANGLED WITH A GANG O' COMMIE KILLERS!
WHAT HAPPENED IS STILL A BLANK TO ME! BUT JOHNNY'S ALIVE, AND DOESN'T SEEM T'HAVE A WORRY IN TH' WORLD!
HARK! SOUNDS AS IF SEEIN' JOHNNY HAS SNAPPED UNCLE DAN OUT O' HIS TRANCE! HE'S TALKIN'!
I REMEMBER TWO MEN! THEY SAID THEY WERE OLD AND DEAR FRIENDS OF YOURS! THEY SEEMED SO HARMLESS! I TOLD THEM HOW TO FIND YOUR PLACE!
THEN, SUDDENLY THERE SEEMED TO BE TWO OTHER MEN BEHIND ME! BEFORE I COULD TURN, THERE WAS A ... A BLINDING PAIN! THAT'S ALL I REMEMBER!
WERE--WERE THOSE FIRST TWO MEN REALLY FRIENDS OF YOURS, JOHNNY?
OH, I'D MET THEM BEFORE!
BUT I'M AFRAID I WAS A FOOL TO TELL THEM WHERE YOU WERE!
NOT AT ALL, DAN! YOU HAD NO WAY OF KNOWING!
ANYWAY, THEY PROBABLY GOT LOST ON THE BACK COUNTRY ROADS! DECIDED TO GO ON THEIR WAY AND FORGET THE WHOLE THING!
THEY WERE BAD! IF THEY REALLY WERE LOOKING FOR YOU, JOHNNY, HOW LONG WILL THEY GO ON FORGETTING!
I IMAGINE FOREVER!
